Burma Terrorists Wipe Out Cabinet

Machine Gun Fire Slays 6, Wounds Two Other Officials In Rangoon Council Chamber; Killers Escape In Jeep

LONDON, July 19.—(AP)—The British government announced that five "terrorists" almost wiped out the nine-man government of Burma today with a spray of machinegun fire which swept the council chamber in Rangoon.

Maj. Gen. U. Aung San, 32-year-old "strong man" who was in line to become the first prime minister of the abortive independent nation, and five of his colleagues in the cabinet were killed and two others wounded. A guard also was wounded, and the attackers fled unscathed in a jeep.

The British government's Burma office called it a "murderous attack."

Burma apparently was under a censorship blanket following the incident, as no news came directly from Rangoon concerning the incident except as relayed through the British governor, Sir Huxford Rance.

But the official British statement said, "there is nothing in the reports so far received to suggest that the situation is not fully under control. Further information will be made available."

Aung San was leader of Burma's strongest political party, the anti-Fascist Peoples' Freedom league which has come into frequent collision with Burmese Communist party members and other Burmese who contended it was "working with the British" to make Burma a dominion within the empire.

The official account of the attack said: "When the executive council was in session, a jeep drew up to the main entrance. One man stayed in the jeep and five men armed with sten guns and two rifles went upstairs to the council chamber."

An armed guard outside the door tried to stop them and was shot. He

CLAY CRITICIZES RANKING GENERAL

Reprimand Made For Accepting Silver Pitcher From Kronberg Castle

FRANKFURT, Germany, July 19.—(AP)—Gen. Lucius D. Clay publicly criticized one of his highest-ranking generals in Germany tonight for the officer's connection with the Hesse (Kronberg) jewel theft trials.

An army announcement said Clay had reviewed the report of the inspector general "concerning the connection of Maj. Gen. James M. Bevens with the Kronberg jewel case."

Bevens, who is the army's personnel chief in Germany, was named in the Kronberg trials as having "accepted" a silver pitcher from Kronberg Castle just like one Maj. David F. Watson sent to his home in Burlingame, Calif., before he was apprehended and sentenced to three years in jail.

"General Clay believes that the evidence presented by the inspector general shows General Bevens to have displayed extremely poor judgment," the army announcement said.

"General Clay has decided that he will take no further action in the case against General Bevens until final action against the principals in the case has been taken by the United States government."

The allegation that Bevens had "accepted" a pitcher from the Kronberg Castle, which the army ran as an officers' club, was made by Col. Jack W. Durant, who was sentenced by a court martial to 15 years imprisonment for his part in the $1,500,000 theft.

The prison sentences against Durant, Watson and Durant's wife, the former Capt. Kathleen Nash Durant, have still to be reviewed by the War Department and the President.

Clay said the United States had a moral obligation to complete the contract under which Russia agreed to purchase $25,000,000 worth of lend-lease supplies after the war and said most of the supplies have already been delivered.

Bridges told Wood he was "wasting his time."

"This country can't carry water on two shoulders," he said, hotly. "Either we have got a definite policy to stop the spread of Communism or we haven't."

He asserted this country could not justify asking $400,000,000 to prevent the spread of Communism in Greece and Turkey and in the same breath furnish oil machinery to Russia.

He said he didn't want to hear Wood, but the latter continued anyway.

5 British Soldiers, 5 Civilians Wounded In Jerusalem Explosion; Policeman Killed Two Wounded In Haifa

JERUSALEM, July 19.—(AP)—A rivet mine planted by terrorists blasted a British military truck in the Jewish quarter of Eastern Jerusalem tonight, wounding five British soldiers, four civilians and one young Jewish boy.

A few hours earlier, a terrorist attack in Haifa had killed one policeman and wounded a second policeman and a Jewish civilian.

The civilian casualties from the mine explosion included a Jewish couple walking nearby when the explosive was detonated by a plunger 50 yards away and two Jews hurt when the roof of their house collapsed from concussion.

The rivet mine was an ingenious home-made weapon of gnomes. The wire attached to it led to the plunger in the rear of a row of houses facing the Jerusalem zoo.

This time it is a man not a young woman, and it is none other than L. C. Both theaters made him flatterers. Right now he is back home rubbing his eyes to make sure it is not all a dream. He will make decision as to which offer to accept.

JURY CONVICTS MRS. INGALLS OF ENSLAVING NEGRO MAID

SAN DIEGO, Calif., July 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Ingalls, 62, descendant of Massachusetts Colonial Governor Bradford, was convicted in federal court today of enslaving her Negro maid, Dora Jones, 58.

Sentence was deferred by Judge Jacob Weinberger until July 29.

The jury retired after the verdict to deliberate a similar charge against Mrs. Ingalls' husband, Alfred Wesley Ingalls, 64, former Boston and Lynn, Mass., lawyer and legislator.

The court reserved decision on whether to commit Mrs. Ingalls to jail pending an appeal which her attorney said would be filed. The defense attorney, Clifford Fitzgerald, in arguing against jailing Mrs. Ingalls, said it "would mean the death sentence."

The prosecution contended that the Ingalls had reduced the Negro to slavery for 40 years by threatening to expose her affair with Mrs. Ingalls' first husband, Walter Harman, of Washington, D. C.

Hamilton-Kennedy Duel For Commandership Gains Momentum; Lanier Out

The burning issue of domestic communism dominated the state American Legion convention here yesterday as two key speakers warned of its dangers to the United States, and delegates whipped into shape a resolution calling for an all-out fight against the "Red Fifth Column."

Primary interest on strictly intra-Legion affairs centered on the fast approaching department elections. Most significant development in a day crisscrossed with last minute campaigning and maneuvers was the withdrawal of Walter Lanier, of Thibodaux, from the commandership race, leaving the field open to Victor Kennedy, of New Orleans, and Raymond Hamilton of Shreveport.

In the principal convention address yesterday, Harry W. Colmery, of Topeka, Kan., declared that "Soviet Russia confronts us in all parts of the world," and called upon the Legionnaires to combat "Communist treachery at home and in Europe."

Colmery, past national commander of the Legion, arrived here yesterday morning with Col. Roscoe Turner, after their plane was forced down at El Dorado, Ark., early Friday night. They completed the trip by car.

"Russia," Colmery declared, "our friendly ally during the war, has been using the power and threat of her occupying armies, rigging elections, overthrowing existing governments, and breaking treaties and agreements."

"Her studied purpose is to occupy by force any areas she desires and transform them politically into the Soviet plan—converting their economy to the Communist system and systematically impoverishing them to make them dependent upon Soviet Russia."

Urging a "solid front" against Russia, Colmery warned that the Soviet Union is confident, aggressive, and ruthless.

"We must recognize that she is not impeded by the accepted standards of conduct," he declared.

Denouncing Russia as "wanton and rapacious," Colmery said that "despite the fact that we won the war in Europe, the struggle still goes on between the forces of freedom and tyranny."

"Instead of the movement or the pressure of the masses—to throw off the yoke of bondage—as in Asia—we have a 'great' power which seeks to impose its tyrannical will upon others."

FIND $11,000 HID BY ODD-JOBS MAN

DAVENPORT, Ia., July 19.—(AP)—Nearly $11,000 was found today in the rubbish-clogged home of William H. Davis, 68-year-old odd jobs man, by police who went there to clean up the place on order of the city council.

Davis did not tell police about the money, $10,872 of which was in government securities and $94.40 of which was in cash, and he offered no explanation when it was found.

The securities were $5,125 worth of 10-year war bonds and $5,747 in postal savings certificates. The securities were found in a dresser drawer in Davis' bedroom, and the cash was discovered in tobacco bags under piles of collected junk in a drawer in the kitchen.

The city council ordered the cleanup under a health ordinance.

9,000,000 VETS MAY SOON CASH G. I. LEAVE BONDS

Authorization Sent To White House After Getting Senate Approval

BOOST LIVING ALLOWANCE UNDER TRAINING PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, July 19.—(AP)—By a vote of 85 to 0, the Senate today passed and dispatched to President Truman legislation authorizing 9,000,000 veterans to cash $1,600,000,000 in terminal leave bonds.

The senate earlier had passed by a voice vote another bill which would increase living allowances to veterans going to school under the GI Bill of Rights. The bill now goes to the House.

The terminal leave bond measure got unanimous House approval two weeks ago. It would permit but not require former enlisted men to cash bonds issued to them starting last year in lieu of cash terminal pay.

The bonds could be turned in for cash at local banks after September 1. Under the present law the maturity date is five years after the date of issue.

The bill also extends for one year beyond September 1 the deadline for application for terminal bonds by veterans.

The measure adjusting benefits to veterans attending school would increase subsistence grants from the present $65 a month to $75 in the case of single veterans, from $90 to $105 for married veterans without children, and from $90 to $120 for those who have children.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said these 15 per cent increases are designed to compensate for higher living costs.

Estimating the cost of the subsistence bill at $200,000,000 a year, Taft said he "believes it is justified and

NATION MAY GET 1948 TAX RELIEF

Republicans To Take Issue To People; New Proposal May Be Retroactive

WASHINGTON, July 19.—(AP)—Three senators who helped kill the $400,000,000 income tax reduction said today there still is a good chance that 1948 levies on 49,000,000 federal taxpayers will be reduced.

This opinion was offered in separate interviews by Senators Aiken, Republican, Vermont, Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, and Hatch, Democrat, New Mexico.

But Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, dean of the Senate tax experts and a supporter of the two-fault Republican tax reduction efforts, said he doubted that "any straight income tax reduction measure is possible now."

"I think we have thoroughly killed the bill as far as 1948 is concerned," George, former chairman of the Senate finance committee told a reporter.

"It may be that a general tax revision bill will pass next year. That may reduce some rates but I think a general reduction is dead."

George was one of 10 Democrats who voted with 47 Republicans to override President Truman's second veto of a general tax reduction measure. This 57 total was five votes less than the two-thirds required to write the bill into law because 36 voted to sustain the president, including three Republicans and 33 Democrats.

Chairman Knutson, Republican, Minnesota, of the House ways and means committee, author of the ill-fated $400,000,000 tax cut bill, told a reporter today he has "no plans to press another bill in 1948. I feel the issue should go to the country. But

OUTLAWING OF COMMUNISM HELD UNWISE BY COLMERY

By Richard S. Weil

Despite "the obvious menace to the nation" it would be unwise for the United States government to outlaw the Communist party, in the opinion of one of the country's most prominent Legionnaires.

The statement was made by past National Commander Harry W. Colmery of Topeka, Kansas, in an interview during the 29th annual state Legion convention here.

Colmery said he objected to any action "which would in effect persecute any individual for his political beliefs."

Asked about his attitude toward the provision of the new Taft-Hartley labor law prohibiting Communists or Communist sympathizers from holding office in unions, Colmery declared "it is unsound to force out of

Diplomatic-Military Policies Co-ordinated

Measure Merging War, Navy Cabinet Posts Into Single Secretary Of Defense Sent Back To Senate For Okay

WASHINGTON, July 19.—(AP)—The House passed today a measure to unify the army and navy and to co-ordinate American diplomatic-military policies. It acted after hearing claims the plan will help prevent future "Pearl Harbor" disasters, cut military costs, and curtail inter-service "backbiting."

The action came on a voice vote after nearly eight hours of debate and months of consideration. The measure now goes back to the Senate and, in all probability, ultimately to a joint committee to work out differences between the two Senate and House versions.

As now drafted, the measure would merge the present war and navy cabinet posts into a single secretary of defense, create a powerful, new, policy-making defense council and set up a new department of air.

As Rep. Wilson (D-Tex.) put it: "The bill more properly could be termed a coordination instead of unification measure." Rep. Latham (R-N.Y.) agreed, saying it provided for "unity at the top, but disinclination, multiplication and complexities at the bottom."

Before final passage, the House accepted an amendment to guarantee an ironclad language, navy retention of its air arm—the eyes and advance striking arm of the fleet—both carrier planes and land-based aircraft plus the responsibility for anti-submarine warfare.

Another House amendment requires appointment of a civilian to the $14,000 job as director of the office of central intelligence, to be set up under the bill. Rep. Brown (R-Ohio) said The American people were worried over possibility of a military "super" government.

Scant numerical opposition developed to the measure as a whole. However, some specific provisions in the

'NO WAR DANGER' VOICED BY BEVIN

Hopes Britain Finds Way To Unite America With Russia In Common Cause

MORPETH, Eng., July 19.—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin said today he saw no danger of another war "in this generation," and expressed the hope that Britain would find a way to "unite the United States and Russia in a common endeavor for the uplift of humanity as a whole."

"It is very hard to negotiate with people to whom you are in debt," he added. "When you cannot pay up they feel a bit superior."

The secretary spoke with signs of deep conviction as he said "there is no danger of another war in this generation as far as I can see."

"But in every act you perform, you must keep in mind the children of 30 or 40 years from now."

"Not a day passes, not a moment passes in the job in which I am now engaged without my being fully conscious that a wrong decision, wrong judgment or petulant answer may now condemn a generation."

Bevin referred several times to the role of the United States in the world of the future.

"I hope that the United States will never withdraw from Europe again," he said.

Bevin said Secretary of State Marshall had "laid it down" that if Britain wanted more money "we must not BATAVIA, Java, July 19.—(AP)—The Netherlands government at the Hague was authoritatively reported today to have ordered the breaking off of the two-year negotiations with the Indonesian republic. The Indonesian cabinet, in an emergency session at the Republican capital of Jogjakarta, announced its determination to make no further concessions.

The stage thus appeared set for an outbreak of war, having unexpected last minute developments, at the outset of the Moslem holy month of Ramadan which began today.

OIL MACHINERY REQUEST OPPOSED

Senator Amazed Over State Dept. Request To Complete Russian Shipments

WASHINGTON, July 19.—(AP)—Senator Bridges (R-NH) said today he was "amazed" at a State department request for renewed authority to complete deliveries of oil refinery equipment to Russia under a postwar purchase agreement.

The House eliminated the authority in passing a general foreign aid appropriations bill last night. It stipulated that such agreements could be carried out only with ten countries, not including Russia. It also cut the administration request for the item by $200,000 down to $500,000.

C. Tyler Wood, deputy assistant secretary of state, asked a Senate Appropriations subcommittee to restore the authority to include Russia.

He said the United States had a moral obligation to complete the contract under which Russia agreed to purchase $25,000,000 worth of lend-lease supplies after the war and said most of the supplies have already been delivered.

LIBRARY TAX IS GIVEN SUPPORT

League Of Women Voters Champions Issue; Election Tuesday

The League of Women voters is giving 100 percent support of the proposed one-half mill tax for the support of the Ouachita parish library. Previously they gave similar support in the recent bond election.

Decision to support the proposed tax was made after the members had obtained from Miss Frances Flanders a correct picture of the situation as it exists today. Ouachita Parish, fifth in size in the state, fourth in wealth has the poorest library in Louisiana. It was shown, with an income of $9,488,000 which averages but 16 cents per capita.

Against this is shown the case of Calcasieu parish, which is in size nearer that of Ouachita parish than any other in the state. In this parish $30,000.00 was expended on its library, an average of 54 cents per capita.

Because of insufficient funds it has been impossible to give direct service to the people living outside the cities of Monroe and West Monroe. According to the 1940 Census figures, the population of Ouachita Parish was 59,168. Of this number 22,396 live outside the city limits of Monroe and West Monroe. Thus 37 percent of the people of the parish have had no library service.

The millage of this tax is as small as any in the state. In fact only two other parishes have a one-half mill tax. The taxes of other parish libraries run from one-half to three mills.

If the tax is approved by the voters on July 22, the board of control of the Ouachita Parish public library has promised that the money will be spent to improve library service in

SPEEDY APPROVAL OF GREEK-TURKEY AID FUNDS ASKED

EXPRESS CONCERN OVER SITUATION IN BALKANS

WASHINGTON, July 19.—(AP)—The state department today urged the Senate to speedily approve aid funds for Greece and Turkey, reporting that a guerrilla army is trying to "set up a stooge government by force" in Greece.

Robert A. Lovett, undersecretary of state, told a Senate appropriations subcommittee, that the situation has become more urgent since President Truman first proposed in March to help Greece and Turkey.

In addition to asking the committee to provide the $400,000,000 needed to carry out the Greek-Turkish aid programs on which this country has already embarked, Lovett also urged action on a $322,000,000 foreign relief fund. Both items already have been approved by the House.

In his unusual Saturday afternoon appearance before the committee Lovett reflected growing concern in high official quarters here over the situation in Greece, which under Communist pressure appears to be building up more and more as a crucial test of both the Truman doctrine and the peace-keeping powers of the United Nations.

Indicating that conditions in Greece are more instead of less difficult since

GREECE TO RAISE ARMY STRENGTH

Want Size Boosted To Around 200,000 To Secure Kingdom's Borders

"Much as I am opposed to their philosophy and objectives," Colmery said in reference to Communists, "I am convinced that we must diminish their influence by reason and suasion rather than by coercion."

He admitted, however, that "there is danger in any leadership contrary to the principles of our government," and added that he would be "inclined toward barring Communists

The action came on a voice vote after nearly eight hours of debate and months of consideration. The measure now goes back to the Senate and, in all probability, ultimately to a joint committee to work out differences between the two Senate and House versions.

As now drafted, the measure would merge the present war and navy cabinet posts into a single secretary of defense, create a powerful, new, policy-making defense council and set up a new department of air.

As Rep. Wilson (D-Tex.) put it: "The bill, more properly, could be termed a coordination instead of unification measure." Rep. Latham (R-N.Y.) agreed, saying it provided for "unity at the top, but disunification, multiplication and complexities at the bottom."

Before final passage, the House accepted an amendment to guarantee, an ironclad language, navy retention of its air arm—the eyes and advance striking arm of the fleet—both carrier planes and land-based aircraft plus the responsibility for anti-submarine warfare.

Another House amendment requires appointment of a civilian to the $14,000 job as director of the office of central intelligence to be set up under the bill. Rep. Brown (R-Ohio) said the American people were worried over possibility of a military "super" government.

Scant numerical opposition developed to the measure as a whole. However, some specific provisions in the

Hopes Britain Finds Way To Unite America With Russia In Common Cause

MORPETH, Eng., July 19.—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin said today he saw no danger of another war "in this generation," and expressed the hope that Britain would find a way to "unite the United States and Russia in a common endeavor for the uplift of humanity as a whole."

Speaking extemporaneously at a coal miners' picnic in this northern England town, Bevin took a sober view of Britain's economic difficulties. He said the British policy would be to keep dollar-borrowing to a minimum.

"It is very hard to negotiate with people to whom you are in debt," he added. "When you cannot pay up they feel a bit superior."

The secretary spoke with signs of deep conviction as he said "there is no danger of another war in this generation as far as I can see."

"In every act you perform, you must keep in mind the children of 30 or 40 years from now."

"Not a day passes, not a moment passes in the job in which I am now engaged without my being fully conscious that a wrong decision, wrong judgment or petulant answer may now condemn a generation."

Bevin referred several times to the role of the United States in the world of the future.

"I hope that the United States will never withdraw from Europe again," he said.

Bevin said Secretary of State Marshall had "laid it down" that if Britain wanted more money "we must not

HARPER NAMED COMMITTEE HEAD

Red Cross Group Stresses Need For Additional Blood For Bank Here

Confronted with a rapidly-diminishing supply of blood in the local Red Cross Blood Bank and the urgent necessity of immediately replenishing the supply so that this community may have the protection of this life-giving fluid in every case where transfusion of blood is necessary to save life, the local American Red Cross chapter, through R. M. Tracy, its chairman, has appointed Judge W. M. Harper, member of the Red Cross board and a past chairman of the local chapter, to head a committee to be selected by Judge Harper to serve as a blood donor recruitment service.

Judge Harper stated that in accepting the appointment he wished to publicly point out the seriousness of the situation brought about by the low supply of blood in the local blood bank and that his committee would lend every possible effort to urge volunteers to immediately donate blood so that the blood bank reserve may be increased to an amount deemed safe and proper for a community of this size. At present there are only seven pints of blood in reserve at the blood bank, of all types. This is dangerously low and should the community suffer a serious accident where blood transfusions are necessary, the blood bank could not possibly care for the situation, and there would be the possibility of loss of life awaiting transfusion on after public calls for volunteers.

Appeals for volunteers will be made through the daily press and radio.

The local blood bank was organized under the auspices of the American Red Cross on June 10, 1946. Withdrawals are conducted under the supervision of the Ouachita Parish Public Health Center under direction of Dr. W. C. Summers and Dr. Fred Marx, both of whom have donated their professional services to the operation of the blood bank since its organization. Thus far 400 pints of blood have been donated and 342 persons have been the beneficiaries and it is a known fact that many scores of these persons have been saved from death by this service. No charge is made the patient for blood administered from the blood bank.

Persons in good health are urged immediately to volunteer their blood to this great humanitarian cause. There is no danger to the donor in this procedure. Dr. Summers and Dr. Marx see to it that each donor is carefully examined as to blood pressure and heart condition and questioned as to past health before volunteers are accepted.

Volunteers are urged to report to Mrs. Taunton Veazy, executive secretary of the local Red Cross chapter by calling her at telephone 5780 so that the Red Cross office may make appointments between the volunteers and physicians in charge of withdrawals, thereby avoiding unnecessary delays to both doctors and volunteers at the Health Center where withdrawals are made.

UNEMPLOYMENT PAYMENTS LESS

900 Idle Vets Get $71,744 In June; $80,748 In May

Frank C. Holden, manager of the Monroe office of the Louisiana Division of Employment Security, announces that payments of readjustment allowances to fully self-employed and unemployed World War II veterans and unemployment compensation under the Louisiana Unemployment Compensation Law through the Monroe office during the month of June showed a decline over payments made the previous month. The records of the division show that Monroe was one of the few offices of the state that showed a decline in payments under all of the three programs.

Mr. Holden said that approximately 300 unemployed persons were paid $17,047 in unemployment compensation in June as compared to $21,809 in May, which is a decline of 21 per cent. The records of the division show that there was a slight increase in these payments for the entire state during this period.

Approximately 900 unemployed veterans were paid $71,744 in June as compared to $80,748 paid in May. This is a decline of 10 per cent while the average decline for the state in these payments was 7.5 per cent.

Mr. Holden stated that 789 self-employed veterans received $74,239 in readjustment allowances in June and payments for May were $75,086. The records show that the Monroe office ranked first in the amount of these payments among the 29 local offices of the state.

These payments include those made to eligible claimants in Monroe, Bastrop, Delhi, Rayville, Winnboro and Columbia.

2 ALLEGED RAPISTS HELD IN JAIL HERE

C. W. Holloway, 22, and Charles Hemphill, 23, of the Warsaw community, Madison parish, accused of criminally assaulting a Franklin parish girl last Wednesday night, were brought to Monroe by Sheriff Allen Friday night and placed in Ouachita parish prison to await arraignment in district court at Winnsboro.

Sheriff Price explained he had brought the prisoners here to separate them from Eddie Ezell, 23, held as an "accessory after the fact" after he had admitted he witnessed the attack and did not interfere or notify authorities.

THEY'RE BENEFICIAL

House centipedes, regardless of how you feel about them, are beneficial to man and should be spared, since they prey on injurious insect pests in the house.

Holloway and Hemphill were arrested at Meadville, Miss., where they were said to have fled after the attack.

Winners in the boys' teams who will enter state competition are: Livestock judging, Harold Ray Roberts, James Rogers, Henry McQueen; crops judging, Harold Ray Griggs, Freddie Sims and Bobbie Kilpatrick; dairy judging, Bill Rowe, James McMullin and Buddy Willis.

The group will be in charge of Mrs. Audrey H. Dawson, associate home agent and Norman H. Davis, associate county agent.

IDENTIFY 204 SOLDIER DEAD

Soldiers Buried By Japs As Unknown Are Now Known

Identification of an additional 204 American soldiers who died in the Philippine Islands while confined in a Japanese prisoner of war camp is announced by the war department. The men had previously been listed as unknowns.

The identified soldiers were among a group of approximately 1,600 American prisoners who were buried in the Camp O'Donnell prisoner of war cemetery on Luzon, Philippine Islands. In May 1947, the war department announced that positive identification had been made of 353 other soldiers who were among those buried in the cemetery.

All remains have now been disinterred and reburied in the United States armed forces cemetery Manila No. 2, within the city limits of Manila.

Establishment of the identities of the unknowns was effected in the office of the quartermaster general after more than a year's study of material related to burial of the men. Extensive field work in the Philippine Islands preceded the study. In each case the facts which led to certain identification were passed on by an army board of review before the identity of the unknown was certified as having been established beyond any possible doubt. Major General T. B. Larkin, the quartermaster general of the army, has notified all next of kin concerned.

Evidence obtained from liberated prisoners of war, comparisons of dental charts which were authenticated by a dental corps officer, and records of army officers who survived the period of imprisonment at Camp O'Donnell under the Japanese, proved of value in making certain identification.

Those identified were from the following states and their numbers from each is given as follows: Alabama, 2; Arkansas, 2; California, 9; Colorado, 1; Connecticut, 4; Georgia, 2; Idaho, 3; Illinois, 13; Indiana, 1; Iowa, 4; Kansas, 3; Kentucky, 2; Maine, 2; Maryland, 5; Massachusetts, 3; Michigan, 8; Minnesota, 3; Mississippi, 2; Missouri, 3; Montana, 3; Nebraska, 2; New Hampshire, 1; New Jersey, 2; New Mexico, 15; New York, 13; Oklahoma, 1; Oregon, 7; Rhode Island, 1; Tennessee, 4; Texas, 19; Utah, 3; Vermont, 1; Virginia, 5; Washington, 3; West Virginia, 3; Wisconsin, 7; and Wyoming, 1.

SIMPLE LEASE FORMS FAVORED

Defense Rental Area Director Suggests Their Contents

Simple lease forms that avoid complexities and record only the bare essentials are proving best for the 15 per cent rent increase provided for by the new housing and rent act, according to R. M. McGehee, area rent director of Monroe-Bastrop defense rental area.

"Very simple leases which contain only the items necessary to comply with the new law are being approved by our office every day," he said, "while a good many others are being rejected."

In the six-state region with headquarters at Dallas, fully half the leases thus far examined have been rejected because of one or more provisions which conflict with the new law, he said. Here in Monroe, the score thus far is 73 accepted and 13 rejected, Mr. McGehee said.

In Houston and Dallas where the lowest ratio of approvals existed this week a total of only 10 leases were approved out of 181 submitted to the area rent office. Regional Rent Attorney H. C. Happ explained that low ratio by saying that most of the leases concerned were on so-called standard lease forms commonly offered for sale in quantity. Most such forms, he said, have one or more provisions which conflict with the federal law and so are unacceptable by area rent offices.

Some such unacceptable provisions he listed as follows:

- (1) A covenant by which the landlord could terminate the lease by giving 30 days' notice to the tenant.
- (2) A clause giving the landlord a lien on the tenants' personal property as security for the payment of rent.
- (3) A provision for evicting the tenant without resort to law in case he failed to comply with one of the covenants.
- (4) Using July 1 as the effective date of the lease when the law says they must become effective "after July 1."

Generally, he said, such leases also are unacceptable if they:

- (1) Require the tenant to keep the premises in good repair at his own expense.
- (2) Restrict the occupancy of the premises to a certain number of persons.
- (3) Oblige the tenant to comply with all city ordinances, public health orders, etc., at his own expense.
- (4) Require the tenant to pay attorney fees in case the landlord must resort to court action for eviction.

If such provisions were not in rental arrangements on June 30, under the maximum legal rent, they cannot be added now under the lease arrangement, he said.

As an example of the simple lease which finds acceptance under the new law, Mr. Happ indicated the following which actually was executed on a piece of tablet paper in Dallas: "Dallas, Tex., July 2, 1947. I do grant lease to (name) for (18) eighteen months ending December 31, 1948, the residence at (address) for the sum of $31.75 per month. (Signed) Lessor. This meets with my approval. (Signed) Lessee."

PUBLIC WELFARE SUMS ARE REDUCED

JONESVILLE, La., July 19.—(Special)—Recent $3 reductions in allowances for those of Louisiana's public welfare rolls caused a loss of approximately $2,300 in revenue for Catahoula parish, according to a report from the parish welfare department.

Conrad K. Pearce, director, said $1,545 would be cut from the amount paid in old age assistance, $27 from aid to needy blind and $720 from aid to dependent children.

The state department recently announced $3 cuts in welfare payments to individuals in order to meet its budget for the fiscal year.

During June, 562 persons received assistance from the welfare department. In the old age classification, 436 received $10,174.78 while eight needy blind received $182.53.

Sixty-nine dependent children were given $2,855.09. In the others assistance classification, 49 persons received $676.73.

Total payments in June reached $13,690.03.

Gov. Jimmie Davis extended the invitation and will preside over the conference. Wade is publisher of the Jonesville Booster and the Catahoula News, Harrisonburg, and the Wisner Herald.

CHILD WELFARE MEETING HELD

Views On Juvenile Delinquency Presented To Commission

Numerous proposals for preventing and dealing with juvenile delinquency were offered at a meeting Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the district court room of the parish courthouse. Presiding at the meeting was Judge Chris Barnett of Shreveport, chairman of the state juvenile court commission appointed last December by Governor Jimmie Davis.

Among others present were Judge Frank Voelker of Lake Providence and Mrs. Roger Sharpe of New Orleans, two other members of the commission, Miss Ethel Muse of New Orleans, executive secretary; representatives of school, civic and child welfare groups, attorneys and other interested citizens. Delegates from nearly all of the 14 parishes in the Fifth congressional district were represented.

Judge Voelker described the meeting here as probably the best that had been held in the state, although meetings were held at New Orleans, Shreveport, Baton Rouge, Lake

Charles and Alexandria. Judge Voelker said he was especially pleased at the keen interest shown by those present and by the freedom with which opinions were expressed. The court room was filled with those taking an active part in the discussions.

Among the delegates introduced was Miss Myrtle Rodgers, principal of Georgia Tucker school and president of the League of Women Voters. Miss Rodgers in turn called on representatives of surrounding parishes to present their views.

One of the principal themes stressed was that the juvenile delinquency problem should be attacked much more vigorously from a preventive standpoint, although it was conceded there was still plenty to do in the field of rescue work. Most of those present cited the need for more trained workers.

Several of the delegates spoke strongly in favor of city ordinances which would prohibit midnight picture shows, their contention being that bobby soxers and young boys get into trouble after attending movies late at night.

All of the recommendations made at the meeting here, as well as at the other meetings, were taken on a recording device. Later all the recommendations and discussion will be re-run, analyzed and taken into consideration by the commission. From this digest, the commission will decide upon legislative recommendations to be made to the 1948 legislature. This action is being taken, in accordance with a request made by Governor Davis when he named the commission to study the needs of children in trouble. Members of the commission who did not attend the meeting here were W. S. Terry of Baton Rouge, and Dean Elizabeth Wisner of New Orleans.

GALE-DAMAGED LIGHT LINES ARE REPAIRED

The brisk windstorm that preceded Friday night's downpour was responsible for two hours of darkness for the area between Auburn and Louisville avenues and the river and North Ninth street.

A blown-down tree at Auburn and Third fell across and snapped off a main city power line, carrying 2,300 volts, and lights were off in that area until the break was repaired by an emergency crew.

Falling limbs broke service lines in other sections of the city causing blackouts for individual homes and neighborhoods but practically all the damage had been repaired by midnight. Utilities Commissioner W. D. H. Rodriguez said yesterday.

The head and neck of a giraffe make up about one-sixth of the animal's total weight.

SIMPLE LEASE FORMS FAVORED

Defense Rental Area Director Suggests Their Contents

Simple lease forms that avoid complexities and record only the barest essentials are proving best for the 15 per cent rent increase provided for by the new housing and rent act, according to R. M. McGehee, area rent director of Monroe-Bastrop defense rental area.

"Very simple leases which contain only the items necessary to comply with the new law are being approved by our office every day," he said. "While a good many others are being rejected."

In the six-state region with headquarters at Dallas, fully half the leases thus far examined have been rejected because of one or more provisions which conflict with the new law, he said. Here in Monroe, the score thus far is 78 accepted and 13 rejected, Mr. McGehee said.

In Houston and Dallas where the lowest ratio of approvals existed this week a total of only 10 leases were approved out of 181 submitted to the area rent office. Regional Rent Attorney H. C. Hupp explained that low ratio by saying that most of the leases concerned were on so-called standard lease forms commonly offered for sale in quantity. Most such forms, he said, have one or more provisions which conflict with the federal law and so are unacceptable by area rent offices.

Some such unacceptable provisions he listed as follows:

(1) A covenant by which the landlord could terminate the lease by giving 30 days' notice to the tenant.

(2) A clause giving the landlord a lien on the tenants' personal property as security for the payment of rent.

(3) A provision for evicting the tenant without resort to law in case he failed to comply with one of the covenants.

(4) Using July 1 as the effective date of the lease when the law says they must become effective "after July 1."

Generally, he said, such leases also are unacceptable if they:

(1) Require the tenant to keep the premises in good repair at his own expense.

(2) Restrict the occupancy of the premises to a certain number of persons.

(3) Oblige the tenant to comply with all city ordinances, public health orders, etc., at his own expense.

(4) Require the tenant to pay attorney fees in case the landlord must resort to court action for eviction.

If such provisions were not in rental arrangements on June 30, under the maximum legal rent, they cannot be added now under the lease arrangement, he said.

As an example of the simple lease which finds acceptance under the new law, Mr. Hupp indicated the following which actually was executed on a piece of tablet paper in Dallas: "Dallas, Tex., July 2, 1947. I do grant lease to (name) for (18) eighteen months ending December 31, 1948, the residence at (address) for the sum of $31.75 per month. (Signed) lessor. This meets with my approval. (Signed) lessee."

PUBLIC WELFARE SUMS ARE REDUCED

JONESVILLE, La., July 19.—(Special)—Recent $3 reductions in allowances for those of Louisiana's public welfare rolls caused a loss of approximately $2,300 in revenue for Catahoula parish, according to a report from the parish welfare department.

Conrad K. Pearce, director, said $1,545 would be cut from the amount paid in old age assistance; $27 from aid to needy blind and $720 from aid to dependent children.

The state department recently announced $3 cuts in welfare payments to individuals in order to meet its budget for the fiscal year.

During June, 562 persons received assistance from the welfare department. In the old age classification, 436 received $10,174.78 while eight needy blind received $182.53.

Sixty-nine dependent children were given $2,835.09. In the others assistance classification, 49 persons received $676.73.

Total payments in June reached $12,890.03.

CHILD WELFARE MEETING HELD

Views On Juvenile Delinquency Presented To Commission

Numerous proposals for preventing and dealing with juvenile delinquency were offered at a meeting Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the district court room of the parish courthouse. Presiding at the meeting was Judge Chris Barnette of Shreveport, chairman of the state juvenile court commission appointed last December by Governor Jimmie Davis.

Among others present were Judge Frank Voelker of Lake Providence and Mrs. Roger Sharpe of New Orleans, two other members of the commission, Miss Ethel Muse of New Orleans, executive secretary; representatives of school, civic and child welfare groups, attorneys and other interested citizens. Delegates from nearly all of the 14 parishes in the Fifth congressional district were represented.

Judge Voelker described the meeting here as probably the best that had been held in the state, although meetings were held at New Orleans, Shreveport, Baton Rouge, Lake

Charles and Alexandria. Judge Voelker said he was especially pleased at the keen interest shown by those present and by the freedom with which opinions were expressed. The court room was filled with those taking an active part in the discussions.

Among the delegates introduced was Miss Myrtle Rodgers, principal of Georgia Tucker school and president of the League of Women Voters. Miss Rodgers in turn called on representatives of surrounding parishes to present their views.

One of the principal themes stressed was that the juvenile delinquency problem should be attacked much more vigorously from a preventive standpoint, although it was conceded there was still plenty to do in the field of rescue work. Most of those present cited the need for more trained workers.

Several of the delegates spoke strongly in favor of city ordinances which would prohibit midnight picture shows, their contention being that bobby soxers and young boys get into trouble after attending movies late at night.

All of the recommendations made at the meeting here, as well as at the other meetings, were taken on a recording device. Later all the recommendations and discussion will be re-run, analyzed and taken into consideration by the commission. From this digest, the commission will decide upon legislative recommendations to be made to the 1948 legislature. This action is being taken in accordance with a request made by Governor Davis when he named the commission to study the needs of children in trouble. Members of the commission who did not attend the meeting here were W. S. Terry of Baton Rouge and Dean Elizabeth Wisner of New Orleans.

GALE-DAMAGED LIGHT LINES ARE REPAIRED

The brisk windstorm that preceded Friday night's downpour was responsible for two hours of darkness for the area between Auburn and Louisville avenues and the river and North Ninth street.

A blown-down tree at Auburn and Third fell across and snapped off a main city power line, carrying 2,300 volts, and lights were off in that area until the break was repaired by an emergency crew.

Falling limbs broke service lines in other sections of the city causing blackouts for individual homes and neighborhoods but practically all the damage had been repaired by midnight. Utilities Commissioner W. D. H. Rodriguez said yesterday.

The head and neck of a giraffe make up about one-sixth of the animal's total weight.

The Convention Ends

The record-breaking 29th convention of the Louisiana Department of the American Legion comes to an end today. The final session will be held today with the election of officers for the coming year the highlight of the last meeting, and then the thousands of delegates and visitors will head for home.

It has been a most constructive convention. The department has planned an ambitious program embodying the aims and ideals for which the Legion has stood for many years. And if the past record of the Legion means anything, this program will be pursued to a successful conclusion. As the years go by, more and more individual Legionnaires have taken an active interest and participation in the various worthy projects which the department sponsors and more and more Legionnaires have attended the convention business sessions. The annual convention now is considered the time and place for constructive planning and not just an occasion to get away from home and have a good time.

The Monroe convention was marked by an unprecedented suggestion by a national vice-commander, Richard C. Cadwallader urged that the Legion as an organization take an active hand in political movements on local, state and national levels. He recommended that "when elections are held for police jurors, school board members, state legislators, congressmen or any other public position, committees should examine the candidates and inform the post and the public of their (the candidates') stand."

Undoubtedly the individual Legionnaire should take an active interest in political and governmental affairs, but whether or not the Legion as an organization should back any one candidate is a debatable question which will be argued pro and con for many moons. We can remember when the mention of the word "politics" at a Legion meeting meant that the speaker would be figuratively thrown out on his ear. We have little fear that the state or national organizations will approve this suggestion at any future date.

We have heard it remarked on the streets that this has been a "quiet" convention. These same persons who were a bit apprehensive before the delegates arrived, recalling Legion conventions of years ago, now seem just a little disappointed that no cows have been led through hotel lobbies, no water tossed from hotel windows, no crap games held on street corners, etc., etc. There has been a minimum of tipping and no rowdiness whatsoever. Yes, it's been a "quiet" convention in that respect, and that is as it should be.

Monroe is pleased to have had the opportunity to play host to the department convention, and we will look forward to the next time this city is chosen to entertain the Legion and its Auxiliary.

BLOOD NEEDED

A plea for volunteer blood donors to stock the local blood bank has been issued by the local chapter of the American Red Cross, through the chairman of the blood committee, Judge W. M. Harper.

Judge Harper states that there are now only seven pints of blood in the local bank. This is a woefully inadequate supply. The usual number of transfusions will exhaust this supply in a short time, and if a serious accident involving several persons should occur which would require a number of transfusions, there would not be enough blood available.

Judge Harper points out that no charge is made for blood obtained from the Red Cross blood bank, and further assures those who volunteer their blood that they will be given a thorough examination by competent physicians to prevent any ill effects to the donor.

The situation here requires the immediate cooperation of the public and it is hoped that the Red Cross blood bank can be built up to a safe capacity in the near future.

SEEKING BIG NAMES

Columbia University's offer of its presidency to General Eisenhower, and its acceptance by him, follows a trend often practiced by big business.

Some firms like to get a "big name" as president or at least as a member of the board of directors. Magazines like to sign up ex-presidents to write articles. At least two ex-presidents in the last 25 years have received board of director jobs and many famous army men or government figures have turned to business positions.

Sometimes these "big names" are mere figureheads, but now and then one pitches in and makes the wheels of industry hum.

Some of the nation's universities are becoming so large a man with great organizing ability is required to administer them. A long line of degrees behind an educator's name does not necessarily mean he has the ability to organize, maintain peace in the family and cope with the political and business leaders he must of necessity deal with as head of a huge institution.

Of course, there are educators who meet these requirements and there are others who, although bearcats on knowledge, are jokes as presidents of their institutions.

Columbia was guided for decades by Nicholas Murray Butler, a grandstander if there ever was one, who made himself a "big name" as head of the school. He could dig up endorsements by the millions and keep the school constantly in the limelight as a leading educational institution.

The educator has not been crowded out, but it will not be surprising if some more "big names" crop up in educational circles.

Jimmie Fidler IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, July 19.—DEAR STAFF: On one of the sets at MGM yesterday, I heard a group of extras amusing themselves, between scenes, by "envying" top-flight stars. "I'd settle for Crosby's luck," sighed one, "Everything that guy touches turns to gold." Another one pined for a paycheck like Van Johnson's; still another picked Clark Gable's shoes as the ones he'd like to wear.

Well, there's no denying that Bing and Van and Clark have all had enviable careers, but kiddies, being naturally inclined to a life of idleness, I can think of another star whose lot has been blisful enough to make me see green. His name is Johnny Weissmuller, and he must have been born with a rabbit's foot in his mouth.

Think of it: that big palooka has averaged about 150 grand per year, for fifteen years, by doing nothing more than to climb a few studio trees, swim a few studio ponds, and pound his chest while emitting a blood-curdling yodel! Study dialogue lines? Heck no, not Johnny! He doesn't need to study dialogue because Tarzan, the Lord of the Jungle, no spikier English. Report for interminable wardrobe fittings and tests? Don't be silly; Tarzan doesn't go in for elaborate wardrobes. And neither does Tarzan indulge in subtle emoting; he's strictly a muscle man.

And the real beauty of it all, kiddies, lies in the security that the job offers. Johnny is so thoroughly established as the one and only, gilded, genuine Grade-A Ape Man that no producer in his proper senses would even dream of casting another actor in the role. Why, that would be as rank an imposition as it would have been to present late W. C. Fields with a sarsaparilla.

In my next incarnation, I don't want to be bothered with silly, perishable fripperies like annuities, diamond mines or municipal bonds. I just want to be the guy who plays Tarzan—like Johnny Weissmuller.

JIMMIE (Frankly Envious) FIDLER.

DEAR BOSS: Well, thank heaven, you've finally put our minds at ease. You've no idea how we've worried about your constant muscle-flexing and the gurgling cries that have been ringing out in your ear from sound-proof office. Incidentally, while waiting for getting out on limbs shouldn't need to practice climbing trees.

Meanwhile, bend an ear: Kathleen Winsor and Artie Shaw have agreed to forget that "forever" stuff. She'll soon be residing in Reno for the well-known reason. . . . The

By PETER EDSON

(NEA Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — The "If-dozens high-minded senators who have just introduced a resolution to aid peace by strengthening the UN are indubitably headed in the right direction. But they may be on the wrong track. What seems to be needed is another international organization to go along with the ECANDSOC Council, UNRRA, UNESCO, FAO, ICAO, WHO, ITO and ILO. If this last-mentioned set of pronounceable initials were not spoken for by the International Labor Organization, it might do for a new International Love Organization. But since ILO is taken, the next best suggestion is UNILO. It has a nice, Chinese-sounding name and it's just right. United Nations Love Organization. To Unite the World by Love.

This idea was prompted by what happened in London last week when they announced the engagement of Princess Elizabeth to Philip Mountbatten. When the glad tidings were announced, the crowds gathered around Buckingham Palace were happier than they had been at any time since before the war. Were the British hungry? No matter, here was Love. Were they running out of dollar credits? Who cared? Were their clothes a bit on the shabby side? What of it? Love was still grand.

Something Old, Something Older
What matter if it would take a year's clothes rationing points to get the princess a new bridal gown? Victory wedding dress and probably Queen Mary's trousseau could be brought down from that old trunk up in the Buckingham attic. Get them out, cut them down, make them over. What Princess Elizabeth here proved was that Love has a way of making even world troubles disappear. And if there is anything the world needs today, it is to forget its troubles.

In the good old days they never had to bother about coal production, export controls, wool tariffs or economic conferences. When trouble loomed, the kings got together and made a match between their eligible sons and daughters. That fixed everything.

True, this formula didn't work so well in the cases of the Belgian princess who married the Italian crown prince, nor the Italian princess who married the Bulgarian king, nor even the Egyptian princess who married the royal highness who used to be called the Shah of what used to be called Persia.

But that's all the more reason to set up a United Nations Love Organization on a bigger and better business basis.

The GI's did their best to bring peace to the world by marrying girls they met in England, Scotland, France, Italy, Iceland, Australia or wherever they went, and bringing them here for keeps. But what's needed is more love at the higher levels. Whatever became of Stalin's son? Hasn't Molotov a daughter? Can't the British or the French arrange a match and substitute lace for iron in the curtains when they set up house-keeping?

Off The "Cold" Standard
To support a United Nations Love Organization, each country could be asked to contribute a pro rata share of its national love wealth. Since the United States has Hollywood, it would probably have to pay the most. Russia would have an inducement to join because it could get in without cost. Russia doesn't love anybody and what love they do have in the communist state is said to be free. Okay, Russia could loan-lead them a billion kisses and they could pay us back 50 years from next Valentine's day.

A little more Love in the domestic picture might help, too. There's an election coming up. There ought to be a lot more love planks in both party platforms.

Consider the infinite possibilities of this thing. Here the Congress has just passed a new law making Republican Speaker Joe Martin No. 2 in line for the White House throne. And the crown prince of North Attleboro is a bachelor.

What kind of business is this? If the United States is to have a bipartisan foreign policy, steps should be taken at once to find a Democratic bride for the Republican heir apparent.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture: Proverbs 1:1-5; 3:12-18; 9:9-10; James 1:5

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

It is one thing to praise and commend wisdom, but quite another thing to practice it. And the most unwise thing that can happen is to abandon wisdom once you have found it.

This is forcefully illustrated in the history of King Solomon, reputedly the author of the Book of Proverbs, and reputedly "the wisest man who ever lived."

At least two great and noble incidents are recorded of Solomon, and all his life and action had been in accordance with these he would surely have deserved the fullest of his reputation for wisdom.

The one incident was the dream, recorded in 1 Kings 3:5-12, in which, asked to choose whatever he desired from the Lord, he spoke in deep humility and asked above all things for an understanding heart to exercise good judgment, and rule his people well.

But the other outstanding incident was his prayer at the dedication of the Temple, recorded in 1 Kings 8, and among the noblest and most

Burl Ives' are expecting a little "balladeer" come January. . . . We hear Pat Dane got a cool quarter of a million bucks in her property settlement with Tommy Dorsey. . . . That tantalizing Terpsichore, Marc Platt, has to check in at Mayo Clinic for treatment and possible surgery for a leg ailment, before he and the missus tell it to the judge. . . . Somebody might tell Bob Slack to quit worrying about any of the Hollywoods stealing his heart, Irene McEvoy, while he's doing summer stock in the East. The boys aren't likely to be very interested if she continues to show up, at swank Sunset Strip bistros wearing a gingham dress and house slippers. . . . Lady Luck: Sonja Henie, who's already in the money up to her ears, struck oil on her 1,700 acre ranch near Oceanside, California.

Wee Bonnie Baker's marriage to Assistant Director Holly Morse hit sour note, and the little singer will seek a divorce. . . . Ha! Twentieth Century-Fox has recalled the film version of the famous Oliphant classic, "Bob, Son of Battle," for a new title. Seems the customers were staying away in droves because they thought it was another war story. Chuckle, chuckles, Boss. We remember when you thought "Young Man With a Horn" was going to be the life story of Jimmy Durante. . . .

That was a nice thing the crew of "Roughshod" did for Jeff Donnell, to help her celebrate her birthday on location high up in the Sierras. She was awakened in the morning by the voices of her husband and two kids singing "Happy Birthday." It was a record. The crew had arranged for her family to make the transcription in Hollywood and send it to the location set by plane.

Oscar Levant's contract to make two pictures a year for Warner Brothers has not been renewed for 1948. Oscar wanted more money, but the Warners turned thumbs down. . . . Look for singer Mildred Bailey and her estranged husband, Bandaman Red Norvo, to play a return engagement at the altar almost any day now. . . . Doctors ordered Dinah Shore to cancel her annual Montana vacation for fear she may lose her expected baby. . . . Every morning, Joan Crawford receives a louie daisy from some admirer, on the set of "Daisy Kenyon."

Compared with all those jewels and furs "Red" Barry gave her, this guy looks like a cheap skate. But maybe he's just playing it smart, Boss. You know, daisies won't tell.

IN WASHINGTON

By Leslie Carpenter

WASHINGTON—The newly-named commanding general of the fourth army—friendly, soft-spoken General Thomas Troy Hardy—has no plans for making immediate changes in the big command which encompasses Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

"I am not a man who rushes in and changes things just for the pleasure of changing them," the four-star general said in a southern drawl which has occasional traces of a western twang.

Hardy, 55, has had a remarkable minimum of publicity to have been such an important part of the army's top command for so long. The explanation is probably his modesty and quiet nature. He has served as deputy chief of staff to Generals George C. Marshall and Dwight D. Eisenhower since October, 1944. Before that he headed the operations division of the war department general staff for two years.

Appointed to succeed General Jonathan M. Wainwright as commanding general of the fourth army, Hardy said that he does not think he will arrive at his new headquarters at Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio until late September.

He will hold his present high office until General Eisenhower returns from a trip to Alaska in late August. Then Hardy will take a long-earned month's furlough before going to "the city and state I've always wanted to see more of."

Hardy has been stationed in San Antonio twice, but both periods were short. The last time was in 1921.

The only other service Hardy has had in the fourth army area previously was being stationed there three times at the Fort Sill, Okla., field artillery school, which he says he also enjoyed.

Hardy said he had received a nice letter from Wainwright, and had replied that "I don't know how folks are going to feel about an ordinary garden variety of officer replacing giving him any. There are, as everybody beyond the age of 12, knows, people who never should touch alcohol in any form whatever. The child in the house may be one of them, for all anybody knows about it. Why train a child to want what he would be better off without ever touching?"

Children should not be fed by anyone other than their own mothers. Only an emergency excuses anyone from that rule. A child's diet should be held sacred because on it his health, his growth, his whole future depends. Let his mother feed him. She will know when to give him a treat and how best to do it without harming him. Making food and drink a treat is bad practice because eating and drink should be routine matters, especially for children.

OUR CHILDREN

BITES AND SIPS

Affectionate parents and relatives like to make the children happy and one way of doing so, they believe, is to share the good things that they have to eat or drink with them. It isn't good idea.

Children do not need the things grown people enjoy—like rich sweets, highly seasoned meats, heavy desserts (as plum puddings in brandy.) They do not need and should not have any strong drink. No alcohol should be given children without a physician's order and that order seldom will be given. It is no kindness to children to give them tips and sips of the grown folk's dainties.

It is very trying on a mother's patience to see a fond papa call a child to his side and offer him a bit of rich food when she has worked like a beaver to provide, cook and serve the food the child should have. She has carefully trained him to eat his food as it is served and here is his father undoing her hard-won success. Is he to be blamed?

When a child takes richly favored food he forms a taste for it and begins refusing the less highly seasoned and flavored food his mother provides. He begins fussing about what he eats. Instead of taking eating as a routine affair, now he demands cakes, cookies, sweets, pop and the like at odd times of the day and his mother has a food problem added to her other cares. It is not fair to the child nor his mother.

That is bad enough in all conscience, but what is one to say about the fond relative who offers, even coaxingly, a sip of his cocktail, and says "See, he likes it. What harm can a sip do?"

It can do plenty of harm and no grown-up person should be guilty of taking such a chance of harming a child. No healthy child wants or enjoys strong drink, and that includes beer. There is nothing funny about

Dear Sir:

When Sheila Mannering was found naked and dead in her 57th Street apartment some days back, your paper referred to her as "an actress."

Aren't you getting a little careless? The Webster next to your head copyreader's elbow defines a person's occupation as "the thing that primarily takes up his time, thought and energies." Well, what part of Miss Mannering's time, thought and energies did she devote to "e" theatre? Not one of your stories about this lady listed a single stage or movie production in which she had appeared.

If Sheila Mannering was an actress, then I am Lt. Philip Mountbatten!

Miss Mannering may have told her landlady or her 300 boy friends she was in the theatre or the cinema—but your reporters must have known this was window trimming. How come, then, that your dignified sheet resorted to the eye-catching, paper-selling word—"ACTRESS?"

I can understand the flashy tabs playing up to their hot-eyed readers that way. But the Times, sir, is the Times. And when you stoop to journalistic jabberwocky, it's like Anthony Eden doing the Lindy Hop.

Why all the steam under my Stetson? I'll tell you why.

When an editor is too scared of the libel laws to name a lady's real occupation, he usually takes the easy out of labelling her an "actress."

It all feeds the stale legend that showfolks are naughtier than ordinary folks.

Well, it ain't so. The sock and buskin kids may have their wacky moments—praise Allah—but they're no police problem. They belong to unions, go to church, take their kids to the zoo Sunday afternoons, and squawk about their mothers-in-law. They average about the same percentage of thinkers, drinkers and stinkers as other folks. In other words, they're people.

How about Hollywood and its love nests, dope dens and lost week ends? Malarky! Hundred-word, double-dip journalistic malarky! I've been to Hollywood many times. It's damn near the sleepiest and dullest village of its size I know. And why not, when the breadwinners have to get up at six in the morning to go to work?

Why is Hollywood in the newspapers so much? You know. What other town of its size has 400 regularly assigned correspondents digging for dirt? The story about Susie Silver-screen that makes page one wouldn't rate two inches in page 14 if she were in the insurance business.

Besides morals clauses in their contracts, the movie stars are under the camera. Actors most film people under control. Actors are too ambitious and too prudent to let the talefale lines of bad habits cut their earning power. Unlike most of us, they can't even afford such minor vices as overeating.

Leo Rosten, in his carefully documented book about the movie colony, states that 76 per cent of the marriages out there have been for keeps. Compare that with the national divorce rate.

As for chorus and show girls in theatres and cabarets, I think that, by and large, their behavior compares pretty well with that of the girls behind typewriters, switchboards and ribbon counters. Show business kids get pretty fair salaries these days, and I think you'll agree that the best protection against the low wolf whistle is a few bucks in milady's purse.

This business of labelling every tootsie an actress is as corny as picturing every newspaperman with a battered hat and a pair of hollow legs. It's partly a hangover from the fanatics of a day of Oliver Cromwell, when merely being of the theatre was reason for being a traitor. It's partly, too, the desire of editors to glamorize gritty little stories and sell out the edition. But it all adds up to bad reporting, not unlike that of certain left-wing papers which call every conservative a "Fascist," and certain right-wing papers which call every liberal a "Red!"

Here's hoping that one of the world's greatest newspapers refrains in the future from confusing a lot of pretty nice people with tramps and trollops.

Sincerely,
CONSTANT READER.

HARD-SURFACING WORK WILL BEGIN

JONESVILLE, La., July 19.—(Special)—Field surveys on the hard surfacing of the Jonesville-Harrisonburg road have been completed and P. A. Frye, director of the Louisiana highway department, stated that work probably will get underway within the next few months.

Soil borings on the project are practically complete, Frye wrote State Representative G. C. Womack, and plans on the project are well advanced. After final plans are completed, additional rights of way must be obtained and then the project advertised for a bid.

The road is a vital link between Jonesville, largest town in Catahoula parish, and Harrisonburg, the parish capital. The project, which will include a new bridge across Brushy Bayou, will cost nearly one million dollars.

The Convention Ends

The record-breaking 29th convention of the Louisiana Department of the American Legion comes to an end today. The final session will be held today with the election of officers for the coming year the highlight of the last meeting, and then the thousands of delegates and visitors will head for home.

It has been a most constructive convention. The department has planned an ambitious program embodying the aims and ideals for which the Legion has stood for many years. And if the past record of the Legion means anything, this program will be pursued to a successful conclusion. As the years go by, more and more individual Legionnaires have taken an active interest and participation in the various worthy projects which the department sponsors and more and more Legionnaires have attended the convention business sessions. The annual convention now is considered the time and place for constructive planning and not just an occasion to get away from home and have a good time.

The Monroe convention was marked by an unprecedented suggestion by a national vice-commander, Richard C. Cadwallader urged that the Legion as an organization take an active hand in political movements on local, state and national levels. He recommended that "when elections are held for police jurors, school board members, state legislators, congressmen or any other public position, committees should examine the candidates and inform the post and the public of their (the candidates') stand."

Undoubtedly the individual Legionnaire should take an active interest in political and governmental affairs, but whether or not the Legion as an organization should back any one candidate is a debatable question which will be argued pro and con for many moons. We can remember when the mention of the word "politics" at a Legion meeting meant that the speaker would be figuratively thrown out on his ear. We have little fear that the state or national organizations will approve this suggestion at any future date.

We have heard it remarked on the streets that this has been a "quiet" convention. These same persons who were a bit apprehensive before the delegates arrived, recalling Legion conventions of years ago, now seem just a little disappointed that no cows have been led through hotel lobbies, no water tossed from hotel windows, no crap games held on street corners, etc., etc. There has been a minimum of tipping and no rowdiness whatsoever. Yes, it's been a "quiet" convention in that respect, and that is as it should be.

Monroe is pleased to have had the opportunity to play host to the department convention, and we will look forward to the next time this city is chosen to entertain the Legion and its Auxiliary.

BLOOD NEEDED

A plea for volunteer blood donors to stock the local blood bank has been issued by the local chapter of the American Red Cross, through the chairman of the blood committee, Judge W. M. Harper.

Judge Harper states that there are now only seven pints of blood in the local bank. This is a woefully inadequate supply. The usual number of transfusions will exhaust this supply in a short time, and if a serious accident involving several persons should occur which would require a number of transfusions, there would not be enough blood available.

Judge Harper points out that no charge is made for blood obtained from the Red Cross blood bank, and further assures those who volunteer their blood that they will be given a thorough examination by competent physicians to prevent any ill effects to the donor.

The situation here requires the immediate cooperation of the public and it is hoped that the Red Cross blood bank can be built up to a safe capacity in the near future.

SEEKING BIG NAMES

Columbia University's offer of its presidency to General Eisenhower, and its acceptance by him, follows a trend often practiced by big business.

Some firms like to get a "big name" as president or at least as a member of the board of directors. Magazines like to sign up ex-presidents to write articles. At least two ex-presidents in the last 25 years have received board of director jobs and many famous army men or government figures have turned to business positions.

Sometimes these "big names" are mere figureheads, but now and then one pitches in and makes the wheels of industry hum.

Some of the nation's universities are becoming so large a man with great organizing ability is required to administer them. A long line of degrees behind an educator's name does not necessarily mean he has the ability to organize, maintain peace in the family and cope with the political and business leaders he must of necessity deal with as head of a huge institution.

Of course, there are educators who meet these requirements and there are others who, although bearded on knowledge, are jokes as presidents of their institutions.

Columbia was guided for decades by Nicholas Murray Butler, a grandstander if there ever was one, who made himself a "big name" as head of the school. He could dig up endowments by the millions and keep the school constantly in the limelight as a leading educational institution.

The educator has not been crowded out, but it will not be surprising if some more "big names" crop up in educational circles.

Jimmie Fidler IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, July 19.—DEAR STAFF: On one of the sets at MGM yesterday, I heard a group of extras amusing themselves, between scenes, by "envying" top-flight stars. "I'd settle for Crosby's luck," sighed one. "Everything that guy touches turns to gold." Another one pined for a paycheck like Van Johnson's; still another picked Clark Gable's shoes as the ones he'd like to wear.

Well, there's no denying that Bing and Van and Clark have all had enviable careers, but kiddies, being naturally inclined to a life of indolent security, I can think of another star whose lot has been blissful enough to make me see green. His name is Johnny Weissmuller, and he must have been born with a rabbit's foot in his mouth.

Think of it: that big palooka has averaged about 150 grand per year, for fifteen years, by doing nothing more than to climb a few studio trees, swim a few studio ponds, and pound his chest while emitting blood-curdling yodels! Study dialogue lines? Heck no, not Johnny! He doesn't need to study dialogue because Tarzan, the Lord of the Jungle, no spikee English. Report for interminable wardrobe fittings and tests? Don't be silly; Tarzan doesn't go in for elaborate wardrobes. And neither does Tarzan indulge in subtle emoting; he's strictly a muscle man.

And the real beauty of it, all kiddies, lies in the security that the job offers. Johnny is so thoroughly established as the one and only, gilled, genuine Grade-A Ape Man that no producer in his proper senses would even dream of casting another actor in the role. Why, that would be as rank an imposition as it would have been to present late W. C. Fields with a sarsaparilla.

In my next incarnation, I don't want to be bothered with silly, perishable fripperies like annuities, diamond mines or municipal bonds. I just want to be the guy who plays Tarzan—like Johnny Weissmuller.

JIMMIE (Frankly Envious) FIDLER.

DEAR BOSS: Well, thank heaven, you've finally put our minds at ease. You've no idea how we've worried about your constant muscle-flexing and the gurgling cries that have been ringing out in your far from sound-proof office. Incidentally, a man with your genius for getting out on limbs shouldn't need to practice climbing trees.

Meanwhile, bend an ear: Kathleen Winsor and Artie Shaw have agreed to forget that "forever" stuff. She'll soon be residing in Reno for the well-known reason. . . . The Burl Ives' are expecting a little "balladeer" come January. . . . We hear Pat Dane got a cool quarter of a million bucks in her property settlement with Tummy Dorsey. . . . That tantalizing Terpsichore, Marc Platt, has to check in at Mayo Clinic for treatment and possible surgery for a leg ailment, before he and the missus tell it to the judge. . . . Somebody might tell Bob Slack to quit worrying about any of the Hollywood stealing his heart, Irene McEwen, while he's doing summer stock in the East. The boys aren't likely to be very interested if she continues to show up at swank Sunset Strip bistros wearing a gingham dress and house slippers. . . . Lady Luck: Sonja Henie, who's already in the money up to her ears, struck oil on her 1,700 acre ranch near Oceanside, California.

Well, Bonnie Baker's marriage to Assistant Director Holly Morse hit a sour note, and the little singer will seek a divorce. . . . Hal Twentieth Century-Fox has recalled the film version of the famous Oliphant classic, "Bob, Son of Battle," for a new title. Seems the customers were staying away in droves because they thought it was another war story. Chuck the chuckles, Boss. We remember when you thought "Young Man With a Horn" was going to be the life story of Jimmy Durante. . . .

That was a nice thing the crew of "Roughshod" did for Jeff Donnell, to help him celebrate his birthday on location high up in the Sierras. She was awakened in the morning by the voices of her husband and two kids singing "Happy Birthday." It was a record. The crew had arranged for her family to make the transcription in Hollywood and send it to the location set by plane.

Cesar Levant's contract to make two pictures a year for Warner Brothers has not been renewed for 1948. Oscar wanted more money, but the Warners turned thumbs down. . . . You'll be glad to hear that Richard Dix's heart attack was not too serious. . . . Look for singer Mildred Bailey and her estranged husband, Bandman Red Norvo, to play a return engagement at the altar almost any day now. . . . Doctors ordered Dinah Shore to cancel her annual Montana vacation for fear she may lose her expected baby. . . . Every morning, Joan Crawford receives a lone daisy from some admirer, on the set of "Daisy Kenyon." Compared with all those jewels and furs "Red" Barry gave her, this guy looks like a cheapskate. But maybe he's just playing it smart, Boss. You know, daisies won't tell.

(NEA Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — The "If-dozen high-minded senators who have just introduced a resolution to aid peace by strengthening the UN are indubitably headed in the right direction. But they may be on the wrong track.

What seems to be needed is another international organization to go along with the ECandSOC Council, UNRRA, UNESCO, FAO, ICAO, WHO, ITO and ILO. If this last-mentioned set of pronounceable initials were not spoken for by the International Labor Organization, it might do for a new International Love Organization. But since ILO is taken, the next best suggestion is UNILO. It is just a name, but it is a name that has a nice, romantic sound to it and is just right. United Nations Love Organization. To unite the World by Love.

This idea was prompted by what happened in London last week when they announced the engagement of Princess Elizabeth to Philip Mountbatten. When the glad tidings were announced, the crowds gathered around Buckingham Palace and were happier than they had been in any time since before the war. Were the British hungry? No matter, here was Love. Were they running out of dollar credits? Who cared? Were their clothes a bit on the shabby side? What of it? Love was still grand.

Something Old, Something Older
What matter if it would take a year's clothes rationing points to get the princess a new bridal gown? Victoria's wedding dress and probably Queen Mary's trousseau could be brought down from that old trunk up in the Buckin'am h-attic. Get them out, cut them down, make them over.

What Princess Elizabeth here proved was that Love has a way of making even world troubles disappear. And if there is anything the world needs today, it is to forget its troubles.

In the good old days they never had to bother about coal production, export controls, wool tariffs or economic conferences. When trouble loomed, the kings got together and made a match between their eligible sons and daughters. That fixed everything.

True, this formula didn't work so well in the cases of the Belgian princess who married the Italian crown prince, nor the Italian princess who married the Bulgarian king, nor even the Egyptian princess who married the royal highness who used to be called the Shah of what used to be called Persia.

But that's all the more reason to set up a United Nations Love Organization on a bigger and better business basis.

The GI's did their best to bring peace to the world by marrying girls they met in England, Scotland, France, Italy, Iceland, Australia or wherever they went, and bringing them here for keeps. But what's needed is more love at the higher levels. Whatever became of Stalin's son? Hasn't Molotov a daughter? Can't the British or the French arrange a match and substitute lace for iron in the curtains when they set up house-keeping?

Off The "Cold" Standard

To support a United Nations Love Organization, each country could be asked to contribute a pro rata share of its total love life. Since the United States has Hollywood, it would probably have to pay the most. Russia would have an inducement to join because it could get in without cost. Russia doesn't love anybody and what love they do have in the Communist state is said to be free. Okay, we could lease-lend them a billion kisses and they could pay us back 50 years from next Valentine's day.

A little more Love in the domestic picture might help, too. There's an election coming up. There ought to be a lot more love planks in both party platforms.

Consider the infinite possibilities of this thing. Here the Congress has just passed a new law making Republican Speaker Joe Martin No. 2 in line for the White House throne. And the crown prince of North Attelboro is a bachelor.

What kind of business is this? If the United States is to have a bipartisan foreign policy, steps should be taken at once to find a Democratic bride for the Republican heir apparent.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture: Proverbs 1:1-5; 3:13-18; 9:9-10; James 1:5

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

It is one thing to praise and commend wisdom, but quite another thing to practice it. And the most unusual thing that can happen is to abandon wisdom once you have found it.

This is forcefully illustrated in the history of King Solomon, reputedly the author of the Book of Proverbs, and reputedly "the wisest man who ever lived."

At least two great and noble incidents are recorded of Solomon, and if all his life and action had been in accordance with these he would surely have deserved the fullest of his reputation for wisdom.

The one incident was the dream, recorded in I Kings 3:5-12, in which, asked to choose whatever he desired from the Lord, he spoke in deep humility and asked about all things for an understanding heart to exercise good judgment, and rule his people well.

But the other outstanding incident was his prayer at the dedication of the Temple, recorded in I Kings 8, and among the noblest and most beautiful things in the entire literature of religion.

Perhaps, like some addresses of other kings and rulers, it was written for him by some religious leader of saintly spirit and prophetic insight. But by delivering it Solomon made it his own, and if he had continued in the letter and spirit of that prayer he might have gone down to history as famous for his goodness and wisdom as he is for the outward splendor and magnificence of his reign.

Instead Solomon took to himself many wives. Not content with the building of the Temple, he built for himself, in a great palace he surrounded himself with riches and luxury for which the people paid in oppressive taxes; bearing it all while Solomon lived and the magnificence continued, but with the result of rebellion, and division of the kingdom when Rehoboam, his son, succeeded him.

Thus it was that beneath the expanse, and safety, and apparently flourishing prosperity of the kingdom of Israel under Solomon were the seeds of oppression.

IN WASHINGTON

By Leslie Carpenter

WASHINGTON—The newly-named commanding general of the fourth army—friendly, soft-spoken General Thomas Troy Handy—has no plans for making immediate changes in the big command which encompasses Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

"I am not a man who rushes in and changes things just for the pleasure of changing them," the four-star general said in a southern drawl which has occasional traces of a western twang.

Handy, 55, has had a remarkable minimum of publicity to have been such an important part of the army's top command for so long. The explanation is probably his modesty and quiet nature. He has served as deputy chief of staff to Generals George C. Marshall and Dwight D. Eisenhower since October, 1944. Before that he headed the operations division of the war department general staff for two years.

Appointed to succeed General Jonathan M. Wainwright as commanding general of the fourth army, Handy said that he does not think he will arrive at his new headquarters at Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio until late September.

He will hold his present high office until General Eisenhower returns from a trip to Alaska in late August. Then Handy will take a long-earned month's furlough before going to the city and state I've always wanted to see more of."

Handy has been stationed in San Antonio twice, but both periods were short. The last time was in 1921.

The only other service Handy has had in the fourth army area previously was being stationed three months at the Fort Sill, Okla., field artillery school, which he says he also enjoyed.

Handy said he had received a nice letter from Wainwright, and had replied that "I don't know how folks are going to feel about an ordinary garden variety of officer replacing a glamorous one." It is an example of his humility.

Handy wears his grey hair cut short. His height is medium, and his carriage and physique are those of a strong body. He has sharp eyes and a ruddy complexion. He smokes a pipe, and a picture of General Marshall has an honored spot on the wall above his desk.

He was born in Spring City, Tenn., March 11, 1892, but spent a large part of his youth in Virginia.

Like Marshall, Handy graduated from the Virginia Military Institute and never attended West Point. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1916 and went to France with the 5th Field Artillery in late 1917. He took part in the engagements of Lunerville Sector, Baccarat Sector, Champagne Defensive, Bateau-Thierry Offensive, St. Mihiel and Argonne sectors.

Following World War I, Handy served in a series of camps across the country and in Panama. Shortly before Pearl Harbor, he was at Fort Benning, Ga., as commanding general of the 78th Field Artillery Armored Battalion. Needed in Washington, he was called to the War Plans Division of the War Department General Staff. This later was renamed the Operations Division, and he was head of it.

Handy played a top role in directing war strategy and planning the use of the atomic bomb. Modestly, though Handy, who was Marshall's number one assistant, says, "I really didn't have an awful lot to do with the atomic bomb."

Handy has been decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross (in the first war), the Legion of Merit, the Distinguished Service Medal, the French Croix de Guerre and the Ecuadorian Abdon Calderon Star, First Class.

Handy is married and has a 20-year-old daughter, Mary, who graduated from Vassar College this year. She is currently thinking about entering the University of Texas next fall and working toward a master's degree.

OUR CHILDREN

BITES AND SIPS

Affectionate parents and relatives like to make the children happy and one way of doing so, they believe, is to share the good things that they have to eat or drink with them. It isn't good idea.

Children do not need the things grown people enjoy—like rich sweets, highly seasoned meats, heavy desserts (as plum puddings in brandy.) They do not need and should not have any strong drink. No alcohol should be given children without a physician's order and that order seldom will be given. It is no kindness to children to give them nips and sips of the grown folk's dainties.

It is very trying on a mother's patience to see a fond papa call a child to his side and offer him a bit of rich food when she has worked like a beaver to provide, cook and serve the food the child should have. She has carefully trained him to eat his food as it is served and here is his father undoing her hard-won success. Is too bad.

When a child tastes richly favored food he forms a taste for it and begins refusing the less highly seasoned and flavored food his mother provides. He begins fussing about what he eats. Instead of taking eating as a routine affair, now he demands cakes, cookies, sweets, pop and the like at odd times of the day and his mother has a food problem added to her other cares.

It is not right to the child nor his mother. That is bad enough in all conscience but what is one to say about the fond relative who offers, even coaxingly, a sip of his cocktail, and says "See, he likes it. What harm can a sip do?"

It can do plenty of harm and no grown-up person should be guilty of taking such a chance of harming a child. No healthy child wants or enjoys strong drink, and that includes beer. There is nothing funny about giving him any. There are, as everybody beyond the age of 12, knows, people who never should touch alcohol in any form whatever. The child in the house may be one of them, for all anybody knows about it. Why train a child to want what he would be better off without ever touching?

Children should not be fed by anyone other than their own mothers. Only an emergency excuses anyone from that rule. A child's diet should be held sacred because on it his health, his growth, his whole future depends. Let his mother feed him. She will know when to give him a treat and how best to do it without harming him. Making food and drink a treat is bad practice because eating and drinking should be routine matters, especially for children.

Bedtime troubles are a common source of worry for parents. Dr. Patri offers helpful advice in curing these troubles in his leaflet, P-28, "Bedtime Troubles."

The Editor
New York Times
West 43d St., New York

Dear Sir:
When Sheila Mannering was found naked and dead in her 57th Street apartment some days back, your paper referred to her as "an actress."

Aren't you getting a little careless? The Webster next to your head copyreader's elbow defines a person's occupation as "the thing that primarily takes up his time, thought and energies." Well, what part of Miss Mannering's time, thought and energies did she devote to t'he theatre? Not one of your stories about this lady listed a single stage or movie production in which she had appeared.

If Sheila Mannering was an actress, then I am Lt. Philip Mountbatten!

Miss Mannering may have told her landlady or her 300 boy friends she was in the theatre or the cinema— but your reporters must have known this was window trimming. How come, then, that your dignified sheet resorted to the eye-catching, paper-selling word—"ACTRESS?"

I can understand the flashy tabs playing up to their hot-eyed readers that way. But the Times, sir, is the Times. And when you stoop to journalistic jabberwocky, it's like Anthony Eden doing the Lindy Hop.

Why all the steam under my Stetson?

I'll tell you why.
When an editor is too scared of the libel laws to name a lady's real occupation, he usually takes the easy out of labelling her an "actress."

It all feeds the stale legend that showfolks are naughtier than ordinary folks.

Well, it ain't so.
The sock and buskin kids may have their weekly moments—praise Allah!—but they're no police problem. They belong to unions, go to church, take their kids to the zoo Sunday afternoons, and squawk about their mothers-in-law. They average about the same percentage of thinkers, drinkers and stinkers as other folks. In other words, they're people.

How about Hollywood and its love nests, dope dens and lost week ends? Malarkey! Hundred-proof, double-dip journalistic malarkey! I've been to Hollywood many times. It's darn near the sleepest and dullest village of its size I know. And why not, when the breadwinners have to get up at six in the morning to go to work?

Why is Hollywood in the newspapers so much? You know. What other town of its size has 400 regularly assigned correspondents digging for dirt? The story about Susie Silverstein that makes page one wouldn't rate two inches in page 14 if she were in the insurance business.

Besides morals clauses in their contracts, the mercurial lens of the camera keeps most film people under control. Actors are too ambitious and too prudent to let the telltale lines of bad habits cut their earning power. Unlike most of us, they can't even afford such minor vices as overeating.

Leo Rosten, in his carefully documented book about the movie colony, states that 76 per cent of the marriages out there have been for keeps. Compare that with the national divorce rate.

As for chorus and show girls in theatres and cabarets, I think that, by and large, their behavior compares pretty well with that of the girls behind typewriters, switchboards and ribbon counters. Show business kids get pretty fair salaries these days, and I think you'll agree that the best protection against the low wolf whistle is a few bucks in milady's purse.

This business of labelling every tootsie an actress is as corny as picturing every newspaperman with a battered hat and a pair of hollow legs. It's partly a hangover from the fantastic days of Oliver Cromwell, when merely being of the theatre was reason for arrest. It's partly, too, the desire of editors to glorify gritty little stories and sell out the edition. But it all adds up to bad reporting, not unlike that of certain left-wing papers which call every conservative a "Fascist," and certain right-wing papers which call every liberal a "Red!"

Here's hoping that one of the world's greatest newspapers refrains in the future from confusing a lot of pretty nice people with tramps and trollops. Sincerely,

CONSTANT READER.

HARD-SURFACING WORK WILL BEGIN

JONESVILLE, La., July 19.—(Special)—Field surveys on the hard surfacing of the Jonesville-Harrisonburg road have been completed and P. A. Frye, director of the Louisiana highway department, states that work probably will get underway within the next few months.

Soil borings on the project are practically complete, Frye wrote State Representative G. C. Womack, and plans on the project are well advanced. After final plans are completed, additional rights of way must be obtained and then the project advertised for a bid.

The road is a vital link between Jonesville, largest town in Catahoula parish, and Harrisonburg, the parish capital. The project, which will include a new bridge across Brusly Bayou, will cost nearly one million dollars.

JOINT SERVICE PLANNED TODAY

First Presbyterian And First Christian To Meet Together

The First Christian Church will have its 7:30 o'clock service with the First Presbyterians in their church tonight. Rev. R. T. Watson will preach. At the morning hour, Dr. E. K. Means will preach at the First Presbyterian Church. Dr. Means always attracts a big house and all are welcome. Dr. Means will preach every Sunday morning at the Presbyterian Church during July and August, while the pastor, Rev. Ernest Duncan Holloway is in Union Seminary in Richmond, Va., pursuing advanced studies. A letter sent by him to members of the church is as follows:

"Leaving home on Monday morning, June 30, I arrived in Richmond Tuesday morning, July 1. After finding my room, I went to the library where I have spent most of the time since, save for meals, sleep and recreation.

There are about ten men here from all sections of the church, working toward their Master of Theology or Doctor of Theology degrees. Among these men we have: Thomas Davis, Ruston, La.; Ashby Johnson, Louisville, Ky.; Clifford Johnson, Alexandria, Va.; Peter Neill, Richmond, Va.; Taylor Reavley, Southwestern, Memphis, Tenn.; Charles McRae, Farmville, Va.; and Wade H. Boggs, Jr., Charlotte, N. C. McRae is a member of the Hampden-Sydney College faculty and Boggs teaches Bible at Queens College, Charlotte, N. C. Union Theological Seminary is a holy place and it is impossible to be here and not feel an uplift."

Mackenzie's
Column

By DeWitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Bureau and Analyst)
Eighteen months ago the League of Nations was laid at rest in its $10,000,000 marble mausoleum on the shore of Lake Geneva, and man's first attempt to maintain peace by means of a world-wide organization was written off as a failure.

But that wasn't the death of hope. The United Nations, brand new and full of grand resolutions for the welfare of humanity, already had swung into action. At long last we were to have peace. The big five—Russia, Britain, France, China, America—brothers-in-arms who had bled together in the Hitlerian upheaval, sat down in brotherhood, surrounded by the smaller states which looked to the powers for guidance.

Last week ten United States senators sponsored a resolution which proposed that the United Nations be revamped. Senator Ferguson, who offered the measure, told reporters that he and others were coming gradually to the conclusion that, if Russia failed to cooperate, it might be necessary to reorganize the United Nations without the Soviets.

The significance of this move is that the United Nations thus far has failed in the main, and it has failed because it hasn't lived up to its name. It is disunited—split after the fashion of unhappy Europe, with Russia and her satellites on the one side and the democracies on the other. The will of the great majority has, in almost every important instance, been nullified by Russia's employment of a veto power which had been accorded through agreement of the big five. It was tacitly understood that this was for use only in extreme emergencies. Soviet Representative Gromyko has used the veto with ruthless abandon, thus emasculating the peace organization.

Gradually it has become evident that this Russian obstruction is a piece of the same cloth as Moscow's tactics in international relations at large. Notable examples have been Moscow's methods of securing domination of eastern Europe, the disruption of the conference to make a German peace treaty, and the refusal to join in a unified program for the rehabilitation of Europe.

Very gradually, too, it has become clear that these tactics have been part of the general strategy of world revolution for the spread of communism. It has taken a long time for this truth to soak home with a lot of folk who couldn't bring themselves to believe that such a thing could happen. But happen it has, and observers have no doubt that the campaign will continue just so long as Moscow is able to keep the wheels turning.

Thus we have arrived at the point where important people—and some of them are attached to the United Nations—are wondering if, after all, the U. N. must be scrapped so that a fresh start can be made. That veto power must be controlled so that it can't be used as a bludgeon for obstruction. Unfortunately there is no way of amending the charter, because the present veto power could be used against amendment, and Russia might be expected to employ it.

It's safe to say that most members of the U. N. are appalled at any idea of throwing over the present organization and creating another, which likely would be without the Russian bloc, thus widening the breach which already exists. They still hope that if the western democracies take a firm stand on vital matters, Russia will see the folly of her present course, especially when it becomes clear that the United States is not headed for a

DEDICATE HUGE
RECYCLING PLANT

Claim Ferriday Gas Recovery
Project Contribution Toward 'World Peace'

FERRIDAY, La., July 19.—(P)—Louisiana Conservation Commissioner Joseph L. McHugh today described the huge natural gas recycling plant in the St. John oil field here "as a small but definite contribution toward world peace."

"The best way to assure peace right now," McHugh said at informal dedication ceremonies for the $4,500,000 plant, "is for this country to be prepared to stop any trouble that starts. One practical way to do this is to conserve the natural resources that play an increasingly important part in war—and that applies particularly to oil."

"I would like to think of this project as a small but definite contribution toward peace, or, if war must come, toward American victory," McHugh told state and parish officials and technical journal and newspapermen attending the dedication that the plant would put 100,000,000 feet of gas back underground daily for future use. He said it would increase oil recovery there by 30,000,000 barrels.

The new plant is one of six such plants now in operation in the state. Conservation officials estimated that the use of gas which otherwise might be flared would save the state $11,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas is being processed and stored daily. The other plants are in the Bateman Lake, Erath, South Jennings, Cotton Valley and Haynesville fields.

McHugh said that gas flaring which totaled 468,000,000 feet in May alone, was practically halted by operation of the Lake St. John plant. He added that numerous other fields were being repressured by similar operations by use of gas which otherwise might be flared. The conservation commissioner said that still other plants over Louisiana are extracting liquefiable hydrocarbons before gas is put into pipelines, and other recycling plants are already in the planning stage.

Through the cooperation of the petroleum industry in general with the state's efforts toward physical conservation, McHugh said, wastage of natural gas has been reduced from 355,000,000 feet daily six years ago to half that amount, although gas production has increased from 265,000 barrels daily to 460,000 barrels.

Other speakers at the dedication ceremonies included officials of two major operators in the field, President Kenneth H. Crandall of the California Company, who outlined the geology of the field, and Dr. John J. Mullane, petroleum engineer for the Carter Oil Company, who discussed the engineering of the recycling plant.

The Lake St. John field was discovered in 1942 by the California Company, a Standard of California subsidiary, and is one of the largest in Louisiana. The California Company now has a 75 per cent participating interest in the field.

Visitors to the new plant today were luncheon guests at the Cool-Cos plantation, and later were entertained at a dinner party given by the California Company in nearby Natchez, Miss.

McHugh said Louisiana's gains in conservation had been made despite opposition to his policies by a few "South Louisiana newspapers" and announced his intention of continuing to encourage such conservation practices.

Crandall traced the geological growth of the Lake St. John field, describing its discovery by his company as "quite a step into the unknown." He made his talk from a spot estimated to be directly over the center of the gigantic underground salt dome storing the estimated 110,000,000 barrels of oil.

Dr. Mullane discussed the mechanics of recycling, describing the plant here as one of several in Louisiana expected to increase oil recovery by at least 70,000,000 barrels, equal to an additional oil field.

This progress was possible he said "only because Louisiana has sound conservation laws, very well administered from the standpoint of the state, royalty owners and operators."

Principal Paul Neal of Neville High School will leave today for L. S. U. to attend a three-week workshop on administration and child guidance. Principal Elgin Boggs, principal of the Neville Junior High School, has been for some weeks in L. S. U. pursuing a workshop course of study.

Neville High School is the only one in the state which has within its confines a veterans' guidance office. Through the location of this office, the school has been able to take advantage of every opportunity to carry out successfully guidance programs.

In the American automotive industry, the manufacture of parts and sub-assemblies is spread over 30 states and includes more than 1,000 plants. tremendous economic collapse, as Moscow has been claiming. One thing is certain, however. The U. N. can't long continue as a house divided against itself.

UNION DRILLING
RUSH CONTINUES

Minister And Truck Line Operator Ask Permit; Murphy-Sun Active

Union continued to be the most active parish in oil operations in the Monroe district last week. Among the nine new locations there, the conservation department report shows, is an application by the Rev. R. W. Rhodes, a part time minister and a former state senator from Union, and Carl Holloway, a timber trucking contractor, for a permit to drill a wildcat well on the farm of the latter's father, J. W. Holloway, in section 23-23-1W, six miles north of the Ora field discovery well.

Rev. Rhodes was said to have been dealing in leases and royalties for some time but it is Holloway's first venture in oil.

With the exception of two permit applications by the Southwest Gas Producing company for two gas wells on Frost Lumber company land in section 11-22-3E, all of the other new Union locations were reported during the week. "Leaving home on Monday morning, June 30, I arrived in Richmond Tuesday morning, July 1. After finding my room, I went to the library where I have spent most of the time. I have saved for meals, sleep and recreation.

There are about ten men here from all sections of the church, working toward their Master of Theology or Doctor of Theology degrees. Among these men we have: Thomas Davis, Ruston, La.; Ashby Johnson, Louisville, Ky.; Clifford Johnson, Alexandria, Va.; Peter Neill, Richmond, Va.; Taylor Reavley, Southwestern, Memphis, Tenn.; Charles McRae, Farmville, Va.; and Wade H. Mackenzie's

By DeWitt Mackenzie
(Associate Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)
Eighteen months ago the League of Nations was laid at rest in its $10,000,000 marble mausoleum on the shore of Lake Geneva, and man's first attempt to maintain peace by means of a world-wide organization was written off as a failure.

But that wasn't the death of hope. The United Nations, brand new and full of grand resolutions for the welfare of humanity, already had swung into action. At long last we were to have peace. The big five—Russia, Britain, France, China, America—brothers-in-arms who had bled together in the Hittlerian upheaval, sat down in brotherhood, surrounded by the smaller states which looked to the powers for guidance.

Last week ten United States senators sponsored a resolution which proposed that the United Nations be revamped. Senator Ferguson, who offered the measure, told reporters that he and others were coming gradually to the conclusion that, if Russia failed to cooperate, it might be necessary to reorganize the United Nations without the Soviets.

The significance of this move is that the United Nations thus far has failed in the main, and it has failed because it hasn't lived up to its name. It is disunited—split after the fashion of unhappy Europe, with Russia and the democracies on the one side and the democracies on the other. The will of the great majority has, in almost every important instance, been nullified by Russia's employment of a veto power which had been accorded through agreement of the big five. It was tacitly understood that this was for use only in extreme emergencies. Soviet Representative Gromyko has used the veto with ruthless abandon, thus emasculating the peace organization.

Gradually it has become evident that this Russian obstruction is a piece of the same cloth as Moscow's tactics in international relations at large. Notable examples have been Moscow's methods of securing domination of eastern Europe, the disruption of the conference to make a German peace treaty, and the refusal to join in a unified program for the rehabilitation of Europe.

Very gradually, too, it has become clear that these tactics have been part of the general strategy of world revolution for the spread of communism. It has taken a long time for this truth to soak home with a lot of folk who couldn't bring themselves to believe that such a thing could happen. But happen it has, and observers have no doubt that the campaign will continue just so long as Moscow is able to keep the wheels turning.

Thus we have arrived at the point where important people—and some of them are attached to the United Nations—are wondering if, after all, the N. must be scrapped so that a fresh start can be made. That veto power must be controlled so that it can't be used as a blue-ribbon for obstruction. Unfortunately there is no way of amending the charter, because the present veto power could be used against amendment, and Russia might be expected to employ it.

It's safe to say that most members of the U. N. are appalled at any idea of throwing over the present organization and creating another, which likely would be without the Russian bloc, thus widening the breach which already exists. They still hope that if the western democracies take a firm stand, on vital matters, Russia will see the folly of her present course, especially when it becomes clear that the United States is not headed for a

RECYCLING PLANT

Claim Ferriday Gas Recovery
Project Contribution Toward 'World Peace'

FERRIDAY, La., July 19.—(AP)—Louisiana Conservation Commissioner Joseph L. McHugh today described the huge natural gas recycling plant in the St. John oil field here "as a small but definite contribution toward world peace."

"The best way to assure peace right now," McHugh said at informal dedication ceremonies for the $4,500,000 plant, "is for this country to be prepared to stop any trouble that starts. One practical way to do this is to conserve the natural resources that play an increasingly important part in war—and that applies particularly to oil."

"I would like to think of this project as a small but definite contribution toward peace, or, if war must come, toward American victory."

McHugh told state and parish officials and technical journal and newspapermen attending the dedication that the plant would put 100,000,000 feet of gas back underground daily for future use. He said it would increase oil recovery there by 30,000,000 barrels.

The new plant is one of six such plants now in operation in the state. Conservation officials estimated that with the new plant in operation some 611,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas is being processed and stored daily. The other plants are in the Bateman Lake, Erath, South Jennings, Cotton Valley and Haynesville fields.

McHugh said that gas flaring which totaled 469,000,000 feet in May alone, was practically halted by operation of the Lake St. John plant. He added that numerous other fields were being repressed by similar operations by use of gas which otherwise might be wasted. The conservation commissioner said that still other plants over Louisiana are extracting liquid, flammable hydrocarbons before gas is put into pipelines, and other recycling plants are already in the planning stage.

Through the cooperation of the petroleum industry in general with the state's efforts toward physical conservation, McHugh said, wastage of natural gas has been reduced from 555,000,000 feet daily six years ago to half that amount, although gas production has increased from 265,000 barrels daily to 460,000 barrels.

Other speakers at the dedication ceremony included officials of two major operators in the field, President Kenneth H. Crandall of the California Company, who outlined the geology of the field, and Dr. John J. Mullane, petroleum engineer for the Carter Oil Company, who discussed the engineering of the recycling plant.

The Lake St. John field was discovered in 1942 by the California Company, a Standard of California subsidiary, and is one of the largest in Louisiana. The California Company now has a 75 per cent participating interest in the field.

Visitors to the new plant today were luncheon guests at the Cool Coo's plantation, and later were entertained at a dinner party given by the California Company in nearby Natchez, Miss.

McHugh said Louisiana's gains in conservation had been made despite opposition to his policies by a few "South Louisiana newspapers" and announced his intention of continuing to encourage such conservation practices.

Crandall traced the geological growth of the Lake St. John field, describing its discovery by his company as "quite a step into the unknown." He made his talk from a spot estimated to be directly over the center of the gigantic underground salt dome storing the estimated 110,000,000 barrels of oil.

Dr. Mullane discussed the mechanics of recycling, describing the plant here as one of several in Louisiana expected to increase oil recovery by at least 70,000,000 barrels, equal to an additional oil field.

This progress was possible he said "only because Louisiana has sound conservation laws, very well administered from the standpoint of the state, royalty owners and operators."

UNION DRILLING
RUSH CONTINUES

Minister And Truck Line Operator Ask Permit; Murphy-Sun Active

Union continued to be the most active parish in oil operations in the Monroe district last week. Among the nine new locations there, the conservation department report shows, is an application by the Rev. R. W. Rhodes, a part time minister and a former state senator from Union, and Carl Holloway, a timber trucking contractor, for a permit to drill a wildcat well on the farm of the latter's father, J. W. Holloway, in section 23-23-1W, six miles north of the Ora field discovery well.

Rev. Rhodes was said to have been dealing in leases and royalties for some time but it is Holloway's first venture in oil.

With the exception of two permit applications by the Southwest Gas Producing company for two gas wells on Frost Lumber company land in section 11-22-3E, all of the other new Union locations were reported during the week. Southwest company completed its Frost Lumber Co. No. 11 which was rated as flowing at the rate of 348,000 cubic feet per day.

Murphy-Sun filed application for two wildcat tests, one in Madison parish and the other in Franklin parish. The latter, designated as the J. E. Holt core test No. 4, is 13 1/4 miles east of production in the South Big Creek field. The Madison parish operation is the R. F. Marston et al. No. 1 on the east side of a bend in Bayou Macon, eight miles due south of Delhi.

Murphy-Sun also asked a permit to drill its J. E. Holt No. 46 in the Delhi field in Richland parish.

Aside from those previously published for Union parish, the only oil well completion in the district during the week was the Arkansas Fuel Oil company's Tremont A-19 in the Urania field in LaSalle parish, which was officially tested as pumping at the rate of 18 barrels per day after perforations at 1,540-45 feet.

DRILLING POSTPONED ON COAST TIDELANDS

NEW ORLEANS, July 19.—(AP)—Humble Oil and Refining Co. has postponed indefinitely oil drilling in the Gulf of Mexico, reportedly awaiting clarification of the question of title of the submerged lands.

The United States supreme court recently held that title to the lands rested in the federal government.

The Louisiana Oil Reporting Service reported today that the directors of the company, meeting last week in Houston, Tex., ordered the halt in operations until such time as Congress clarifies the title question. The company holds leases in the gulf from the state of Louisiana.

Humble has been engaged in construction of two drilling platforms three to 20 miles out in the gulf and was building an operations base at Grand Isle, off the Louisiana coast. C. C. Clifton, district manager for Humble, confirmed that the crews have been withdrawn from the work. Meanwhile the state mineral board is preparing to accept bids of 787,854 acres of offshore land next Tuesday.

B. A. Hardey, board chairman announced after the supreme court decision was handed down that it would change the board's plans.

No change in policy or plans has been announced by other major oil companies active in the gulf. Magnolia Petroleum company was reported to be driving piling for two immediate wildcat operations off the Terrebonne parish shore.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of three stories on flood control, the problem and the remedy.

By James Marlow
WASHINGTON, July 19.—(AP)—You want a little flood control in your neighborhood or for your town? It'll take time and trouble.

Start with your congressman. Lots of congressmen try to get flood control jobs for their district.

Flood control for a district, besides stopping a flood, means government money spent there, and jobs.

The big, national flood control plans are worked out by the U. S. Corps of Engineers on orders from Congress.

But if you—yes, you means a group—want your pet idea included in, or added to, the national plans, this is how you go about it:

1. You tell your congressman. He digs around in Congress to get some action started.

2. Generally, at this stage, you get action. Congress tells the U. S. engineers to make a check on your idea.

3. The engineers give it a quick once-over to see whether it looks good at all or is just another idea for spending government money.

4. If the engineers think your request has merit, they tell Congress.

5. This means more milling around in Congress which probably will tell the engineers to dig deeper.

6. Back go the engineers to your place. They make a better check this time. They may even hold hearings so people can talk for or against it.

7. Then the engineers report back to Congress on the hearings and what their second check shows.

8. More milling around in Congress. If Congress thinks maybe something should be done with your idea, the engineers are told to dig still deeper.

9. Now the engineers go to work and figure out how the flood control for you will cost, how long it will take to do. Maybe they'll hold more hearings right in your home town.

10. After this third going over, the engineers draw up a final report for Congress and send it there.

11. This final report to Congress is turned over to a committee which handles flood control.

12. The committee holds hearings so people for and against your idea can speak their piece.

13. Then, if the committee thinks the engineers' flood control plan for you should be carried out, it tells the House and Senate so.

14. If the House and Senate vote for it, the plan for you is included in a big bill that okay's a number of flood control plans.

15. The engineers now are all set to go to work, except for this: They can't do the job unless Congress votes money for it. Approving a job and voting money for it are two different things.

16. So then the appropriations committees in Congress hold hearings on your plan to see whether they'll okay money for it.

17. If the appropriations committees approve, they tell House and Senate. Usually House and Senate follow the committee recommendations.

18. Once the money is voted, the engineers have a clear field to go ahead and set up some flood control for you.

The outline given here may not be followed precisely in every case but it gives the picture of how a flood control plan is worked out.

Congress tells the engineers to make a first check on an average of about 300 flood control requests a year.

But less than one-third of them ever reach the final stage where they're considered worth while enough to be carried out.

There are a lot of slips between getting Congress to vote for a flood control plan and then getting Congress to vote money for it.

Congress approved some flood control plans as much as 40 years ago but still hasn't voted money to carry them out.

INJUNCTION SOUGHT
BY PHONE COMPANY

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 19.—(AP)—The Southwestern Bell Telephone Company filed suit in U. S. district court today to prevent use of advertising devices on its telephones and company attorneys said it might be the forerunner of similar suits throughout the country.

Defendants named were the Dialite Dial Company and the Novelad Company, both of Oklahoma City. The suit asked a declaratory judgment to prevent them from placing advertising discs on telephone dials.

Although the suit does not ask the monetary judgment, it alleges that profits from the advertising on the Dialite Company are $50,000 and $10,000 to the Novelad Company.

John Cantrell, attorney for the phone company, said he believed it was the first such suit filed and said it would set a precedent for the nation's telephone companies in preventing such advertising on phones.

Cantrell said this suit was to determine the rights of the company, if successful, suits for damages might be filed later.

AMERICAN MIDSHIPMEN
SET SAIL FOR CUBA BAY

WASHINGTON, July 19.—(AP)—The navy announced today that four large war vessels bearing American midshipmen on their summer practice cruise left Sought, England yesterday for Guantanamo bay, Cuba, and exercises in that area.

The squadron includes the carriers Randolph and Kearsarge and the battleships New Jersey and Wisconsin.

The group will return to Chesapeake bay about August 12, the announcement said. Then middies of the second class will leave the carriers for joint amphibious training with West Point cadets. The first and third classes will hold gunnery practice in the battleships.

The carrier Leyte is scheduled to leave the east coast about July 30 for a European cruise.

The cruisers Manchester, Dayton and Fremo are to leave the east coast the last week in July to relieve the cruisers Fargo, Huntington and Houston in European waters.

About the same time, destroyer squadron 2 will relieve destroyer squadron 12 there.

Monroe now has its first flying school on water. A contract was negotiated with the Veterans' Administration on Wednesday and all veterans who wish to take flight training can do so at the new school which uses seaplanes.

The Sunbird Seaplane Service Company, Inc., is also fully approved by the Civil Aeronautics Administration and the state department of education.

The new flying school is located at 4300 South Grand street and is reached by a road-way over the levee. The hangar, office and lounge are on a large floating dock. The popular Cessna 120, on pontoons, is the airplane selected by the company for training its students. The first of these is already in operation.

Besides training facilities, the base offers complete seaplane service, charter trips and passenger trips over the city. There is no additional charge for seaplane trips, the cost being the same as with land planes.

Sunbird Seaplane Service is a local corporation with the following well known men as incorporators: Ralph B. Bird, president, L. A. West, vice-president, Irvin E. Cole, secretary and treasurer and Maurice B. Sunderland, chief pilot instructor and assistant secretary.

A picnic grounds, with tables and benches and fireplace, is located on the grounds of this seaplane base and may be used, free of charge, by any persons or organizations of the Twin Cities.

WILL CELEBRATE UTAH FOUNDING

One Hundredth Anniversary To Be Observed By Local Church

In celebration of Pioneer Day, July 24, the 100th anniversary of the arrival of the Latter Day Saints in the Great Salt Lake Valley, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is presenting various types of memorials, parades, shows, dances, etc., throughout the world, wherever there is a branch of the church. The most outstanding events, of course, will take place in Utah, where one occasion will see the unveiling of the statues of Brigham Young and others of the pioneers, at the mouth of Emigration Canyon—called the "This Is The Place" monument, Mahoning Young, sculptor—quoting the words of the Prophet Brigham Young when he saw the valley and recognized it as the place shown to him in a vision as the home of the saints.

As their part in this world-wide celebration, the Monroe branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints will present a pageant titled "The Gospel Through the Ages." This will be given in conjunction with the summer social and dance of the Mutual Improvement Association, young people's organization of the church. The pageant and dance will be held at the national guard armory, 218 South Grand street, Monroe, from 8 until 11 p. m. Saturday, July 26. Admission will be by invitation only—no charge.

We will sincerely welcome anyone interested in taking part in our celebration and enjoying our clean, wholesome entertainment. Invitations may be secured in West Monroe from Mrs. Anne Bivins, 311 Cotton street, president of the M. I. A., and Wiggins Barber Shop, 324 Trenton street; and in Monroe from M. Hatcher Sheet Metal Works, Mrs. Cecile Rugg at Grayson's and Mrs. Judy Gargway at Weeks Supply company or 3600 Gordon avenue.

IN MOVIELAND

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD, July 19.—(AP)—It was a long, hard pull, but Susan Peters made it. She is making a movie again. Looking pretty beautiful, Susan has started "Sign of the Ram," in which she plays a mean woman. I found her as excited as a girl at her first high school prom.

"Oh, they've been wonderful to me," she chirped. "Everything has been done to make me comfortable. I'm not even conscious of the camera. When I did my first scene, I was worried because I thought they were just shooting the back of my head. Then they told me the camera was in front of me all the time."

Virtually nothing has been overlooked to safeguard Susan's health. Her aunt, a nurse, is with her all the time, and her brother, wheels her around and acts as general guardian. Because Susan is subject to a heat rash, her dressing room and the whole set are especially cooled.

Even some of Columbia's hard and fast rules have been overlooked. No star, not even Rita Hayworth, has been permitted to drive on the lot, but Susan's hand-controlled car is now admitted. She is permitted to have lunch in her dressing room, a precedent on the Gower street lot.

Provisions have been made for a shorter working day. Instead of the usual nine-to-six routine, she arrives at 10:30 and leaves around four. Makeup people are sent to her home in the morning so her preparation for the camera will be more comfortable.

And so another step has been taken by Susan in her steady fight against the paralysis that gripped her from the waist down after a hunting accident two and a half years ago. Although there is scant hope that she will walk again, she hasn't let that limit her activities. Among other things she has learned to fly, adopted a baby and invested in a dress shop.

The latest news about Susan is that she has severed her connection with M. G. M. She has a respect for the studio, but it doesn't permit players to participate in picture profits.

"So I asked for a release," she said, "because the only way for me to make pictures is with a percentage. My lawyer has arranged it so I will be paid over a period of 10 years. It's like an annuity."

She said she would like to make another film right away, then follow with one a year.

ENLISTEES IN ARMY

Chubbuck, Monroe; Jessie L. White, Jr., Monroe; Almes H. Richardson, Jr., Chatham; Odie Laird, West Monroe; and Gordon E. Smedley, Monroe.

Will Be Held At Opening Of Farm Week At Baton Rouge

MELROSE, La., July 19.—(Special)—Members of the cotton industry from every section of Louisiana were urged to attend the annual meeting of the Louisiana unit of the National Cotton Council at Louisiana State University, August 12, by J. H. Henry, Melrose, chairman of the council's state unit.

The cotton session will be held on the opening day of the Louisiana Farm and Home Week conducted by the state extension service at Baton Rouge. Goal of the meeting is to bring before the cotton men the major problems confronting the industry and to develop plans for a board cotton education program in Louisiana.

Featured speakers at the meeting will include the heads of the cotton council's four major program divisions from Memphis and Washington. They will bring Louisiana cotton farmers and others attending the session up to date on the latest developments affecting cotton and point the way to solutions to cotton problems, Mr. Henry said.

"Every person in the state who has a stake in the future of cotton should attend this meeting," Mr. Henry said. "We need to be better informed on cotton problems so that we may develop more effective means of solving them."

Members of the council's Louisiana unit other than Mr. Henry include: Producers: R. N. Amacker and Sen. N. C. Williams, Lake Providence; Ginners: G. T. Hider, Lake Providence; Col. W. D. Boyle's Notebook

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, July 19.—(P)—There is a little tale behind the following note from a newspaper society column:

"Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Chatfield Clutch and their charming children, Gloria and Junior, have passed up the country this season and are vacationing at Bide-A-Long-Wee on the Jersey coast."

Mr. Clutch, wife of the popular young (43) up-and-coming Manhattan securities salesman, won't be able to regale her Park Avenue chums this year with a humorous account of the family's annual summer month on the farm of her husband's odd cousin, Egbert.

The Clutches changed their plans and left for the seashore after receiving this letter from Egbert:

"What I have to say in this letter has nothing to do with the fact the $1,500 worth of oil stock you sold me a year ago is now cheaper than mail order house wallpaper."

"But if you and Sandra Ellen and the kids are planning to come here this month, as you have for the last ten years, I would like to put it on a sound basis, as you fellows say in the big city."

"I don't want you to think from this that I am still mad at your Junior—my wife, Adeline Mae, jokingly calls him 'The Plague'—for shooting six of my best hens with his air rifle. Nor do we really mind that our four cows quit giving milk for three days last summer after Sandra Ellen and Gloria walked out into the pasture in their sun suits. It was worth the milk we lost just to tell that story to our neighbors at the church social after you left."

"And I bear no grudge because our hired man, after watching you lie in bed till noon, got big ideas and quit me and went to the village to open an insurance business, right in the middle of harvest. He's back now."

"No, Ronald, family ties are strong, and you are always welcome. But I know it must have been worrying you that we have never accepted any contribution from you toward our household expenses in the ten summers your family has come here. As a matter of fact, I don't believe we have been offered a chance to accept."

"So this year I want to relieve you of any embarrassment by suggesting that you pay us the $200 you get for subletting your New York apartment while you're out here. Adeline Mae and I will give you the bedrooms as usual, as we really never have minded sleeping in the attic during your visits."

"Since food has gone up and farmers have to buy most of their stuff from the stores nowadays, I think about $20 a day—$600 for the month—would be about right for the meals. There is also the matter of a $69.50 repair bill for the tractor Junior ran into the barn. I was able to fix the barn myself."

"Incidentally, old Dr. McThrombs told me to tell you that the $35 check you promised him for setting Junior's arm two years ago after he fell out of the cherry tree and ruined my only beehive has been lost a long time in the mails."

"If that $800 figure seems pretty high to you for the month here, I have another proposition. When you first came here ten years ago our daughter, little Trellis Ann, wanted to study home economics and marry a boy on the next farm."

"But after listening to Sandra Ellen and Gloria all these summers, she's decided to go to New York and become a model. I know she's bow-legged and her front teeth never quite straightened out, but she's determined."

"So if you'll let her go back to New York and bed and board with you for six months or so while she's going to a fashion model school, I'll waive any charges for your month here. Trellis Ann is such a card! She just said, 'Who knows, maybe Cousin Gloria will help me snatch off one of her rich Park Avenue Beaux?'"

"Well, what do you say, Ronald? We'll sure be glad to have you and the family out here again. Summer wouldn't be right without you. Your country cousin, EGEBERT."

P. S. The country home is so over crowded that we are temporarily boarding an orphan idiot boy, who has learned a cute trick of bending horseshoes with his little hands. He has a gentle disposition, but I know

GOVERNOR ASKS GUARD VACATION

Urges Employers To Release Men To Attend Encampment

BATON ROUGE, July 19.—(Special)—Governor James H. Davis, in a proclamation just issued called on employers of guardsmen to grant military leave for 15 days in order that they may attend the first post-war field training of the guard without loss of pay and without forfeiting their right to their regular annual vacations.

The laws of the state of Louisiana, declared the governor, provide that each state employee shall be granted such military leave, and he asked that all employers join the state in this policy.

Emphasizing the integral part played by the National Guard in our national defense system as an M-Day force and its part as a state security force ready to act on a moment's notice during any local disasters, Governor Davis commended National Guardsmen upon their devoting their spare time to training for these services to country, state and community.

This first post-war summer training period, declared Governor Davis, is of the utmost importance in the reorganization and training of the Louisiana National Guard.

Guardsmen from all sections of the state will train at Camp Beauregard in three groups, a spokesman from the office of the adjutant general announced upon reading the proclamation. The first group will train from July 20 to August 3; second group, from July 27 to August 10, and third group, from August 3 to August 17.

Irving Zeidman, baritone, soloist of the radio program, "Irving Sings," each Sunday at 12:30 over KMLB, will sing today "When You Were Sixteen," "Ain't Sweet Mystery of Life" and the beautiful hymn, "Bless This House."

A special feature on today's program will be a marimba solo by Miss Gloria Strong, student in Ouachita Parish High School.

The word "clabber" comes from the Irish "claba," meaning thick mud.

WILL CELEBRATE UTAH FOUNDING

One Hundredth Anniversary To Be Observed By Local Church

In celebration of Pioneer Day, July 24, the 100th anniversary of the arrival of the Latter Day Saints in the Great Salt Lake Valley, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is presenting various types of memorials, parades, shows, dances, etc., throughout the world, wherever there is a branch of the church. The most outstanding events of course, will take place in Utah, where one occasion will see the unveiling of the statues of Brigham Young and others of the pioneers, at the mouth of Emigration Canyon—called the "This Is the Place" monument, Mahonri Young, sculptor—quoting the words of the Prophet Brigham Young when he saw the valley and recognized it as the place shown to him in a vision as the home of the saints.

As their part in this world-wide celebration, the Monroe branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints will present a pageant titled "The Gospel Through the Ages." This will be given in conjunction with the summer social and dance of the Mutual Improvement Association, young people's organization of the church. The pageant and dance will be held at the national guard armory, 218 South Grand street, Monroe, from 8 until 11 p. m. Saturday, July 26. Admission will be by invitation only—no charge.

We will sincerely welcome anyone interested in taking part in our celebration and enjoying our clean, wholesome entertainment. Invitations may be secured in West Monroe from Mrs. Anne Bivins, 311 Cotton street, president of the M. I. A., and Wiggins Barber Shop, 324 Trenton street; and in Monroe from M. Hatcher Sheet Metal Works, Mrs. Cecile Rugg at Grayson's and Mrs. July Caraway at Weeks Supply company or 3609 Gordon avenue.

IN MOVIELAND

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD, July 19.—(AP)—It was a long, hard pull, but Susan Peters made it. She is making a movie again. Looking pretty beautiful, Susan has started "Sign of the Cross" in which she plays a mean woman. I found her as excited as a girl at her first high school prom.

"Oh, they've been wonderful to me," she enthused. "Everything has been done to make me comfortable. I'm not even conscious of the camera. When I did my first scene, I was worried because I thought they were just shooting the back of my head. Then they told me the camera was in front of me all the time."

Virtually nothing has been overlooked to safeguard Susan's health. Her aunt, a nurse, is with her all the time, and her brother wheels her around and acts as general guardian. Because Susan is subject to a heat rash, her dressing room and the whole set are especially cooled.

Even some of Columbia's hard and fast rules have been overlooked. No star, not even Rita Hayworth, has been permitted to drive on the lot, but Susan's hand-controlled car is now admitted. She is permitted to have lunch in her dressing room, a precedent on the Gower street lot.

Provisions have been made for a shorter working day. Instead of the usual nine-to-six routine, she arrives at 10:30 and leaves around four. Makeup people are sent to her home in the morning so her preparation for the camera will be more comfortable.

And so another step has been taken by Susan in her steady fight against the paralysis that gripped her from the waist down after a hunting accident two and a half years ago. Although there is scant hope that she will walk again, she hasn't let that limit her activities. Among other things she has learned to fly, adopted a baby and invested in a dress shop.

The latest news about Susan is that she has severed her connection with M. G. M. She has a respect for the studio, but it doesn't permit players to participate in picture profits.

"So I asked for a release," she said, "because the only way for me to make pictures is with a percentage. My lawyer has arranged it so I will be paid over a period of 10 years. It's like an annuity."

She said she would like to make another film right away, then follow with one a year.

Firnberg-Sanford Wedding Takes Place At The First Methodist Church

Miss Firnberg Weds Mr. Sanford

Fashionable Throng Witnesses The Marriage Of Popular Young Couple

The First Methodist Church was suffused in mellow candlelight on the night of July the twelfth when Miss Margaret Elizabeth Firnberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lewis Firnberg, became the bride of Mr. Edward Hugh Sanford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hugh Sanford of New Orleans, La. Beautiful music flooded the church when Mrs. B. D. Allbritton, organist rendered a brilliant pre-nuptial concert while the candles were lighted and the guests were being seated by the groomsmen, Mr. H. L. Johns, Jr., Mr. Mike Baccich, Mr. Jack Easterling and Mr. Bob Firnberg. The lovely voice of Mrs. George Temple, was heard in two of the old favorites, "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," and "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

White gladiolus were silhouetted against a lush, green background of fern and smilax. In semi-circle formation, tall white candelabra supported myriad cathedral tapers.

Bows of emerald green ribbon and fern marked the pews reserved for the family and intimate friends.

The maid of honor, Miss Lee Slagle, and the bridesmaids, Miss Polly Jean Phelps, Miss Lucille Mosely, Miss Martha Roddy and Miss Louise Munson, wore diaphanous gowns of lime green marquisette designed off-the-shoulder effect with short puffed sleeves. The skirts were long and full.

They all wore garlands of daisies in their hair and carried arm bouquets of Shasta daisies tied with long lengths of green ribbon.

Mr. William Sanford served as best man.

The impressive ceremony was performed by Dr. A. M. Serex, pastor of the First Methodist Church. The nuptial hour was seven-thirty o'clock in the evening.

The bride, walking down the white carpeted aisle with her father who gave her in marriage, wore a bouffant white marquisette gown of delicacy and grace. It was fashioned over white satin, off-the-shoulder effect with deep v-neck edged with a beauteous Alencon lace. The long, full skirt, over hoops was trimmed with paniers of lace. Her heirloom lace veil was caught to a cap of lace and cascaded far beyond the hemline of the skirt. She carried a gorgeous bouquet of tuberoses and bride's roses tied with long lengths of white tulle and white satin ribbon.

The bride wore the bridegroom's gift, an exquisite oriental pearl necklace and bracelet, brought from Shanghai, China.

The bride's mother walked down the aisle in a beautiful crepe model of azure blue with corsage of tuberoses and pink carnations. The groom's mother wore a caramel-colored crepe model with white orchid corsage. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. L. A. Smith wore a black lace model with corsage of white carnations.

Gracious courtesies were extended at the Firnberg home during the reception following the ceremony. A white color theme was portrayed in the floral decorations, which consisted of white gladiolus, tuberoses, and perennial phlox against a background of fern.

The three-tiered wedding cake occupied the center of the dining table, which was overlaid with a lace cloth. The cake was embellished with roses, lilies of the valley, calla lilies, and orange blossoms, the top layer being completely covered with flowers. On white satin radiating from the cake to fourteen points on the table were bouquets of tuberoses, tied with bows of white satin. In lily shaped crystal vases were white gladiolus. Crystal candelabra with tall white tapers enhanced the beauty of the table.

Special treatment was given to the mantel. Two white swans held tall spikes of white gladiolus on either side of the mirror, and graduating to mantel level, giving a perfect setting for the bride as she stood in the receiving line. Beautiful arrangements of white flowers were used throughout the house.

The bride's two aunts, Miss Marie Smith and Mrs. H. C. Hutchinson assisted in the courtesies.

Mrs. C. B. McQuillier, wearing a white crepe gown, presided over the punch bowl, where three hundred and fifty guests were served individually, iced cakes and mints. Assisting in the dining room were Miss Sally Ann Wave, in white organdy; Miss Margaret Gambrell, in a pink gown, and Miss Patty Lee Padgett in a pink and black gown.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were: Miss Marie Smith, of Knoxville, Tenn.; Miss Louise Munson; of Jeanerette; Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hutchinson, of El Dorado, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Sanford, Mrs. A. F. Butler, Mr. William Sanford, Mr. Mike Baccich, Mr. Ed Baldinger, Mr. Robert Vaccaro, Mr. George Davis, Mr. Louis Ramos, Mr. Ed Taylor, Mr. E. J. Gilbert, of New Orleans.

The bride changed her wedding raincoat for a smart tulle of navy blue with a white coat with fan back in the prevailing fashion. She wore an off-the-face hat of navy blue taffeta and accessories of blue. The young couple will spend their honeymoon in the Smoky Mountains.

The bride is a graduate of the Ouachita Parish High School and Sophie Newcomb College where she was a member of Chi Omega sorority. She is also a member of Delta Beta Sigma. Mr. Sanford is a graduate of Tulane University where he was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. He is now associated with the Texas Oil Company as an engineer.

Following their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Sanford will be at home in Port Arthur, Tex.

On Thursday afternoon Mrs. Conrad Albright and Mrs. M. H. Hollis entertained at a shower tea in the home of Mrs. Albright on North Sixth street.

Pink radiance roses in artistic arrangements were used throughout the reception rooms.

The honor guest wore a black draped model with a corsage of pink carnations from her hostesses, as she stood with them and her mother and the groom's mother, Mrs. Myrtle Stennette, to receive. Mrs. Albright, Mrs. Hollis and Mrs. Tucker wore pastel dresses, Mrs. Stennette wore black. All wore harmonizing corsages.

Purely Personal

It is always a pleasure to note the return to Monroe of such substantial worthwhile citizens as Mr. and Mrs. Albin P. Lassiter, former residents of this city who have been making their home for the past seven years in Dallas and Fort Worth, Tex. They recently purchased the Walter Black home, 201 Stubbs Avenue, and with their two handsome children, Perry and Warren, are now happily at home to their old friends. Mr. and Mrs. Lassiter will have the pleasure of introducing their son, Warren, to their friends as he was born after they left Monroe and is now five years old. Perry, the oldest son, is now eleven years of age.

Are you ready to make your dress hems six inches from the floor? That's how long your late summer and fall cocktail dresses will be and the effect is as slim as a pencil. Monroe vacationists returning from New York City tell us that smart women are wearing their dresses just a few inches above the ankles and they look "simply wonderful."

Monroe residents are certainly globe trotters. They are leaving the city daily on planes, on luxury cruises, in shiny new cars and in air-cooled Pullmans. Two vacationists, Miss Carrie Dee Drew and Miss Harriett Boyle, left the city yesterday bound for New York City where they will spend a few days before boarding a steamer for a Saguenay river cruise. They will visit Montreal and Quebec. Such an invigorating trip as this will bring Miss Boyle and Miss Drew back home greatly refreshed and ready for the strenuous season ahead. They are both members of the public school system.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mayo and son, Mr. Henry Mayo, Jr., have just returned from a vacation packed with thrills. They spent one week at Miami Beach before boarding a plane for Havana. Making a flying trip to Cuba is literally as well figuratively popular with visitors in Miami, for the ninety minutes which the travel posters advertise seems like a mere snap of the fingers, according to Mrs. Mayo. She even enjoyed walking into the airport waiting room as it gave her the feeling of foreign travel. The signs are in both English and Spanish and it is a toss-up whether you are weighed in kilograms or pounds, depending on the nationality of the clerk. Mrs. Mayo is most enthusiastic over her first visit in Havana. The airport, she says, is almost 20 miles from Havana and buses and cars are driven as only Latins can drive, with insouciance and abandon. She spoke of emerging from a street so narrow she had to flatten herself against a wall to let a bus go by.

Continuing, Mrs. Mayo spoke of Havana as a city of pure enchantment. The view at night is incredibly beautiful. The buildings are the color of a good sun tan, if they are ancient, pure white or with a faint pinkish tinge if they are modern. All the doors and windows are covered with graceful iron grill work which makes the hearts of American covetous. The doors of Cuban mahogany are thick, hurricane resisting.

Modern Havana is spread out with a handsome, wide boulevard, the Prado, leading to and from the giant capitol. There's a dramatic approach to the president's palace which looks like something out of the Arabian Nights. The huge Nacional de Cuba Hotel is on a hill, overlooking the Gulf of Morro Castle, and dominates the entire scene. Mrs. Mayo, one of Monroe's prominent artists, did some sketching while in Havana and was amused by the curiosity of the natives.

While many vacationists are leaving the city daily others are returning and give glowing accounts of the scenic beauty they feasted their eyes upon. Mrs. G. R. Stephenson, for instance, will carry memories of her visit in the Pacific northwest and Canada with her for the remainder of her life. She toured the Canadian Rockies, Yellowstone National Park and visited for several days at beautiful Chateau Lake Louise in the district of Alberta, Canada. The wild life in this northern region was a source of amazement and the grandeur of the mountains are inspiring.

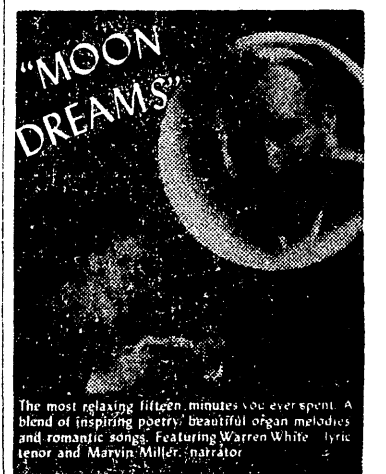

Mrs. Stephenson visited the Grand Coulee Dam near Spokane, Wash. It's the largest in the world and spectacular. Mrs. Stephenson was accompanied on this trip by her sister, Mrs. R. S. Bridges, of Little Rock, Ark. They visited in Chicago and St. Louis en route home.

Miss Jane Kilpatrick, whose family has been identified with Monroe for generations will be a traditional bride despite the recent bereavement in the family and the necessity of cancelling all pre-nuptial affairs. She will wear the ceremonious antique ivory satin wedding gown she selected far in advance of her wedding and will walk down a white carpeted aisle flooded with candlelight at St. Matthew's Catholic Church Friday, July 25, at 6 o'clock in the evening to become the bride of Mr. Louis Joseph Wilbert, Jr. Miss Kilpatrick will make a beautiful bride as she has Patricia features, lovely dark brown hair and is tall and slender like her attractive mother, who was formerly Martha Bennett. The passing on of Mrs. Kilpatrick's father, Dr. F. C. Bennett, prominently identified with the medical profession for years, necessitated a complete change of plans for the wedding. The ceremony will go forward as planned but the reception scheduled to take place at the Kilpatrick home, on Park Avenue, will not be held.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hammons of Capri, Venezuela, formerly of Sterling, Louisiana, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary Elizabeth to Stanley William Sisk of El Sombrero, Venezuela. Mr. Sisk is the son of Mrs. W. R. Adams of Atlanta, Georgia. The wedding will take place the latter part of November in the home of the bride's parents.

Friends will be glad to know that Mrs. Dean Selig is now convalescing at her home from a recent major operation at St. Francis sanitarium. At her bedside while she was ill was her son, Jonas Dean Selig of Charleston, S. C. He is stationed in the U. S. Naval hospital as staff pharmacist, third class. Mrs. Selig's sister, Mrs. R. A. Wasson of Baton Rouge was also at her bedside.

Firnberg-Sanford Wedding Takes Place At The First Methodist Church

Fashionable Throng Witnesses The Marriage Of Popular Young Couple

The First Methodist Church was suffused in mellow candlelight on the night of July the twelfth when Miss Margaret Elizabeth Firnberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lewis Firnberg, became the bride of Mr. Edward Hugh Sanford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hugh Sanford of New Orleans, La. Beautiful music flooded the church when Mrs. B. D. Allbritton, organist rendered a brilliant prelude.

While the candles were lighted and the guests were being seated by the groomsmen, Mr. H. L. Johns, Jr., Mr. Mike Bascich, Mr. Jack Easterling and Mr. Bob Firnberg. The lovely voice of Mrs. George Temple, was heard in two of the old favorites, "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," and "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

White gladioli were silhouetted against a lush, green background of fern and smilax. In semi-circle formation, tall white candelabra supported myriad cathedral tapers.

Bows of emerald green ribbon and fern marked the pews reserved for the family and intimate friend.

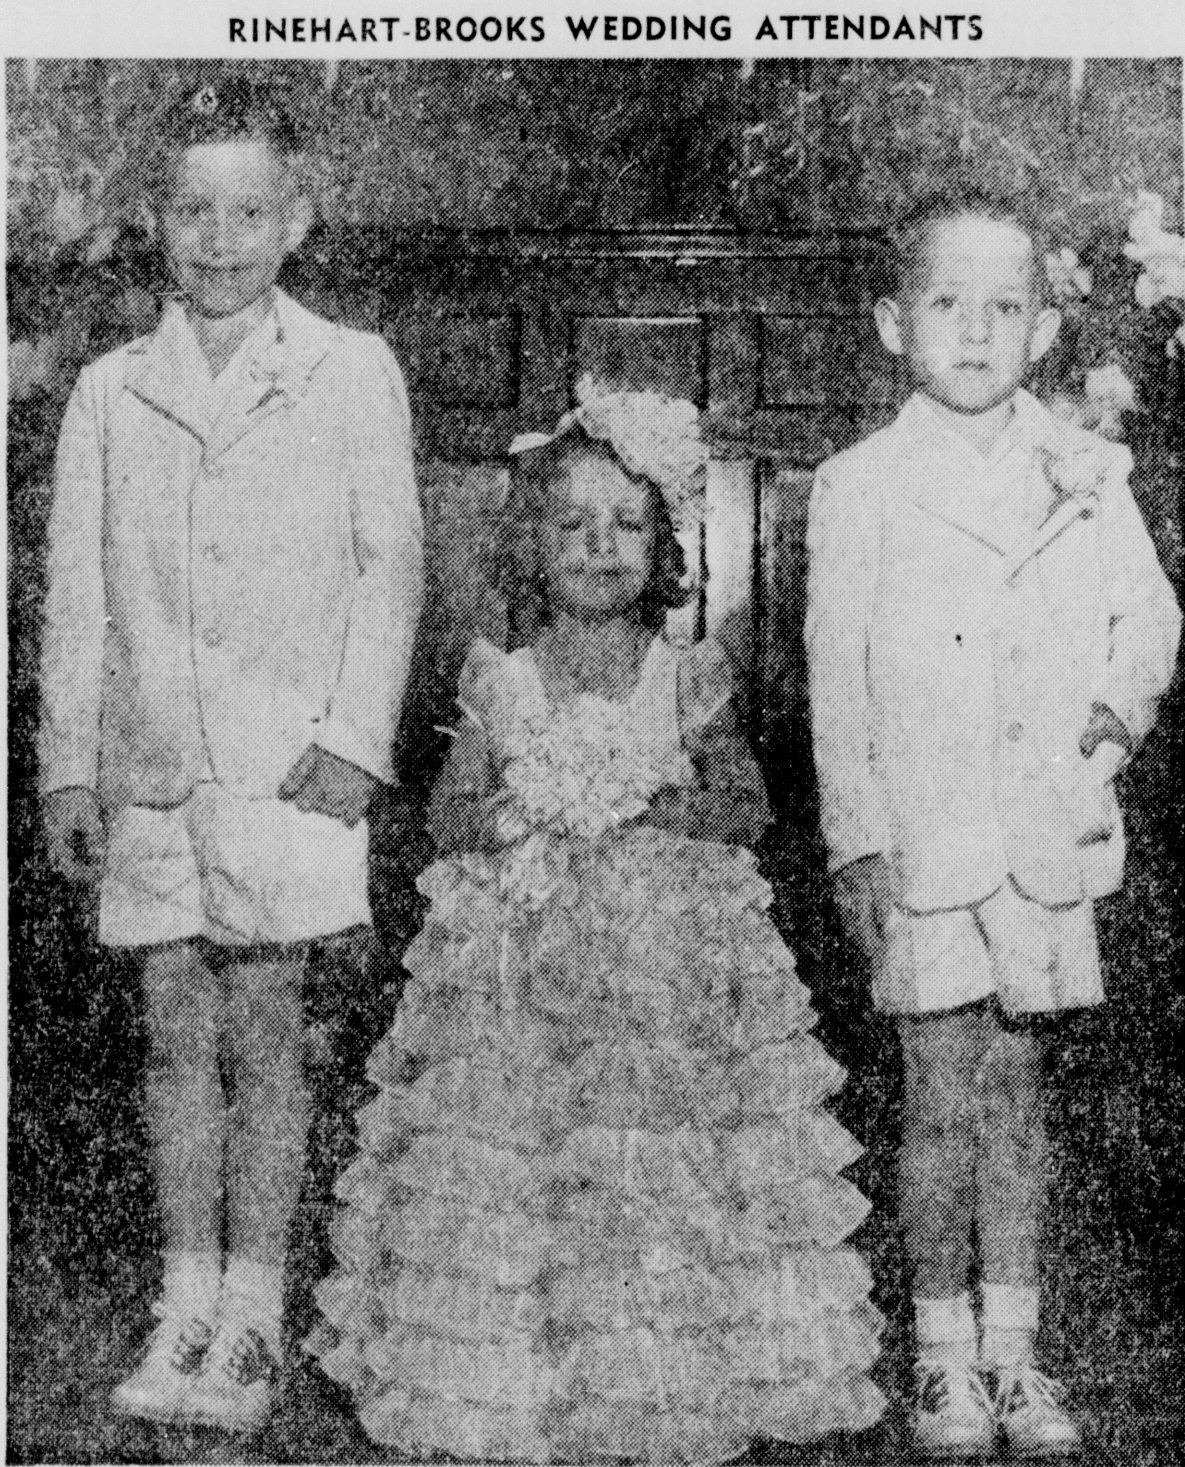

The maid of honor, Miss Lee Slagle, and the bridesmaids, Miss Polly Jean Phelps, Miss Lucille Mosely, Miss Martha Roddy and Miss Louise Munson, wore diaphanous gowns of lime green marquisette designed off-the-shoulder effect with short puffed sleeves. The skirts were long and full.

They all wore garlands of daisies in their hair and carried arm bouquets of Shasta daisies tied with long lengths of green ribbon.

Mr. William Sanford served as best man.

The impressive ceremony was performed by Dr. A. M. Serex, pastor of the First Methodist Church. The nuptial hour was seven-thirty o'clock in the evening.

The bride, walking down the white carpeted aisle with her father who gave her in marriage, wore a bouffant white marquisette gown of delicacy and grace. It was fashioned over white satin, off-the-shoulder effect with deep yoke edged with a bertha of Alencon lace. The long, full skirt, over hoops was trimmed with paniers of lace. Her heirloom lace veil was

Miss Carr Weds Mr. R. I. Waldrup

Impressive Ceremony Unites Young Couple At The First Baptist Church

A beautiful white, light weight wool suit with sparkling rhinestone buttons was worn by Miss Doris Marie Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Carr when she walked with her father down the aisle at the First Baptist Church to wed Mr. Roland Ivy Waldrup, son of Mrs. Ira Walrurp at three o'clock on the afternoon of June 22.

The church was fragrant with the perfume of gardenias, the south's favorite summer flower. They entwined the chancel rail and overflowed from urns placed in a semi-circle on the altar against a background of ferns, southern smilax, gladioli.

The bride wore an off-the-face white hat with shoulder length veil. She wore a corsage of white orchids and carried a white leather Bible adorned with sprays of white gladioli and long lengths of narrow white satin ribbon.

While the guests were being seated by the two groomsmen, W. A. Carr, Jr., and H. L. Waldrup, the organist, Mrs. Raymond Spence, rendered a solo concert and accompanied the soloist, Miss Jean Dozier, who sang "O Promise Me" and "Because." Organ numbers included "Prelude" by Chopin, "Ave Maria" by Schubert, "Clair de Lune" by Debussy and "Intermezzo" by Massenet.

Miss Lois Carr, the bride's sister, served as maid of honor. She wore a blue and white linen model with brown accessories and a wide-brimmed hat of white straw. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Mr. Robert M. Lenoire served as best man.

Rev. L. T. Hastings, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiated.

A reception at the Carr home was held following the ceremony. Mrs. Carr, the bride's mother, received the guests in a lovely white eyelet embroidered mod' with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother wore a summery model of print with corsage of white carnations.

In the candlelit dining room the bride and groom cut their wedding cake before departing for their honeymoon in New Orleans. It was a three-tiered confection beautifully embossed and surmounted with figurines of a bride and groom.

The bride's table was overlaid with handsome lace and at the four corners were plaques of white gladioli. White gladioli also overflowed from urns placed at every vantage point in the living room and dining room.

A variety of confections were served with frosted frappe. Mrs. R. C. Carr, aunt of the bride, presided over the punch bowl. Others assisting were Mrs. A. D. Mathys and Mrs. P. L. Neely.

For sentimental reasons the bride and groom cut their wedding cake with a silver knife from their wedding silver.

The bride wore for traveling a white model trimmed in gold buttons. Her hat was of brown and all accessories were of white including her corsage of white orchids.

Following their honeymoon, the bride and groom will be at home to their friends at 1004 Cole avenue.

The bride is a graduate of the Ouachita Parish High School and the Monroe Commercial School. She was a member of the Lionettes while in high school.

Mr. Waldrup is also a graduate of the Ouachita Parish High School. He is now associated with the Monroe Office Equipment Co.

Carr of Lake Charles, La.; Mrs. William Bryon Lumkin, Jr., and son, Stevie, Lake Charles, La. and Mrs. Marion A. MISS NITA ANN LANDREAUX WEDS MR. OGLESBEE AT ST. MATTHEW'S CATHOLIC CHURCH

Charming simplicity characterized the wedding July 10th of Miss Nita Ann Landreaux, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Landreaux and Mr. Willard Clifton Oglesbee, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Oglesbee.

The double ring ceremony was performed at 6:30 in the evening at St. Matthew's Catholic Church with Monsignor J. C. Marsh officiating. The church was beautifully decorated with bowls of marigolds and shasta daisies.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Della Williamson, organist, rendered a program of pre-nuptial music. "To a Wild Rose" by McDowell was played softly during the ceremony.

The entrance of the wedding party was marked by the playing of the traditional wedding march. Miss Inez Landreaux, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. She wore a rose printed sheer with navy accessories and a corsage of white carnations and tube roses. Bridesmaid, Miss Doris Landreaux, also a sister of the bride, was attired in green sheer with white accessories and wore a corsage of white carnations. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a suit of blue gabardine with white accessories and a corsage of split carnations and tube roses. She carried an ivory satin covered prayer book mounted with carnations and satin streamers which was presented to her by Sister Patricia and her Sodality in 1944. In observing the bridal traditions the bride wore for something old a brooch belonging to her paternal great grandmother and for something borrowed, the handkerchief used by her aunt, Mrs. J. J. McRiehl, on her wedding day. Mr. M. T. Austin attended the groom as best man and Mr. Gail Harkins was groomsmen.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride on the White's Ferry Road. Receiving with the bridal party were Mr. and Mrs. Landreaux and Mr. and Mrs. Oglesbee. Mrs. Landreaux wore rose sheer with corsage of carnations and tube roses. Mrs. Oglesbee wore white linen with carnation corsage.

The house was banked with garden flowers. Crystal bowls of perennial sweet peas, blue hydrangeas and marigolds were artistically arranged in the living room. In the dining room pink roses and fern were used. The bridal table was adorned with a handsome handmade tablecloth placed over pink satin. The wedding cake was a three-tiered confection embossed with pink rosebuds and soft green leaves and surmounted with a miniature bride and groom. Encircling the cake was a garland of pink roses and fern. Pink satin ribbon streamers were attached to the crystal holders supporting tall pink candles.

Mrs. Claire Inzina served punch from a crystal bowl which rested on a table overlaid with a handmade lace cloth on pink satin and was adorned with crystal bowls of pink roses and fern. Crystal trays holding individual cakes and mints embossed with pink rosebuds were passed among the guests by Mrs. Joseph Landreaux, Mrs. Bertman Wallette and Misses Dolores Stewart, Judith and Ethel Lee Landreaux and Lee Wallette. The guests signed their names in the brides book by soft light from tall pink candles. Miss Mildred McKnight was in charge of the bride's book.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Bertman Wallette and son of Grand Ecote, La., Mrs. J. J. Maricelli and son of Campiti, La., and Mr. Loyd Maricelli of Shreveport, La.

Mrs. Juliet Marx, New York, is visiting in the home of Mrs. Sig Masur for a few days.

Miss Brown Weds Mr. Kitchingham In Church Ceremony

The wedding of Miss Janis Mae Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Brown and Mr. Charles Kitchingham, son of Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Kitchingham, of this city, was beautifully solemnized with an impressive double-ring ceremony at the Calvary Baptist Church on June 21 at 6 o'clock in the evening, with the groom's father, Rev. Kitchingham, officiating.

The altar was banked with baskets of pink and blue hydrangeas. Candles in the seven-branched candelabra on the altar were lighted by Mrs. Grant Clark, while the pianist, Elaine Brothers, played softly, "I Love You Truly." The soloist, Rev. C. S. Cadwallender, rendered "Always," followed with a prayer by Rev. Grant Clark, pastor of the church.

The bride's mother, Mrs. D. R. Brown, wore a pink lace model, with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Miss Norma Jean Dozier, maid-of-honor, wore a blue gown, with a corsage of pink carnations. Mr. John Kitchingham, brother of the groom, served as best man.

The bride walked down the aisle with her father, Mr. D. R. Brown, who gave her in marriage. Her gown of pink crepe had a fitted bodice, with a full skirt and a bustle. The neckline was embroidered with seed pearls. Her accessories were black and pink and she wore an orchid corsage. For something old she wore a string of pearls, for something borrowed, a ring, and for good luck a penny in her shoe.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the Brown home. A three-tiered wedding cake embossed with pink rosebuds and green leaves was flanked by tall white tapers in crystal candelabra. Misses Jo Anne Brown, Belma Lee Knight, Elois Brothers and Elizabeth Kitchingham presided over the punch bowl. Miss Nell McCormick has just returned from a delightful vacation spent in New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Clarkson and Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Mathis formed a congenial foursome motoring yesterday morning to San Francisco, Calif., to attend the International Lions convention. En route they will visit points of interest.

Miss Moore will return home just in time to leave with her mother, Mrs. Douglas Moore for a visit, via airways, in Mexico City. They will be the guests of Mrs. Moore's cousin, Dr. Douglas Edwards.

Mrs. Nelson Abell and Miss Bennie Hughes have returned from New Orleans where they attended the marriage of Miss Elizabeth (Mimi) McConnell, formerly of this city, and John Walton Sherrouse, Jr., at Christ Church Cathedral, July 14.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pearson Dunn announce the arrival of their second child, William Edward, born July 15 at the St. Francis Sanatorium. The paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William Edwards Dunn of New Orleans, and the maternal grandmother is Mrs. Annie W. Trousdale.

His mother, Mrs. Ethel Newport, received a cable from him from Paris, that he was sailing on the S. S. Vance from Bremerhaven, Germany on July 12th and expected to be home by the end of July.

Mr. Newport served with the Combat and Construction Engineers, in England, France, Germany and Belgium. He received his discharge in Paris, Dec. 31st, 1945, and went into

A DEMURELY FEMININE LOOK WILL BE NOTED IN COLLEGE GIRL'S WARDROBE THIS YEAR

For the first time in the 1940's, a new generation of freshmen, streaming over college campuses this fall, will have a different kind of style personality. The fashions worn by these freshmen as well as by returning upper classmen will vividly reflect the far-reaching style changes of sportswear—active and spectacular—and all other related branches of ready to wear.

This year, Women's Wear Daily predicts, skirts will swing as the girls rush around corners to make their class . . . streaking over campus their new coats will flare behind them . . . sitting in classrooms they will present a neater, more pleasing sight with smoothly fitted belted sweaters drawn long over the hips . . . or worn tucked into their waistsband . . . while longer, fuller skirts cover up those formerly exposed knees (to the delight of the faculty). Trouser fashions, popular as ever, will reflect this general "tidying up of appearance," too, as they will fit better.

Narrow shoulders, tiny waists and longer, full skirts will give the date-bound college girl a prettier, more demurely feminine look. And finally—on prom night—the 1947 college girl will emerge in a full-skirted formal which recalls picture-pretty period gowns with jutting hips, miniature waist and flattering neckline.

In a survey among college girls throughout the country for its special "College Fashions" supplement on June 4, Women's Wear Daily finds that tradition, a certain amount of youthful "group complex" and everyday routine set the pace for campus fashion acceptances. The college girls outlined this year's wardrobe "musts" for Women's Wear Daily as follows:

Quality, simplicity and value are the "big three" in the minds of girls assembling their college clothes. College girls are—and must be—long-range planners. They like simplicity because it is sensible; and to many college girls simplicity and good taste are synonymous. They demand good quality because it carries a better guarantee for prolonged (and usually hard) wear . . . and because it, too, becomes synonymous with good taste.

By quality the college girl means good, wearable fabrics, such as tweeds, clan plaids, gabardines, neutral flannels. She means good workmanship, good fit, smart, sensible styling. Symbols of quality to her are camel's hair coats and gabardine coats, imported and domestic classic sweaters, well-fitting tweed and gabardine suits, men's wear gray flannels, sturdy corduroys, shirtwaist and button-front dresses in "interesting" fabrics, colors and patterns.

These fashions, which are the backbone of a good college wardrobe, basically remain the same yet every year—and this year more than ever—they change. They are longer, fuller, brighter, more varied, more individual. They are the "Changing Classics" which dominate the fashion picture throughout the year on campuses everywhere.

Today's college wardrobes reflect this changed way of college life, mainly in the number of suits (including a black town suit) owned by each girl . . . the variety of town and date dresses . . . the more careful selection of apparel and accessories. "We love long, smooth jackets," say girls at Wellesley, Smith and Vassar, "particularly in our suits." Gabardine continues most popular, and neat worsted patterns are increasingly liked.

Longer skirts are liked by college girls, who have started to "let down their hems like mad," according to a Wellesley senior. The exact length should be determined by wearer's height. Too long with flat heels, they are considered "crummy," but worn with high-heeled date shoes, the longer, fuller skirts get collegiennes okay. Skirts and sweaters forever—they continue to hold their position as the darling of the campus. College girls are asking for better fit in sweaters, so they look less bulky when tucked into waistsbands or when accented with a belt. They like sweaters that match their skirts as well as sweaters that pick up one color in their favorite plaid skirt.

MISS NITA ANN LANDREAUX WEDS MR. OGLESBEE AT ST. MATTHEW'S CATHOLIC CHURCH

Charming simplicity characterized the wedding July 10th of Miss Nita Ann Landreaux, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Landreaux and Mr. Willard Clifton Oglesbee, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Oglesbee.

The double ring ceremony was performed at 6:30 in the evening at St. Matthew's Catholic Church with Monsignor J. C. Marsh officiating. The church was beautifully decorated with bouquets of marigolds and shasta daisies. Exceeding the ceremony Mrs. Della Williamson, organist, rendered a program of pre-nuptial music, "To a Wild Rose" by McDowell was played softly during the ceremony.

The entrance of the wedding party was marked by the playing of the traditional wedding march. Miss Inez Landreaux, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. She wore a rose printed sheer with navy accessories and a corsage of white carnations and tube roses. Bridesmaid, Miss Doris Landreaux, also a sister of the bride, was attired in green sheer with white accessories and wore a corsage of white carnations. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a suit of blue gabardine with white accessories and a corsage of split carnations and tube roses. She carried an ivory satin covered prayer book mounted with carnations and satin streamers which was presented to her by Sister Patricia and her Sisters in 1944. In observing the bride traditions the bride wore for something old a brooch belonging to her paternal great grandmother and for something borrowed, the handkerchief used by her aunt, Mrs. J. J. Maricelli, on her wedding day. Mr. M. T. Austin attended the groom as best man and Mr. Gail Harkins was groomsmen.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride on the White's Ferry Road. Receiving with the bridal party were Mr. and Mrs. Landreaux and Mr. and Mrs. Oglesbee. Mrs. Landreaux wore rose sheer with corsage of carnations and tube roses. Mrs. Oglesbee wore white linen with carnation corsage.

The house was banked with garden flowers. Crystal bowls of perennial sweet peas, blue hydrangeas and marigolds were artistically arranged in the living room. In the dining room pink roses and fern were used. The bridal table was adorned with a handsome handmade tablecloth placed over pink satin. The wedding cake was a three-tiered confection embossed with pink rosebuds and soft green leaves and surmounted with a miniature bride and groom. Encircling the cake was a garland of pink roses and fern. Pink satin ribbon streamers were attached to the crystal holders supporting tall pink candles.

Mrs. Claire Inzina served punch from a crystal bowl which rested on a table overlaid with a handmade lace cloth on pink satin and was adorned with crystal bowls of pink roses and fern. Crystal trays holding individual cakes and mints embossed with pink rosebuds were passed among the guests by Mrs. Joseph Landreaux, Mrs. Bertman Walleth and Misses Dolores Stewart, Judith and Ethel Lee Landreaux and Lee Walleth. The guests signed their names in the brides' book by soft light from tall pink candles. Miss Mildred McKnight was in charge of the bride's book.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Bertman Walleth and son of Grand Ecote, La., Mrs. J. J. Maricelli and son of Campit, La., and Mr. Loyd Maricelli of Shreveport, La.

Mrs. Juliet Marx, New York, is visiting in the home of Mrs. Sig Masur for a few days.

CUT THEIR WEDDING CAKE

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kitchingham, whose wedding was a recent event of interest, cut their wedding cake at the reception following their marriage.

The wedding of Miss Janis Mae Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Brown and Mr. Charles Kitchingham, son of Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Kitchingham, of this city, was beautifully solemnized with an impressive double-ring ceremony at the Calvary Baptist Church on June 21 at 6 o'clock in the evening, with the groom's father, Rev. Kitchingham, officiating.

The altar was banked with baskets of pink and blue hydrangeas. Candles in the seven-branched candelabra on the altar were lighted by Mrs. Grant Clark, while the pianist, Elain Brothert, played softly, "I Love You Truly." The soloist, Rev. C. S. Cadwallender, rendered "Always," followed with a prayer by Rev. Grant Clark, pastor of the church.

The bride's mother, Mrs. D. R. Brown, wore a pink lace model, with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Miss Norma Jean Dozier, maid-of-honor, wore a blue gown, with a corsage of pink carnations. Mr. John Kitchingham, brother of the groom, served as best man.

The bride walked down the aisle with her father, Mr. D. R. Brown, who gave her in marriage. Her gown of pink crepe had a fitted bodice, with a full skirt and a bustle. The neckline was embroidered with seed pearls. Her accessories were black and pink and she wore an orchid corsage. For something old she wore a string of pearls, for something borrowed, a ring, and for good luck a penny in her shoe.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the Brown home. A three-tiered wedding cake embossed with pink rosebuds and green leaves was flanked by tall white tapers in crystal candelabra. Misses Jo Anne Brown, Belma Lee Knight, Elois Brothers and Elizabeth Kitchingham presided over the punch bowl.

After the bride and groom cut their wedding cake the bride changed her wedding gown for a black crepe model, with black accessories and a corsage of orchids.

The bride is a graduate of this year's class of Ouachita Parish High School. After a honeymoon in Jackson, Miss., the young couple will be at home to their friends at 3402 DeSiard Street.

MISS MARY LOUISE WILDER WEDS MR. D. C. COLLINS IN CHATHAM METHODIST CHURCH

At a beautiful and impressive ceremony at the Methodist Church, of Chatham, La., Miss Mary Louise Wilder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wilder, became the bride of Mr. D. C. Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Collins, of Sumner, Miss., with the Rev. W. H. Cornell officiating at the double-ring ceremony.

The altar was decorated with baskets of lilies and a branched candelabra supporting white tapers against a background of southern smilax. A concert of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. F. M. Walsworth, of Bernice, La., while the guests were being seated by the ushers, Mr. Buddy Cooper and Mr. Roy Garrett. The tapers were lighted by Miss Jean Carroll, of Monroe. Miss Louise Morris, of Shreveport sang, "Till The End Of Love," and "With This Ring I Thee Wed." The traditional wedding marches marked the beginning and end of the ceremony and "Claire de Lune" was heard as the vows were exchanged.

Miss Carroll was attired in a gown of pink net and lace, with ice blue satin girdle. Pink carnations and blue satin lined a shoulder strap on her gown. Her hat was a duchy bonnet made of pink lace with blue satin bows. She wore pink lace mitts and carried a pink candle, with net and satin streamers caught with blue forget-me-nots. Mrs. Walsworth wore a white crepe evening model, with a corsage of yellow carnations. Miss Morris wore a white chiffon evening model, with a corsage of pink roses.

Mrs. Wilder, the bride's mother, wore a black crepe model, with lace inserts over pink. Her hat was of pink satin and her gloves were pink. She wore a corsage of pink split carnations.

Mr. Robert Collins, of Jonesboro, served his brother as best man. Mrs. Roy Garrett, matron of honor, wore an original model of pink crepe, with a bustle back and matching pink gloves, and a dutch bonnet with a blue satin bow. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink sweet peas tied with blue satin ribbon.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely gown of white mousseline de sole and lace. The full skirt extended in a slight train. The bodice of lace fashioned with long fitted waist line, finished with circular ruffles and long sleeves was made with drop shoulders, with a yoke of mousseline de sole. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a Dutch bonnet of lace and orange blossoms. She carried a white prayer book, adorned with white orchids from which fell satin streamers, caught with tuberoses.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Wilder home. The bride's table was overlaid with a beautiful cutwork cloth and centered with the three-tiered wedding cake. The cake was surrounded with gardenias and ferns, and silver candelabra with white tapers. The buffet reflected an arrangement of gardenias and ferns around the punch bowl, presided over by Mrs. C. H. Mathews, aunt of the groom. She wore a black and white sheer model, with a corsage of white gardenias. Mrs. D. H. Cooper, aunt of the groom, assisted in serving the wedding cake. She wore a navy sheer model, with a corsage of tuberoses. Mrs. Ronnie Cannon, in a shimmering gown of blue tulle, presided at the bride's book.

For traveling, the bride changed to a brown gabardine suit, a white derby hat, and brown accessories. She wore a white orchid corsage.

The Parkview Baptist Church Observes First Anniversary

COLON P. COAKER
Pastor

"As the Parkview Baptist Church comes to the end of the first year of existence, the congregation can exclaim with the prophet Samuel: "Hitherto, hath the Lord helped us." The Lord hath wrought great things for the membership whereof they give thanks. His blessings have been in the form of numbers to the fellowship, tithes and offerings put into the treasury, unbroken family fellowship in worship, and true admiration and respect from the community.

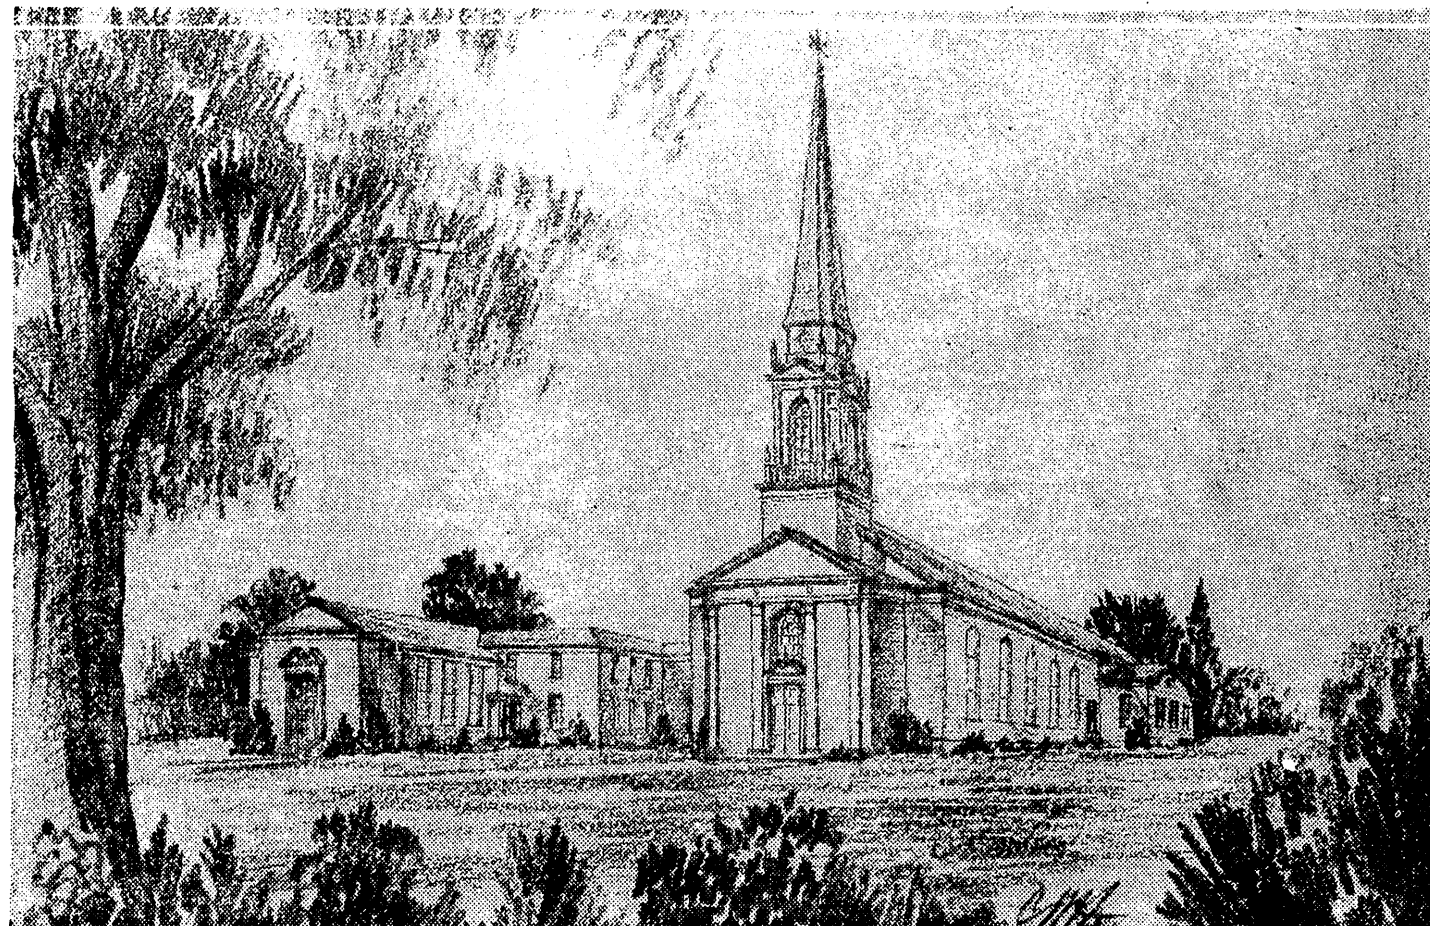

During the year the membership has increased to 112, with approximately 67 in places of leadership. Within this time the church has purchased a lot costing $12,500.00, paying $9,000.00 as to date. It is the confidence of the membership that by the second anniversary there will be a house of worship of their own in which to conduct all religious services.

As a means of showing gratitude for the blessings experienced from God by our church, a special day of services has been planned. In keeping with this first anniversary, the morning worship hour will be devoted to a program commemorating the occasion, including a special message by the Pastor. The evening service will feature an evangelistic program of special music and sermon. We are hoping to break all records in attendance at both the Sunday School and Training Union hours. All plans are to make this occasion the biggest day in our church.

To make this celebration complete, we are anxious to have as many of our members, former members, and friends in attendance as possible. This is your special invitation to be with us. We hope you will come. It will be a happy occasion to renew old acquaintances, make new friends, and enjoy Christian fellowship on the Lord's Day.

As the Parkview Baptist Church comes to the end of the first year of existence, the congregation can exclaim with the prophet Samuel: "Hitherto, hath the Lord helped us." The Lord hath wrought great things for the membership whereof they give thanks. His blessings have been in the form of numbers to the fellowship, tithes and offerings put into the treasury, unbroken family fellowship in worship, and true admiration and respect from the community.

During the year the membership has increased to 112, with approximately 67 in places of leadership. Within this time the church has purchased a lot costing $12,500.00, paying $9,000.00 as to date. It is the confidence of the membership that by the second anniversary there will be a house of worship of their own in which to conduct all religious services.

As a means of showing gratitude for the blessings experienced from God by our church, a special day of services has been planned. In keeping with this first anniversary, the morning worship hour will be devoted to a program commemorating the occasion, including a special message by the Pastor. The evening service will feature an evangelistic program of special music and sermon. We are hoping to break all records in attendance at both the Sunday School and Training Union hours. All plans are to make this occasion the biggest day in our church.

To make this celebration complete, we are anxious to have as many of our members, former members, and friends in attendance as possible. This is your special invitation to be with us. We hope you will come. It will be a happy occasion to renew old acquaintances, make new friends, and enjoy Christian fellowship on the Lord's Day.

OUT-OF-TOWN WEDDING IS OF INTEREST TO A WIDE CIRCLE OF MONROE FRIENDS

In an impressive double ring ceremony Thursday morning at 11 o'clock at St. Mary's Catholic Church, with Father Gregory H. Keller officiating, Miss Berenice Zambie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Zambie, became the bride of Ford Tonos, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Tonos of Greenville, Miss.

Burning tapers cast a soft glow over the altar where vases and baskets of white gladiolus and majestic daisies provided the background. On either side were large baskets of the same flowers and white candles in white candelabra. The communion rail was embanked with gladioli flowers and majestic daisies against a background of greenery. Bowls of the same flowers decorated the side altars.

The white aisle cloth was rolled down as the time approached for the entrance of the bridal party.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. L. J. Bell, soloist, Miss Rose Ann Brocato, organist, and Mrs. Lois Carter, violinist. Mrs. Bell sang "Because" preceding the ceremony and "Ave Maria" during nuptial mass. Miss Brocato and Mrs. Carter played during the entire ceremony.

The ushers, Fred Abide of Leland, Miss., James Zambie, George Tonore of Monroe, La., and Paul Abide of Greenville, Miss., walked down the aisle double file and stood at the altar rail.

To the strains of the traditional wedding march, the bride walked with her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of white duchess satin, fashioned with tight fitting bodice buttoned down the back. It had a sweetheart neckline and the leg-of-mutton sleeves were tight fitting below the elbow and ended in calla points over the hands. The full skirt fell in graceful folds and ended in a long train. Her long veil of net fell from a dutch bonnet heavily beaded in pearls. Her only ornament was a diamond necklace, a family heirloom, belonging to her cousin, Mrs. Joe Gootte. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis, centered with a white orchid, from which fell shivers of ribbon with stephanotis tied in lover's knots.

Mrs. George Tonore, of Monroe, La., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Helen Joseph, cousin of the bride, and Miss Nora Tonos, sister of the groom. Janice Zambie, niece of the bride, was flower girl. All wore identical models of lime green summer taffeta, fashioned with sweetheart neckline, tight waist with elbow length sleeves and a skirt gathered full in front, with fluffies in the back and ending in a short train. They wore small heart shaped hats of green tulle trimmed with a velvet bow, the tulle extending into streamers in the back.

The matron of honor carried an orchid net heart centered with a purple orchid and gypsophelia, with streamers of orchid satin ribbon tied to lover's knots. The two maids carried identical cerise net hearts entwined with cerise roses and feverfew, with streamers of the same color. The flower girl carried a miniature heart matching those of the maids.

Mr. John Tonos, brother of the groom served as best man. The ring bearer, James Zambie, Jr., was dressed in white and carried a calla lily with a satin bow. The altar boys, Eugene Joseph and Vincent Ruane, wore white cassocks with wide red belts. All male attendants wore boutonnières of white carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Catholic Club.

In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Zambie, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Tonos and the bride and groom.

Mrs. Zambie wore a model of gray figured print with white accessories and a corsage of white camellias. Mrs. Tonos was attractively attired in a costume of black, with white lace trim. Her flowers were white carnations.

The bride's table, covered with an exquisite cloth of lace, was centered with an artistic arrangement of white carnations and snapdragons. The bride and groom cut their beautiful wedding cake and Mrs. Mike Etch presided over the punch bowl. Mrs. Joe Gootte had charge of the bride's book.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. Homer Harrington, Mrs. James Zambie and Mrs. Henry Zambie.

The bride and groom left for an extended wedding trip and on their return will be at home in Greenville, Miss., where Mr. Tonos is engaged in business.

Miss Maurice Tucker, whose marriage on July twelfth was an event of interest and inspiration for a number of lovely affairs during her engagement days.

The miscellaneous shower in the home of Mrs. Inez Craighead was included in the courtesies.

The couple presented Miss Tucker afforded a pretty accent for the summer print she was wearing.

The gifts presented in unique manner consisted of china, silver and crystal in her wedding pattern, as well as numerous other gifts of a more personal nature.

Delicious refreshments were served. Miss Alice Jones entertained informally in her honor on Tuesday evening of last week. The time was spent most pleasantly with bridal contests adding a note of merriment.

Miss Jones served iced drinks and dainty viands to Miss Tucker and Misses Jo Lane Jarrell, Mary Lee Frost, Laverne Kierbow of Ruston, Jean Crosby and Sylvia Banata of Baton Rouge.

The gift from the hostess was a beautifully-bound cook book.

ATTRACTIVE VISITOR IN CITY

Miss Betty Stripling of Nacogdoches, Texas, was the house guest last week of Miss June Lewis. She was the central figure at numerous social affairs given in her honor. APPROVAL

The Truman doctrine was declared March 12, Lovett said that the "urgency" has increased since President Truman first laid his program before Congress. Subsequently Congress approved the program and the state department started it on funds borrowed from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, pending an appropriation from Congress.

"I think it is clear," Lovett said, "that the urgency of this program, as stated by the president in his message, has been greatly increased by subsequent events in Greece and in the rest of the world.

"As you know from the daily papers, the Greek army is fighting an open battle with large numbers of well-trained and well-equipped guerrillas on the northern front.

"Guerrilla leaders have openly stated their purpose to try to set up a shadow government by force and the Greek government is faced with a much more critical security problem than that which existed at the time of the president's message."

Some of the American funds would go directly for military assistance to the Greeks in their fight against the Communists. Col. Carl T. Tischbein of the army general staff said $135,000,000 of the $300,000,000 for Greece would be spent on military supplies and food. He estimated $90,000,000 of the $100,000,000 for Turkey would be used on military supplies.

Actually while most concern here at the moment is centered on the critical situation in Greece, there is also some apprehension over the next steps in development of the Marshall plan for European recovery because of differences among the United States, Britain and France over industrial revival of western Germany.

Thus three major Washington policies—the Truman doctrine, Marshall plan and reliance on the United Nations to keep the peace—are under fire this week-end. Together they form an integrated pattern of American resistance to the growth of disorder and the spread of Communism as an extension of Soviet power in Europe.

How they will come through the tests which they now face may be known, at least partially, within a week. These are the difficulties in which they are involved:

Truman—while Turkey is for the moment a quiet sector, the United States is committed in Greece to do everything it can in terms of economic help and military supplies to prevent the Communists from overthrowing the Greek government.

There is no public evidence that this American position has in any way undermined what is believed here to be the Soviet determination to back through their satellite countries the forces trying to overthrow the Greek government. On the contrary some authorities believe the Soviets either are trying desperately to win success before the full effect of American help is felt in Greece or at least to test critically the extent of American willingness to back the Greek authorities.

United Nations—to try to prevent Yugoslavia and Albania and to a lesser degree Bulgaria from aiding the Communists in Greece, the United States is pressing in the United Nations Security Council a proposal to create a more or less permanent Greek border commission, Russia opposes this, possibly to the extent of vetoing it when it comes to a vote in the near future.

Since countries supporting the American position in the council contend that the border situation clearly demands action, and since both sides agree the situation is bad, the Security Council is on the spot. Diplomatic authorities here believe that if it proves unable to do something effective, its total usefulness will be greatly impaired.

Marshall plan—the United States and Britain are in disagreement over holding a proposed conference here to find ways of boosting Ruhr production, which Secretary Marshall

U. S. TO CONTROL PACIFIC ISLANDS

Former Jap Bases To Be Administered By America Under Trusteeship

WASHINGTON, July 19.—(AP)—The United States made history today by taking over administration, under a United Nations trusteeship, of the central Pacific islands captured from Japan.

President Truman signed legislation putting into immediate effect the trusteeship agreement covering the Marianas, Marshall and Carolines. He named Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, U. S. High Commissioner to the trust territory.

Denfeld, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, will serve as administrator under an executive order terminating military government in the islands and setting up an interim civil administration under the navy pending enactment of a permanent organic law.

The president, in a statement said suggestions for such a law will be presented to congress next year. He asked the State department to draw up a permanent plan transferring administration to a civilian agency of the government "at the earliest practicable date."

The United States officially took over the island administration yesterday, but announcement of the president's signature of the enabling act and his executive order was not made until today.

Thus, for the first time in its history this country becomes a trusteeship power. Following the first World War, the League of Nations set up mandates for conquered territory, but the United States did not become a mandate power. The United Nations security council approved the trusteeship system—proposed by the United States—last April.

that it will enable more veterans to continue their education."

Referring to authorization of the terminal leave payment program by Congress last year, Taft said:

"If the payment was justified at all, I don't see why it was not justified in cash." He added:

"We all agree that the government should reduce its debt, and by failing to pass the tax reduction bill we have left in the treasury for payment of the debt, according to my calculation, over $6,000,000,000."

The Otis observed that the terminal leave bonds are counted as part of the $255,000,000 national debt, and said payment of them "will reduce the debt just as much as payment of any other bonds."

Apparently replying to treasury department contentions that cashing the bonds would be inflationary, Taft declared:

"It is true that it is slightly more inflationary than the payment of bonds and notes held by banks, but in my opinion the payment of $6,000,000,000 of debt in a single year out of taxes collected from the people is too

Marshall plan—the United States and Britain are in disagreement over holding a proposed conference here to find ways of boosting Ruhr coal production, which Secretary Marshall

has said is essential to the recovery of Europe. The United States has rejected a British proposal either to broaden the conference to include other western German economic problems or else hold a strictly coal conference in Berlin. Britain has not answered the rejection yet but both British and American sources said some compromise might be worked out. If it is not, plans for European recovery may suffer a basic setback.

The picture has been further complicated by a French protest to the United States against any action at this time to boost the general level of industrial production in western Germany. The French claim such action would upset the Paris conference committees now trying to work out details of a European self-help program under the Marshall plan. The difficulty is that the British and Americans are reported to have agreed already on an increase in the level of industry. However, no official announcement of this increase has yet been made, presumably because of French opposition.

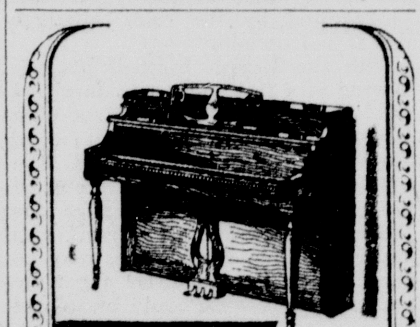

Here, too, officials report attempts to find a way out but do not disguise the fact that the task is extremely difficult.

Referring to authorization of the terminal leave payment program by Congress last year, Taft said:

"If the payment was justified at all, I don't see why it was not justified in cash." He added:

"We all agree that the government should reduce its debt, and by failing to pass the tax reduction bill we have left in the treasury for payment of the debt, according to my calculation, over $6,000,000,000."

The Ohioan observed that the terminal leave bonds are counted as part of the $256,000,000 national debt, and said payment of them "will reduce the debt just as much as payment of any other bonds."

Apparently replying to treasury department contentions that cashing the bonds would be inflationary, Taft declared:

"It is true that it is slightly more inflationary than the payment of bonds and notes held by banks, but in my opinion the payment of $6,000,000,000 of debt in a single year out of taxes collected from the people is too

WARD, STRANAHAN FOES IN WESTERN AMATEUR FINALS

Defending Champion Reaches Title Round With Win Over Sheehan

By Skipper Patrick
DES MOINES, July 19.—(P)—Frank Stranahan, defending champion from Toledo, O., scrambled from almost certain defeat to advance to the final round of the Western Amateur Golf Tournament with a 4 and 3 victory over Thomas Sheehan, Birmingham, Mich., today.

Stranahan's victory, an uphill battle that found him 3 down at the end of the morning round of 18 holes, gave him a spot in tomorrow's championship stretch of 36 holes with Marvin (Bud) Ward, the genial golfer from Spokane, Wash., who defeated Robert (Bob) Willits, Kansas City, 3 and 1, in today's semi-finals.

It will be the third meeting of Stranahan and Ward, who stand all-even for their first two matches. Stranahan defeated Ward 1 up in 35 holes for the Western crown 1st year and was eliminated by Ward, 2 and 1, in the National Amateur tournament.

Sheehan, swinging blazing-hot high irons and a steady putter, had a 5-4 up lead at the end of nine holes in the morning round as he made the turn in 31, five strokes under par, and finished the round 3 up.

The fighting Irishman, Notre Dame golf captain and National Amateur medalist in 1939, lost his touch during the afternoon round and Stranahan had evened the match at the 24th hole.

From that point it was only a matter of time until Stranahan was to close the match with a par 5 on the long 482-yard thirty-third hole on Wakonda Country Club's hilly course.

TAG TEAM SCRAP HEADLINE EVENT ON MAT PROGRAM

Steele And Indio Yaqi Will Pair Against Mobley
And Craig

A tag team brawl, featuring Jack "Singer" Steele, Indio Yaqi, Rex Mobley, and George Craig, will be the headline event on Tuesday night's wrestling show at Gus Kallio's Arena. It was announced last night by Promoter Kallio.

The match, the result of a challenge by Craig, the Tulsa tussler who last week lost his Louisiana light heavyweight crown to Steele, the Sioux City bad boy, will not only have the present and only recent state champions in action but also two former world's light-heavy kinglypins.

Steele, who also once held the world's crown, has been paired with Indio Yaqi, the rowdy little Mexican Indian, against the talents of Mobley, ex-world's champ from Texas City, Tex., and Craig.

The match will give Craig and Steele an opportunity to renew their keen mat rivalry that has attracted growing crowds to Kallio's Walnut street arena in recent weeks, but Mobley is also an old foe of Steele's and can very likely take the play away from Craig when it comes to dishing out action at the expense of the Iowa super-villain.

Craig, in making the challenge to Steele, declared he could choose any partner he wanted and that he would do the same.

In coming up with Indio Yaqi, the long-haired Indian, Steele selected a partner with much the same style of brawling as himself. Steele is a rough-and-tumble boy whose favorite form of mayhem is to knee his opponents in the back until they flop helpless on the mat and then follow with a series of throat-stomps to put them away.

Indio Yaqi used the same methods to beat George Curtis in straight falls last week.

The tag team event will have a 90-minute time limit with two falls to win.

In introductory one-fall preliminaries Steele will battle Craig, and Mobley will appear against Indio Yaqi, Promoter Kallio said.

SHREVEPORT, La., July 19.—(AP)—Leading semi-pro teams of Louisiana will compete in a ten-day tournament which opens at the Shreveport Texas League baseball park Sunday.

The program is under the sponsorship of the National Semi-Pro Baseball Congress and the survivor will be in line to enter the national meet in Wichita, Kans., in August.

Sixteen teams are registered for competition here, with all entries being from North Louisiana.

City Judge Ruvian D. Hendrick is serving as commissioner of semi-pro baseball in North Louisiana and will be in charge of the tournament.

Hendrick's chief aide will be Frank Courtney, who has been named publicly director and supervisor of the tournament.

Bonnie Peters, president of the Shreveport Texas League baseball club, and his staff are lending their assistance to the semi-pros.

Several major league scouts will be here to check on the athletes.

The first game of the tourney will pit Barksdale Field's Skyriders against Mooringsport and play will start at 2:30 p. m. Sunday. Barksdale Field is defending champion. Following this contest Vivian and Couthatta will take the field.

Weekday doubleheaders will start at 6 p. m. First game winners will form one flight and first game losers will meet in another.

The winner of the Louisiana tournament will be matched with the Mississippi champion and the victor of that series will go to the national meet.

Judge Hendrick said information reaching him is that there are several fine baseball prospects scheduled for action here this week, and that well-balanced teams will be in competition.

The program through Wednesday follows:

Monday—Houghton vs. Blanchard; Keithville vs. Beaird of Shreveport.

Tuesday—Oak Grove vs. Cotton Valley; Greenwood vs. Doyline.

Wednesday—V. F. W. (Fair Park of Shreveport) vs. Chestnut; Elm Grove vs. Bossier City Boosters.

In an attempt to defend last year's state and regional semi-pro baseball championships, the Barksdale Field Skyriders have only three of last year's players on their 16-man squad in this year's tourney.

T/Sgt. "Kelly" Kelly, who played third base last year, will be back to cover the hot corner. T/Sgt. "Mort" Mortimer will be playing shortstop for his second tournament with the Skyriders, and M/Sgt. Tom Toms will be back on first base.

T/Sgt. Walter Dawkins, pitcher and coach of the Skyriders, played on last year's team, which was the defending champion. The National Semi-Pro baseball champs. By a quirk of fate both the Enidreids and the Skyriders were eliminated in the National playoffs by the same team from Portland, Ore.

In the last two games played, Barksdale Field has showed promise of being right in the middle of things in the state playoffs. Playing Springfield, who were tied for second place with the Skyriders in the North Louisiana Semi-Pro League last Sunday afternoon, Barksdale came out on the long end of a 7-4 count tallying three circuit clubs in a one-sided slugfest.

For the first practice game before the tournament, Barksdale invaded Couthatta, La., last Thursday and won by a 10-4 score. Wingard, outfielder for the Skyriders, knocked a home run in both games.

The men representing Barksdale Field in the state tournament and their respective positions are: Cpl. R. Bradshaw and M/Sgt. W. Bridges, catchers; T/Sgt. W. Dawkins, S/Sgt. V. Rowden, S/Sgt. J. James, M/Sgt. W. Johnson and Sgt. R. Sullivan, pitchers.

The schedule will be stepped up Thursday to three games per day with starting time for the triple header set for 4 p. m.

Under the double elimination system each team must be defeated twice before being eliminated. Based on the season's record, it is expected that Barksdale, Oak Grove, Bossier City and Couthatta will be the toughest to eliminate.

The Boosters are under the leadership of the veteran Lou Humphrey. Heading Humphrey's hurling corps is Cotton Barnes, local speedball merchant. Also available are moundsmen Clyde Baldwin, now a member of the L. S. U. Tiger squad, and Pilot Humphrey himself.

Oak Grove is skippered by Bill Thaxton, former manager of the Silas Mason team in the local City League. Thaxton has several well known players from the North Louisiana League. Included are veterans Doodle Harper at shortstop, Buster Chadwick, third base, first baseman Linny Husband, and former Texas League pitchers Tom Perry and Jess Harrison. Harrison was a member of the local Texas League entry for a while during 1946.

Chestnut and Couthatta are members of the Red River Valley League and have picked the best players from that league to compose the teams.

TAG TEAM SCRAP
HEADLINE EVENT
ON MAT PROGRAM

Steele And Indio Yaqui Will
Pair Against Mobley
And Craig

A tag team brawl, featuring Jack "Stinger" Steele, Indio Yaqui, Rex Mobley, and George Craig, will be the headline event on Tuesday night's wrestling show at Gus Kallio's Arena. It was announced last night by Promoter Kallio.

The match, the result of a challenge by Steele, the Tulsa tussler who last week lost his Louisiana light-heavyweight crown to Steele, the Sioux City bad boy, will not only have the present and only recent state champions in action but also two former world's light-heavy champions.

Steele, who also once held the world's crown, has been paired with Indio Yaqui, the rowdy little Mexican Indian, against the talents of Mobley, ex-world's champ from Texas City, Tex., and Craig.

The match will give Craig and Steele an opportunity to renew their keen mat rivalry that has attracted growing crowds to Kallio's Walnut street arena in recent weeks, but Mobley is also an old foe of Steele's and can very likely take the play away from Craig when it comes to dishing out action at the expense of the Iowa super-villain.

Craig, in making the challenge to Steele, declared he could choose any partner he wanted and that he would do the same.

In coming up with Indio Yaqui, the long-haired Indio, Steele selected a partner with much the same style of brawling as himself. Steele is a rough-and-tumble boy whose favorite form of mayhem is to kneel his opponents in the back until they flop helpless on the mat and then follow with a series of throat-stomps to put them away.

Indio Yaqui used the same methods to beat George Curtis in straight falls here last week.

The tag team event will have a 90-minute time limit with two falls to win.

STATE SEMI-PRO
BASEBALL MEET
STARTING TODAY

Barksdale, Mooringsport In Opener Today; Oak Grove Plays Tuesday

SHREVEPORT, La., July 19.—(AP)—Leading semi-pro teams of Louisiana will compete in a ten-day tournament which opens at the Shreveport Texas League baseball park Sunday.

The program is under the sponsorship of the National Semi-Pro Baseball Congress and the survivor will be in line to enter the national meet in Wichita, Kans., in August.

Sixteen teams are registered for competition here, with all entries being from North Louisiana.

City Judge Ruvian D. Hendrick is serving as commissioner of semi-pro baseball in North Louisiana and will be in charge of the tournament.

Hendrick's chief aide will be Frank Courtney, who has been named publicity director and supervisor of the tournament. Bonneau Peters, president of the Shreveport Texas League baseball club, and his staff are lending their assistance to the semi-pros.

Jonesville, Building For Future,
Justly Proud Of Kids' Ball Club

By Jay Paul Wade
JONESVILLE, La., July 17.—(Special)—Mr. Baseball Scout, can you spare a moment?

Maybe your front office would be interested in giving you a bonus if you could sign up an entire baseball team on which eight members of its starting line-up are slapping the old horsehide about at a .300 or better clip. Or, maybe the moguls would just think you plain crazy for mentioning it.

And, if you told the boys behind the mahogany desks that this team has scored 1 1/4 runs in seven contests for an average of almost 15 per game, they would phone for the straight jacket custodian. They probably would be dubious even if you tried to report the first string lineup has a team batting average of .433, collecting 88 hits out of 203 turns at the plate.

But, if you want to take the chance, it would pay you to drop down to this burg where three rivers form to meet another and provide some of the world's best fishing and where Coach Frank Schneider is opening plenty of eyes with one of the hottest baseball teams seen in these parts in ages.

You can bring contracts along, but just for verification of your scout report, because these players are for future delivery. Say, about five years from now.

We're referring to the Jonesville Baby Lions, a team composed of 10-14 year-old youngsters who, at sleep and play baseball with a finesse that is afforded by few older aggregations.

Two years from now, folks down here believe they will form the nucleus of one of the top American Legion junior baseball teams in the state.

If you ask about five years from now, fans down here will give you a knowing look and a confident "wait and see" smile. It might be in with the fact that the town of Jonesville has already bought a 10-acre playground plot with the announced intention of erecting an elaborate baseball park.

It all started earlier in the summer when Schneider, a former star athlete at Block High School here and idol of the younger element, decided to give the kids a break. A Legion

Junior team was being formed but the players were in the awkward age and had been without training during the war years. Schneider knew good baseball in Jonesville would have to be a thing of the future.

Broaching the subject to several businessmen, he immediately received favorable and financial support. In fact, the Baby Lions have a better bank account than many of the league teams operating in North Louisiana.

Expecting about 20 boys to report to the first practice session, he was confronted with nearly 40. Ages ranged from seven to 14. A diamond, about the size of a softball field, was rigged up on Block High campus and the lights used in the past for softball were utilized for night practice sessions.

Although his charges were eager, Schneider would not schedule a game for the first month. Alternating day and night sessions, he steadily drilled the youngsters in their fundamentals. In between, he taught them a trick or two he had learned from his own semi-pro experience.

To add to the morale of the squad, parents cooperated with his request to purchase each player a uniform with "Baby Lions" in red letters across the front.

Batting average of the starting line-up as released this week revealed:
Edgar Lee (Hoot) Gibson, catcher, .703; Bill Davis, first base and pitcher, .655; Albert Clarence Wurster, shortstop and co-captain, .430; Harold (Sonny) Davis, outfielder and pitcher, .391; James Gird, third base, .368; Bud Wilson, pitcher and outfielder, .360; Jerry LaPrairie, outfielder, .333; Fred Parish, outfielder, .300, and Dee Brown Jr., second base, .182.

There's the dope, Mr. Scout. But as a word of warning, don't let Schneider catch you trying to lure one of his players away. A bat may slip out of his hands—in your direction!

GIRLS TAKE PART IN GOLF PROGRAM

Free Instruction Already Available To Boys, Also For Lassies

When Johnny Myers, McGuire Park Golf Club pro began offering free golfing instructions to youths 20 years old and younger he left out the girls, but the feminine golf hopefuls are moving in on the McGuire program anyhow.

Myers last night said three girls had already requested instructions the same as the boys and announced that classes for girls would be instituted Tuesday morning.

The youthful McGuire pro has been spending his time with the boys for the past few weeks on Tuesday mornings, but beginning this week the boys will have their session from 9 until 10 o'clock, and the girls will take over from 10 until 11 o'clock.

Ann Humphries, Ann Shafte, and Clara Munholland were the lassies to call the turn on the McGuire pro, and apparently he likes it, explaining, "Who knows? We might even develop a girl to bring future golfing laurels to our city and club as well as a boy."

Meanwhile, the Spring Handicap Tournament for McGuire members is continuing. Matches remaining to be played not later than next Sunday will be W. M. Mitch II against "Shep" Givault, J. Y. Pipes opposing Frank Johnson, and E. E. Eaves facing Jordan Barton.

The winner of the Spring Handicap will receive a complete set of irons, and the runner-up will get a rain jacket.

IN CAR COLLISION

Two persons suffered painful injuries when two automobiles collided in front of the Coronado Club on Louisiana Ave., at 8:55 yesterday.

Arnold Crockett, 34, of Rt. 3, West Monroe, was reported by hospital attendants to have suffered cuts, bruises and possible fractures, while Hilton Talbird, 18, of Eros, La., received minor cuts and bruises. They were rushed to the St. Francis Sanitarium by a Hixon Brothers ambulance.

Drivers of the two cars were Donald Talbird, Route 2, West Monroe, and J. E. Ellis, 201 McGuire St., Monroe.

According to police, Talbird's car in which the two injured men were passengers, was struck by Ellis, traveling west on Louisiana, as Talbird pulled out of the Coronado driveway.

The two occupants of Ellis's car, Gene Warren, West Monroe and Mrs. Jack LeDoux, in addition to the two drivers all escaped with minor scratches. Both cars were reportedly badly damaged.

STYMIE SURGES

TAKE GOLD CUP

Reclaims Lead As Top Money-Winner; Assault Finishes Third

By Sid Feder
NEW YORK, July 19.—(AP)—The Cts. derella horse of the turf—stretch-scoring Stymie—dropped out of the clouds in the rain and the slop at Belmont today and surged to victory in the first running of racing's world series, the Empire City International Gold Cup.

With one mighty lunge at the wire, after he had rushed up from practically a city block behind, the turf's cheapest bargain baby hung his head on the wire in this hottest interna-

ARMED WINNER
CHICAGO, July 19.—(AP)—Armed, the Calumet Farm's gallant gelding, catapulted to third place in the list of world's leading money winners today by an easy victory in the $55,500 Arlington Park Handicap before 30,000 fans. Armed $37,400 first money.

Armed's margin over the King Ranch's Bridal Flower, stablemate of Assault, was a length, but the golden gelding never was in any danger after taking the lead from Bridal Flower on the first turn.

The Brolite Farm's Challenge Me was third, slightly more than two lengths behind Bridal Flower. Armed paid $2.80 $2.20 and $2.20. Bridal Flower returned $4.20 and $2.80 and Challenge Me paid $3.00 to show.

tional horse race in 20 years to turn back such fancy steppers as Assault, the South American champions, Endeavour and Ensouo, and the three-year-old glamour boy, Phalanx.

And with it, the chunky chestnut six-year-old veteran, who was claimed for $1,500 by pigeon-fancier Hirsch Jacobs back in 1943, took back the world money-winning title he lost to Assault last week. There was a pot of $75,000 waiting at the finish for him and tiny Conn McCreary in this grind, which boosted his earnings to $678,510 for his five years of racing and put him out in front among the all-time top handball boys once more.

The "name" horses in the race not only didn't whip the distance-running son of Equipoise as he came roaring along in the last five-sixteenths of a mile; they couldn't even challenge him at the end. For, at the wire, it was Natchez, a Philadelphia-owned front runner—a front runner all hands expected to run out of gas long before the finish of this mile-and-five-eighths—who held on in a grim drive and forced Stymie to go all out to get home by a head.

Back in third place—four lengths back, in fact—was the clubfoot comet, Assault, one-time Texas playmate of Stymie. He made his move rounding the turn, got up close enough to almost be stepping on Natchez's tail, then seemed to peter out in the run home.

Altogether, 46,183 jammed this spacious Long Island layout, and although they backed Assault down to 11 to 20 in the betting—off his seven straight triumphs (five of them over Stymie) up to today—it was Stymie they were cheering as he made his one powerful push to take command about two jumps from the finish.

A lot of the folks apparently overlooked the fact that the last time Assault was beaten, last fall, it was by Stymie and it was over the mile and five-eighths endurance distance. As a result, they let him get away at $11.50, $5.40 and $2.90 across the board. Natchez was $15.00 and $3.80 for place and show and Assault $2.30 for third.

CHINA SHUFFLES ARMY COMMANDS

American-Schooled General To Take Charge Of Training Program

NANKING, July 19.—(AP)—Lt. Gen. Sun Li-jen was appointed vice commander of all Chinese government ground forces today and placed in charge of a new training program as first fruits of the recent total mobilization order against the Communists.

The semi-official Central Daily News announced appointment of the American-trained Sun and said he would retain his post as vice commander of government forces in Manchuria.

Highly-informed military sources said his job would be to take general recruits and turn out modern combat divisions and that the training center probably would be located on the big island of Formosa to avoid possible interruption by the Communists.

Sun, a graduate of Virginia Military Institute, formerly commanded the American-equipped new first army, which fought brilliantly against the Japanese in Burma and against the Communists in Manchuria.

On the actual battlefronts, the official Chinese Central News Agency said government forces had routed five Communist divisions in western Shantung province and had recaptured Yangshansi, a village 78 miles northwest of the big government base of Suichow.

It said the victory was believed to have shattered the effort of Communist Gen. Liu Po-cheng to relieve the main Communist body in central Shantung by his diversionary invasion across the Yellow river into western Shantung.

Communist casualties were listed as totaling 12,000, a figure probably exaggerated.

"The following casualties are now known:

"Wounded—U Ba Choe, member for information; the Sawbha of Mong Pong, counselor for the frontier areas.

"The casualties were sent to the General hospital without delay and the situation is reported to have been efficiently handled by the police."

Messages of sympathy were sent by King George and Prime Minister Attlee to Governor Rance to be delivered to the relatives of the victims.

In a broadcast, Sir Huger depled the assassinations as a "dastardly act" and announced the formation of a new executive council.

"I am glad to inform you," he told the Burma people "that the President Thankin Nu, has agreed to form a new council and that he will have in this task the assistance of Pyaw Bwe Umya, U Aung San Wai and U Ba Cvan."

"He said he deplored the loss of 'a statesman and a leader and of ministers who can all be spared. I call upon the people of Burma to remain calm and continue to follow the wise course towards independence set by their leader."

Aung San was commander of the Burma independence army during which he fought the ground against the Japanese occupation.

He was defense minister in the Ba Maw government set up under Japanese sponsorship. He later took to the hills and organized the resistance movement which took the name of the anti-Fascist Peoples Freedom League and began a campaign for Burma independence.

He was leader of the delegation which went to London last December and reached agreement with Prime Minister Attlee that Burmese self-government, either within or without the British empire, would be expedited. The agreement provided for a constituent assembly, an interim government and other steps toward independence expected to be achieved by October of this year.

Aung San said in Rangoon on June 17 that Burma's constitution would provide for an independent, sovereign republic.

But Ba Maw, former premier, charged that Thakin Nu, assembly president and freedom league vice-president, was in London negotiating with the British for dominion status with in the empire.

Aung San caused the expulsion of the Communist party from the Freedom League last year, charging the Communists were "betraying confidential information, attempting by underhand tactics to overthrow the Freedom League and inciting the peasants and workers to demonstrate at a time when demonstrations were not to the national advantage."

Last January large-scale demonstrations, which the government charged were organized by red flag and red shirts, the two Burmese Communist parties, were directed against Aung San in Rangoon. Police and troops used tear gas and hoses to disperse them.

U Baw Win, one of the assassinated cabinet members, was an elder brother of Aung San.

Knutson promised rough treatment for any tax bill Mr. Truman may send up next year, saying:

"The recommendations probably would be purely political. He probably will want to take 20,000,000 people off the tax rolls. This would put too large a burden on the other 29,000,000 taxpayers."

House Republican Leader Halleck, of Indiana, joined with those still hoping for tax reduction in 1949.

"The Republican party should give the people this relief," he told reporters. "If Mr. Truman continues to block us, then the decision must be made by the people."

Meanwhile, a threat developed that, instead of tax reduction, there might be a $2,000,000,000 tax increase in 1948.

This came about as a House-Senate conference committee deadlocked on legislation intended to freeze the social security tax for two years at one per cent against employees' pay and employers' payrolls.

Without the freeze the tax, used to pay insurance to the aged, will jump automatically January 1 to two and one-half per cent against employer and employee. The one per cent levy now collects about $1,500,000,000 annually.

Rep. Reed, Republican, New York, chairman of the conference committee, told reporters:

"The conference is deadlocked, and unless the Senate yields the tax is going to 2.5 per cent on January 1. While meaning no disregard for the Senate, I feel that body acted with undue haste without full consideration of the legislation."

The conflict arose when the Senate passed a simple two-year freeze of the tax, after the House had voted a similar freeze but with a provision that the levy would increase in 1950 to 1.5 per cent and in 1957 to two per cent.

Senator Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, who first voted for the income tax cutting bill and then switched to support the presidential veto, said "there will be a 1948 tax reduction bill but it will be for considerably less than the four billion dollars."

Aiken agreed. Both he and Tydings said they believed that a tax revision measure will win approval early in the next Congress and it can be made retroactive to January 1 of next year.

"That would give us tax reduction on the same date as proposed by the bill just beaten," Aiken said. "We'll get rid of some of those miserable nuisance taxes at the same time. We should be able to help more people in a new bill."

Senator Hatch said that any new tax reduction attempt will depend upon international developments, payments on the national debt, federal spending and revenue.

"We will have some exact information rather than mere speculation by that time," Hatch said.

The EAM group added that the irregulars apparently control the 25-mile highway from Konitsa to Ioannina and that Mount Gamila, Mount Grammos and other localities north-east of Ioannina were "constantly occupied by guerrillas." The Greek army has claimed control of the Ioannina-Konitsa highway.

The ministry of public order, disclosing the extent of the government's crackdown against opposition elements, reported that 11,500 persons from all over Greece were now under arrest on political charges.

The ministry said some 7,000 of the total had been arrested in connection with a purported Communist-inspired plot to overthrow the government. Most of those seized have been deported. Many were sent to the island of Nikaria west of Samos.

Immediately 2,000 soldiers regarded as "unreliable" were billeted on the island of Macronisi.

Dwight P. Griswold, administrator of the U. S. program of assistance to Greece, said at his first news conference since arriving from the United States that "rebel fighting is holding back the reconstruction of Greece."

Griswold said he knew nothing about the arrest of the Communists, and that this was outside of the scope of his duties.

HOUSE PASSES

measure drew sharp criticism, particularly those setting up a central office of intelligence to search out and weigh the military plans of other nations.

In sending the measure to the floor, the House administration committee asserted that modern warfare demands a balanced armed forces structure for integrated, strategic plans for obtaining full use of manpower, materials, scientific research and new developments.

Rep. Wadsworth (R-N.Y.), in opening debate, said the bill setting up a powerful central defense council on which will set the secretary of state as well as a new secretary of defense, would coordinate the country's military and diplomatic program for the first time in history.

Rep. Sikse (D-Fla.) agreed: "We never have been fully informed of the capabilities, potential, or intent of likely enemies, nor did we have effective plans for use in time of war of the nation's natural and industrial resources for military and civilian needs."

"This is another time when we can well say, 'Remember Pearl Harbor,'" Rep. Busbey (R-Ill.) protested that the new intelligence office would have the power to scrutinize FBI files and thus open them up to records which would have nothing to do with national defense.

There was a broad difference of opinion as to what economies, if any, the unification measure will produce. Rep. Hoffman (R-Mich.) expressed doubt any could be accomplished.

Wadsworth acknowledged that may be slow in coming. "You can't expect the new secretary to save millions of dollars in a week or two, or even in a year," he said. "But, step by step, as the coordination develops, large sums will be saved. . . . It will eliminate competition between the army and the navy in procurement of materials."

Hoffman, expressing fear that the legislation might lead to a dictatorship, said that it represented "the culmination of over 25 years of effort by military elements to gain greater power within the government."

Much of the fight over the measure was removed by agreement with the committee before the measure was sent to the floor spelling out preservation of the marine corps' separate identity and assurance that the navy shall retain its own aviation arm.

In only a few instances different in form from a unification plan previously passed by the Senate, the measure would:

1. Place all the armed forces—army, navy and air corps—under a single cabinet officer. The House would call him secretary of defense; the Senate prefers secretary of national security.

2. Set up a separate department of air.

3. Provide for secretaries of war, navy and air subordinate to the secretary of defense and without cabinet status.

4. Create a national security council with keeping the president posted on the nation's strength and with recommending security measures after analyzing potential dangers. On this council would sit the secretaries of state, defense, war, navy, air and the chairman of the National Security Resources Board.

5. Set up a central intelligence agency for collecting and coordinating information on the military strength, developments and moves in other countries. The House wrote in a restriction—not included in the Senate bill—to prevent the agency from exercising domestic police or espionage functions.

6. Establish a national security resources board to advise the president on coordination of civilian, industrial and military mobilization in time of emergency and to keep a continuous from positions of responsibility in the government."

To this end he said he favored loyalty checks now in progress among federal workers, and endorsed the removal from office of any person "whose sympathies are not with our form of government."

In a discussion of the role of the United States in international affairs, Colmery, an outstanding attorney as well as a high-ranking Legionnaire, asserted that the "principles of international law must at all times be paramount in the construction of a lasting world order."

He declared that he was "disappointed" in the functions of the U. N. so far, but said he believed the further evolution of the framework of the organization "would increase its strength and prestige."

Commenting on the Truman aid to Greece and Turkey program and the Marshall plan, Colmery said that although at one time he felt these were problems to be met by the world organization, he now agreed that "unilateral action" on the part of the United States was "necessary to prevent collapse and anarchy abroad."

In support of the current U. S. foreign policy, Colmery observed that without American assistance, "the Soviet sphere in Europe would have been extended considerably to the consequent detriment of independent nations now struggling for survival."

He urged that the United States "remain strong militarily and economically" in order to meet its worldwide commitments.

"I am not advocating any policy of using our strength to impose our objectives upon other nations," he said, "but I do believe that we must be in a position, militarily speaking, where restraint will never be mistaken for weakness."

He urged too that the U. N. operate along lines of "justice and fair dealing," but insisted that it be able to back up its decisions with "adequate police power."

In the matter of extending help to countries within the Russian orbit under Russian domination, Colmery said it was essential "to distinguish between the people and the leaders."

"If the majority of the people are opposed to a regime which facts show has been forced onto them, then we should continue our help. But if they willingly embrace a totalitarian government, then we must certainly should withdraw our assistance."

Coming back to the role of the U. N., Colmery said it "should try to influence, but should not interfere in the internal affairs of any sovereign nation."

He said he was opposed to "intercession by the U. N. or any individual country in the domain of another where it would constitute a violation of international law."

In regard to the matter of political activity on the part of the Legion, Colmery declared he could not support such a program if it were a departure from "already established Legion policy."

The question was based on a speech by Richard C. Cadwallader before the convention yesterday. Cadwallader, national vice commander, urged the Legionnaires "to get into politics as Legionnaires."

Colmery said he had not acquainted himself fully with Cadwallader's statement, but added that he could never approve of Legion participation "in partisan politics."

"However," he went on, "in the matter of a candidate contrary to the principles of the nation and of the Legion, the Legion as an organization should have no hesitation in opposing him."

Indonesian spokesmen declared overt hostilities by the Dutch during the month of fasting, when no devout Moslem takes food or drink between sunrise and sunset, would precipitate a declaration of "holy war" by Indonesia's 70,000,000 Moslems. But Dutch informants said they did not believe the holy month would have any bearing on the situation in Java.

Qualified sources said a military resolution of the Indonesian deadlock was inevitable unless some unexpected development, such as the strongest foreign intervention, eased the tension.

The Dutch army information service said the army probably will begin daily communications next week, instead of its weekly summaries, but declined to elaborate.

The crucial Netherlands cabinet decision governing future policy in Indonesia, was known to have been received from the Hague by Van Mook. The Dutch newspaper Nieuwsgier, which has close contacts with the Netherlands East Indies government, said this decision was that there is "no point of contact left for the continuation of discussions" with the Indonesian Republic.

Van Mook conferred with high officials, and summoned President Sukawati of East Indonesia and President Sultan Hamid II of West Borneo from Macassar and Pontianak for a conference in Batavia, East Indonesia and West Borneo are Dutch-sponsored states which were intended to be future partners along with the Indonesian republic in the projected federal United States of Indonesia.

"I think that is a sound basis and I am going to try it," he added.

The secretary addressed a reassuring word to France, about Germany's future strength.

It is nothing of the kind. German restoration must take its place in the queue of the general economic recuperation of Europe."

"France looked at the Ruhr with horror and said: 'Are you going to rebuild it again for a third attack on us?'"

"We in this country, too, must look at our security. We cannot face another Germany of that kind and we are not going to. There must be a standard set and maintained. At what point is security safe, and at what level can we allow German production to be maintained?"

the devil in the person of Stalin. Each day his domination of Eastern and Central Europe becomes more effective as he attempts to seize the economy and to block the efforts of the United States to make it (Europe) self-supporting.

Declaring that the past war might have been averted if the United States had maintained its position in world affairs after the victory in 1918, the Legion officer contended that we "rushed toward another conflict because we were too cocky."

"We thought we were free from attack, we thought our location guaranteed our security. Since we had no selfish territorial ambitions, we felt that there was no need for any military establishment."

Urging that the United States "remain strong," Colmery said that "whether we like it or not America is the leading world power. As such she has a duty. And that carries with it a responsibility which she dare not shirk."

"There is no world order. It is the task of the United States to promote, organize, and support a world order which does not exist today."

To this end Colmery outlined a two-fold program:

1. To settle the peace and head off another war.

2. To strengthen the United Nations "so that it can operate as valid force for world order."

In the first phase, Colmery said, "the United States must maintain a military establishment large enough, well-equipped, and efficiently trained. We must also keep scientific and technological research in step with the times and ahead of the pack."

The only guarantee of sufficient armed strength, he said, is through universal military training, which, he added, would be "both practical and democratic."

He deplored "the inertia and apathy with which we are confronted today," and cautioned that "such an attitude can serve only to put us at the mercy of every aggressor nation."

"We won the war," he said, "and then we proceeded to forget for all practical purposes that only seven or eight years ago, in the aftermath of another victory, we saw the age of dictators return on a grander scale than the tyrants of old dreamed."

"This is a hard, brutal, and realistic world," he asserted. "No good comes from minimizing the problems and perils. No period ever faced greater ones, and to solve them wisely may be a matter of individual and national life and death."

James O'Neill, of New Hampshire, warned that "Russia doesn't need the atom bomb if it can divide from within."

O'Neill, a candidate for national commander, asserted that "the Communists are out to paralyze industry and undermine the very foundations of our government."

"There are 74,000 members of the (Communist) party. That means 74,000 potential spies and saboteurs."

"They are infiltrating into our schools, labor unions, and government. They are seeking to becloud us with false issues and false concepts. For answer," he concluded, "must be to expel them from the American scene."

Two important changes in the department's organization were read by Advocate Henry G. McMahon. One would amend the method of appointing delegates to the state conventions. The other would institute first and second vice commander for the department. The suggestion was prepared by the department's special committee on constitution and by-laws will be presented to the delegates tomorrow.

The resolution against Communism, sponsored by Eugene H. Lowe, of Minden, chairman of the department's Americanism committee, calls upon the Legion to make the exposure of Communism a primary Legion objective.

In other fast-breaking Legion political activities yesterday, the third district threw its support behind Kennedy for commander. Friday, the district had endorsed R. L. Brown of Lafayette for vice commander.

Last minute district caucuses last night the following alignments were reported:

For Kennedy as commander, and Norwood, of Eunice for vice commander: The First, Second, Fifth, and Seventh districts.

For Hamilton as commander, and Gray A. Mann, of Alexandria, and Brown as vice commanders: The Third and Fourth districts.

Up to 11 p. m. yesterday, there was no indication of eight district's stand. It was pointed out, however, that the district endorsements are not binding upon the individual posts, and that despite the caucus decisions, the entire complexion of the elections may be altered during the actual balloting today.

The Fifth district last night extended its endorsement to Walter Kellogg, of Monroe, as alternate national committeeman. Kellogg is commander of the L. B. Faulk post No. 13.

Also last night the Fifth district elected as delegates to the national convention in August: William McKenzie of Monroe, Leonard Jackson of Clarks, Douglas Boothe, of Mangham, Sam Rubin, of Monroe, and E. R. McDonald of Newellton.

Important among the resolutions to be offered today will be one offered by the Fifth district objecting to the admission of large numbers of European refugees into the United States.

the decision is up to the party leadership.

Knutson promised rough treatment for any tax bill Mr. Truman may send up next year, saying:

"His recommendations probably would be purely political. He probably will want to take 20,000,000 people off the tax rolls. This would put too large a burden on the other 23,000,000 taxpayers."

House Republican Leader Halleck, of Indiana, joined with those still hoping for tax reduction in 1948.

"The Republican party should give the people this relief," he told reporters. "If Mr. Truman continues to block us, then the decision must be made by the people."

Meanwhile, a threat developed that, instead of tax reduction, there might be a $2,000,000,000 tax increase in 1948.

This came about as a House-Senate conference committee deadlocked on legislation intended to freeze the social security tax for two years at one per cent against employees' pay and employers' payrolls.

Without the freeze the tax, used to pay insurance to the aged, will jump automatically January 1 to two and one-half per cent against employer and employee. The one per cent levy now collects about $1,500,000,000 annually.

Rep. Reed, Republican, New York, chairman of the conference committee, told reporters:

"The conference is deadlocked, and unless the Senate yields the tax is going to 2.5 per cent on January 1. While meaning no disregard for the Senate, I feel that body acted with undue haste without full consideration of the legislation."

The conflict arose when the Senate passed a simple two-year freeze of the tax, after the House had voted a similar freeze but with a provision that the levy would increase in 1950 to 1.5 per cent and in 1951 to two per cent.

Senator Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, who first voted for the income tax cutting bill and then switched to support the presidential veto, said "there will be a 1948 tax reduction bill but it will be for considerably less than the four billion dollars."

Aiken agreed. Both he and Tydings said they believed that a tax revision measure will win approval early in the next Congress and it can be made retroactive to January 1 of next year.

"That would give us tax reduction on the same date as proposed by the bill just beaten," Aiken said. "We'll get rid of some of those miserable nuisance taxes at the same time. We should be able to help more people in a new bill."

Senator Hatch said that any new tax reduction attempt will depend upon international developments, payments on the national debt, federal spending and revenue.

"We will have some exact information rather than mere speculation by that time," Hatch said.

HOUSE PASSES

measure drew sharp criticism, particularly those setting up a central office of intelligence to search out and weigh the military plans of other nations.

In sending the measure to the floor, the House administration committee asserted that modern warfare demands a balanced armed forces structure with integrated, strategic plans for obtaining full use of manpower, materials, scientific research and new developments.

Rep. Wadsworth (R-N.Y.), in opening debate, said the bill setting up a powerful central defense council on which will set the secretary of state as well as a new secretary of defense, would coordinate the country's military and diplomatic program for the first time in history.

Rep. Sikes (D-Fla.) agreed: "We never have been fully informed of the capabilities, potential, or intent of likely enemies, nor did we have effective plans for use in time of opinion of what economies, if any, the unification measure will produce. Rep. Hoffman (R-Mich.) expressed doubt any could be accomplished.

Wadsworth acknowledged that may be slow in coming. "You can't expect the new secretary to save millions of dollars in a week or two, or even in a year," he said. "But, step by step, as the coordination develops, large sums will be saved. . . . It will eliminate competition between the army and navy in procurement of materials."

Hoffman, expressing fear that the legislation might lead to a dictatorship, said that it represented "the culmination of over 25 years of effort by military elements to gain greater power within the government."

Much of the fight over the measure was removed by agreements within the committee before the measure was sent to the floor spelling out preservation of the marine corps' separate identity and assurance that the navy shall retain its own aviation arm.

In only a few instances different in form from a unification plan previously passed by the Senate, the measure would:

1. Place all the armed forces—army, navy and air corps—under a single cabinet officer. The House would call him secretary of defense; the Senate prefers secretary of national security.
2. Set up a separate department of armaments.
3. Provide for secretaries of war, navy and air subordinate to the secretary of defense and without cabinet status.
4. Create a national security council charged with keeping the president posted on the nation's strength and with recommending security measures after analyzing potential dangers. On this council would sit the secretaries of state, defense, war, navy, air and the chairman of the National Security Resources Board.
5. Set up a central intelligence agency for collecting and coordinating information on the military strength, developments and moves in other countries. The House wrote in a restriction—not included in the Senate bill—to prevent the agency from exercising domestic police or espionage functions.
6. Establish a national security resources board to advise the president on coordination of civilian, industrial and military mobilization in time of emergency and to keep a continuous

The EAM organ added that the irregulars apparently control the 25-mile highway from Konitsa to Ioannina and that Mount Gamila, Mount Grammos and other localities northeast of Ioannina were "constantly occupied by guerrillas." The Greek army has claimed control of the Ioannina-Konitsa highway.

The ministry of public order, disclosing the extent of the government's crackdown against opposition elements, reported that 11,500 persons from all over Greece were now under arrest on political charges.

The ministry said some 7,000 of the total had been arrested in connection with a purported Communist-inspired plot to overthrow the government. Most of those seized have been deported. Many were sent to the island of Nikaria west of Samos island in the Aegean sea, and approximately 2,000 soldiers regarded as "unreliable" were billeted on the island of Macronisi.

Dwight P. Griswold, administrator of the U. S. program of assistance to Greece, said at his first news conference since arriving from the United States that "rebel fighting is holding back the reconstruction of Greece."

"I want to see the rebellion stopped," he asserted.

Griswold said he knew nothing about the arrest of the Communists, and that this was outside of the scope of his duties.

from positions of responsibility in the government."

To this end he said he favored loyalty checks now in progress among federal workers, and endorsed the removal from office of any person "whose sympathies are not with our form of government."

In a discussion of the role of the United States in international affairs, Colmery, an outstanding attorney as well as a high-ranking Legionnaire, asserted that the "principles of international law must at all times be paramount in the construction of a lasting world order."

He declared that he was "disappointed" in the functions of the U. N. so far, but said he believed the further evolution of the framework of the organization "would increase its strength and prestige."

Commenting on the Truman aid to Greece and Turkey program and the Marshall plan, Colmery said that although at one time he felt these were problems to be met by the world or organization, he now agreed that "unilateral action" on the part of the United States was "necessary to prevent collapse and anarchy abroad."

In support of the current U. S. foreign policy, Colmery observed that without American assistance, "the Soviet sphere in Europe would have been extended considerably to nations now struggling for survival."

He urged that the United States "remain strong militarily and economically" in order to meet its worldwide commitments.

"I am not advocating any policy of using our strength to impose our objectives upon other nations," he said, "but I do believe that we must be in a position, militarily speaking, where our position will never be mistaken for weakness."

He urged too that the U. N. operate along lines of justice and fair dealing, but insisted that it be able to back up its decisions with "adequate police power."

In the matter of extending help to countries within the Russian orbit under Russian domination, Colmery said it was essential "to distinguish between the people and the leaders."

"If the majority of the people are opposed to a regime which facts show has been forced upon them, then we should continue our help. But if they willingly embrace a totalitarian government, then we must certainly should withdraw our assistance."

Coming back to the role of the U. N., Colmery said it "should try to influence, but should not interfere in the internal affairs of any sovereign nation."

He said he was opposed to "intercession by the U. N. or any individual country in the domain of another where it would constitute a violation of international law."

In regard to the matter of political activity on the part of the Legion, Colmery declared he could not support such a program if it were a departure from "already established Legion policy."

The question was based on a speech by Richard C. Cadwallader before the convention yesterday. Cadwallader, national vice commander, urged the Legionnaires "to get into politics as Legionnaires."

Colmery said he had not acquiesced himself fully with Cadwallader's statement, but added that he could never approve of Legion participation "in partisan politics."

"However," he went on, "in the matter of a candidate contrary to the principles of the nation and of the Legion, the Legion as an organization should have no hesitation in opposing him."

Indonesian spokesmen declared overt hostilities by the Dutch during the month of fasting, when no devout Moslem takes food or drink between sunrise and sunset, would precipitate a declaration of "holy war" by Indonesia's 70,000,000 Moslems. But Dutch informants said they did not believe the holy month would have any bearing on the situation in Java.

Qualified sources said a military resolution of the Indonesian deadlock was inevitable unless some unexpected development, such as the strongest foreign intervention, eased the tension.

The Dutch army information service said the army probably will begin daily communications next week, instead of its weekly summaries, but declined to elaborate.

The crucial Netherlands cabinet decision governing future policy in Indonesia, was known to have been received from the Hague by Van Mook.

The Dutch newspaper Nieuwsgier, which has close contacts with the Netherlands East Indies government, said this decision was that there is "no point of contact left for the continuation of discussions" with the Indonesian Republic.

Van Mook conferred with high officials and summoned President Sukarno of East Indonesia and President Sultan Hamid II of West Borneo from Makassar and Pontianak for a conference in Batavia, East Indonesia and West Borneo are Dutch-sponsored states which were intended to be future partners along with the Indonesian republic in the projected federal United States of Indonesia.

"I have seen it said in the press that the work I have been doing at Paris (at the 16-nation economic conference) in trying to take advantage of the Marshall proposals is intended to recreate Germany. It is nothing of the kind. German restoration must take its place in the queue of the general economic recuperation of Europe."

"France looked at the Ruhr with horror and said: 'Are you going to rebuild it again for a third attack on us?'"

the devil in the person of Stalin. Each day his domination of Eastern and Central Europe becomes more effective as he attempts to seize the economy and to block the efforts of the United to make it (Europe) self-supporting."

Declaring that the past war might have been averted if the United States had maintained its position in world affairs after the victory in 1918, the Legion officer contended that we "rushed toward another conflict because we were too cocky."

"We thought we were free from attack, we thought our location guaranteed our security. Since we had no selfish territorial ambitions, we felt that was no need for any military establishment."

Urging that the United States "remain strong," Colmery said that "whether we like it or not America is the leading world power. As such she has a duty. And that carries with it a responsibility which she dare not shirk."

"There is no world order. It is the task of the United States to promote, organize, and support a world order which does not exist today."

To this end Colmery outlined a two-fold program:

1. To settle the peace and head off another war.
2. To strengthen the United Nations "so that it can operate as valid force for world order."

In the first phase, Colmery said, "the United States must maintain a military establishment large enough, well-equipped, and efficiently trained."

"We must also keep scientific and technological research in step with the times and ahead of the pack."

The only guarantee of sufficient armed strength, he said, is through universal military training, which, he added, would be "both practical and democratic."

Colmery urged that the United States give the United Nations "our active cooperation and support because it is necessary to preserve a world civilization characterized by law and order."

He declared "the inertia and apathy with which we are confronted today," and cautioned that "such an attitude can serve only to put us at the mercy of every aggressor nation."

"We won the war," he said, "and then we proceeded to forget—for all practical purposes—that only seven or eight years ago, in the aftermath of another victory, we saw the age of dictators return on a grander scale than the tyrants of old had dreamed."

This is a hard, brutal, and realistic world, he asserted. "No good comes from minimizing the problems and perils. No period ever faced greater ones, and to solve them wisely may be a matter of individual and national life and death."

James O'Neill, of New Hampshire, warned that "Russia doesn't need the atom bomb if it can divide from within."

O'Neill, a candidate for national commander, asserted that "the Communists are out to paralyze industry and undermine the very foundations of our government."

"There are 74,000 members of the (Communist) party. That means 74,000 potential spies and saboteurs."

"They are infiltrating into our schools, labor unions, and government. They are seeking to becloud us with false issues and false concepts."

"Our answer," he concluded, "must be to expell them from the American scene."

Two important changes in the department's organization were read by Advocate Henry G. McMahon. One would amend the method of apportioning delegates to the state conventions. The other would institute first and second vice commander for the department. The suggestion changes, prepared by the department's special committee on constitution and by-laws will be presented to the delegates tomorrow.

The resolution against Communism, sponsored by Eugene H. Lowe, of Minden, chairman of the department's Americanism committee, calls upon the Legion to make the exposure of Communism a primary Legion objective.

In other fast breaking Legion political activities yesterday, the third district threw its support behind Kennedy for commander. Friday, the district had endorsed R. L. Brown of Lafayette for vice commander.

In last minute district caucuses last night the following alignments were reported:

For Kennedy as commander, and Nolin Moore, of Eunice, for vice commander: the First, Second, Fifth, and Seventh districts.

For Hamilton as commander, and Gray A. Mann, of Alexandria, and Brown as vice commanders: the Third and Fourth districts.

Up to 11 p. m. yesterday, there was no indication of eight district's stand.

It was pointed out, however, that the district endorsements are not binding upon the individual posts, and that despite the caucus decisions, the entire complexion of the elections may be altered during the actual balloting today.

The Fifth district last night extended its endorsement to Walter Kellogg, of Monroe, as alternate national committeeman. Kellogg is commander of the L. B. Faulk post No. 13.

Also last night the Fifth district elected as delegates to the national convention in August: Charles McKenzie of Monroe, Leonard Jackson of Clarks, Douglas Boethe, of Mangham, Sam Rubin, of Monroe, and E. R. McDonald of Newellton.

A distinct honor was accorded J. G. There are only six directors in this nationwide organization and Mr. Durrett was unanimously chosen one of these six. Mr. Durrett long has been identified with the furniture industry here and elsewhere.

Earlier tonight two bombs, one a dud, were thrown at a military armorer car, but there were no casualties. Shortly after the mine explosion, at least three other blasts were heard, followed by recurrent gunfire, but no explanation could be obtained for authorities.

All traffic in the city halted and security zones and gates of the old walled city were closed at the first sound of alarm sirens after the blast.

The violence in Jerusalem and Haifa came after announcement by Palestine Jews that they would stage a two-hour general strike tomorrow afternoon, starting at 4 p. m., in protest against the deportation of 4,500 uncertified immigrants who arrived in the ship European Exodus of 1947 yesterday. A Jewish agency statement called British interception of the immigrant vessel a "piratical attack."

In Haifa, eight shots fired from an ambush felled the two policemen and the Jewish civilian. No alarm was sounded in Haifa, however.

Police called tonight's outbreaks and the mining of roads around Jerusalem and on the coastal plain "efforts to impress the United Nations special committee on Palestine just before the delegates leave and to impress the Palestine government with the resistance power against the British if they execute the three boys in Acre prison."

The prisoners of Acre are admitted members of Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground fighters, who were condemned to death for participating in a prison break last May 4. Two British sergeants kidnapped a week ago still are being held as hostages for the condemned prisoners by Irgun Zvai Leumi.

The United Nations delegates, scheduled to depart tomorrow for Lebanon, were dining at government houses, residence of the British governor, when the night's disturbance began.

The Jewish agency statement on the interception of the immigrant ship yesterday was issued by one of its spokesmen at the same time the government issued a communique "in order to remove any doubts which may have been raised by inaccurate broadcasts from the ship."

The Jewish spokesman said the "ramming of the ship was a headless and wanton act fraught with grave peril for 4,500 refugees aboard, most of whom were women and children. The armed attack was an act of senseless cruelty."

The government communique said the ship, to avoid being boarded, "took evasive action which, in the ensuing boarding operation, resulted in damage to herself as well as to ships of the Royal Navy."

It said the British navy men were forced to fire one single shot and one burst of machinegun fire, both of which missed, but frightened the immigrants, who dropped their own arms.

The government said all three deaths which resulted from the boarding, were caused by skull fractures, that 57 immigrants were being treated for injuries and three navy enlisted men had been seriously hurt.

The strike announced for tomorrow will coincide with the funerals of those who were killed on the ship, a 1,814-ton vessel formerly named the President Warfield and engaged in Atlantic coast traffic.

Meanwhile, the United Nations special committee on Palestine, winding up its on-the-spot investigation, heard charges by the Palestine government that Holy Land Jews had supported an "organized campaign of lawlessness, murder and sabotage" in an attempt to gain their political aims.

The accusations were contained in a supplementary memorandum submitted by the government. Sir Henry Gurney, chief secretary for Palestine, also took the stand in rebuttal to the multiplicity of charges leveled at the government by Jewish witnesses who have testified during the committee's five weeks here.

The U. N. delegates will drive tomorrow to Lebanon where they will hold hearings for three days at the mountain retreat of Sofar. Representatives of six Arab states—Egypt, Syria, Lebanon, Trans-Jordan, Iraq, and Yemen—who declined to testify in Palestine, "will appear before the committee."

During their stay in the Holy Land, the U. N. delegates heard 34 witnesses in formal sessions. Twenty-nine of those were Jews. The committee has traveled 2,000 miles within Palestine and has talked informally with many thousands of Arabs and Jews.

One highly placed committee source said "two tendencies can be noted so far among the committee members. They are deeply impressed by the Jewish case and they feel strongly that Britain has muddled matters on many occasions."

BOMB PRODUCTION NOW ON SCHEDULE

Atomic Energy Chairman Mum On Amount Ordered For U. S. Requirements

WASHINGTON, July 19.—(AP)—Senator Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), chairman of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy, said today he believes the scheduling of atomic bomb production is "proceeding in a satisfactory manner."

The Iowa senator made this statement to reporters in reply to questions after the committee had met for two hours behind closed doors with the joint chiefs of staff, the military high command.

Asked whether it is the job of the joint chiefs to determine the extent of atomic bomb production, Hickenlooper replied:

"They undoubtedly are the source of recommendations to the President on requirements (for A-bombs)."

Hickenlooper added that President Truman in turn transmits the recommendations of the joint chiefs to the atomic energy commission, the civilian panel which has complete jurisdiction over atomic energy development.

In reply to further questions, Hickenlooper said cooperation between the commission and the joint chiefs "is going along very well" and that he understands production scheduling of atomic bombs is "proceeding in a satisfactory manner."

Hickenlooper described today's session with the joint chiefs as "a routine meeting scheduled some time ago." He said the group "unhappily" the general fitting into the picture of the military end of this thing, along with other problems of the atomic energy program." He said there were no developments at the meeting "of any deep significance."

So, last month's bride now appears on her employer's social security report as Mary Brown along with the number that the Social Security administration records show for Mary Smith. The Social Security administration suspects that a marriage might be the answer to the discrepancy, but there is also the chance that Mary Brown is a new employee who was accidentally reported with Mary Smith's number.

Kendall explains that the government can't afford to take chances, and correspondence with the employer is necessary before Mary Brown, nee Smith, can get credit for the wages she earned. "In most instances, the records are cleared and Mrs. Mary Brown gets credit for her wages," Kendall said, "but this happens only after the government and the employer have spent considerable time and effort in untangling the mix-up."

"Now that June is over I'm extending all June brides an invitation to come in and get their name officially added to their social security account number card," he concluded.

A minister on a fishing trip is always basis for a goodly yarn. Dr. Philip Gayle telling of an experience of Rev. Edward Farren Hayward, pastor of the first church to take charge at Grace Episcopal Church. One week-end at that time, the rector, hearing of the superior fishing to be had at Lake St. John, set forth there in his best fishing togs. He drove out to Tallulah and then swung his car to the southward until he spied a small body of water. At once he was sure he had reached his destination and started into action. But he fished and fished some more and nary a bite did he receive. At last a Negro came along, and he interrogated him to know why he was having no success.

"Isn't this the famous Lake St. John?" he asked.

"No suh, no suh. Lake St. John am a mighty long distance away!" he was told.

"But isn't this place any good for fishing?" asked the divine.

"No suh. They ain't no fish hereabouts. De Pelicans kum and eat all de fish out of dis place," he answered.

Thereupon the rector halted all fishing operations but a week later he actually discovered the lake sought and declares he caught in no time 16 marvelous fine catfish.

COMMITTEE OKAYS TRAINING PROGRAM

Compulsory Military Service For All Males Upon Reaching Age Of 18

WASHINGTON, July 19.—(AP)—Compulsory military training of all American males upon reaching the age of 18, or after their graduation from high school, was recommended today by a house armed services subcommittee.

The 12-member group sent to the full armed services committee of 33 members for action next Tuesday a bill closely following the plan recommended June 1 by President Truman's advisory commission on universal training.

The president's nine-man commission had advocated the program as indispensable to national security at this time.

Approval by the full armed services committee at next week's meeting was taken for granted, since even opponents concede that at least 20 members favor it.

However, the bill will not be acted on by Congress at this session unless there is an unexpected change in plans between now and adjournment scheduled for next Saturday. Hearings have not been held in the Senate.

Educators, churchmen and labor union groups generally have fought it with the arguments that it is the entering wedge for militarism in this country and is an unnecessary and undemocratic proposal in time of peace.

The subcommittee bill, bearing Towse's name, calls for six months of basic military training for qualified male youths between their 18th and 20th birthdays, followed by six months of membership in an ROTC, national guard or other reserve organization. Youths still in high school when they become 18 would be allowed to have their induction deferred, but not beyond the age of 20.

At the meeting the headquarters budget of the state department of education is to be submitted to the board for review by Superintendent of Education John E. Cox.

Also, it is understood the board may act upon administrative appointments by Cox in the department of education at the Monday meeting.

This authority was given the board under a legislative act passed in 1946.

ENCAMPMENT SET FOR BOY SCOUTS

Troops 67, 29 Leave August 1 For Biloxi, Miss.; Plan 8-Day Outing

Boy Scouts of Troop 67, Sterling, Fairbanks, and Perryville, and Troop 29, Monroe, will leave Saturday morning, August 2, for Biloxi, Miss., for an eight or nine-day encampment on the Gulf coast, it was announced yesterday.

Tom D. Wafer, scoutmaster of Troop 67, a veteran scout who has conducted such educational and recreational tours and camps since 1935 for his troop and other scouts, will be in charge of the trip and encampment at Camp Wilkes, scout retreat located on Black Bay six miles from downtown Biloxi.

One of the new Northeast Junior College buses has been rented for transportation, and Hal Bynum, Rayville, expert life guard, will accompany the scouts and be in charge of water activities. Bynum recently competed five weeks as life guard at Camp Ki-Ro-Li this summer, and J. R. Baker, cook at Ki-Ro-Li's recent encampment, will also go along as cook for Wafer and his boys.

A boat trip to Ship Island, located 14 miles out in the gulf, is on the program. Old Fort Massachusetts and a very historical lighthouse is located on the island. Keesler Field, the Veterans Home, and other places of interest will be visited.

Scoutmaster Wafer describes Camp Wilkes as an "ideal Boy Scout camp equipped with nice screened patrol cabins, a huge kitchen and dining hall, shower houses, and craft cabins."

Wafer is very anxious to secure a small truck, however, to convey luggage on the trip.

"The luggage has been a problem on many previous trips," Wafer said. "If anyone has a small truck that will not be in use from August 2 to 12, they can do a real 'good turn' and win the admiration of about 40 Boy Scouts by permitting them use of the truck for the trip."

Wafer may be contacted by writing Sterling, La., or telephoning him at County 7212, Monroe.

Half-Million Suburban Monroe Honey Bees Issue In Catahoula Court

By Jay Paul Wade

JONESVILLE, July 19.—(Special)—It's going to be "what's buzz in cuzzin'" when Judge R. R. Reeves tries to keep the bees out of his bonnet while listening to a honey of a case Monday in Seventh Judicial district court.

Scheduled for one of the daffiest tiffs in a long time are Robert M. Beech, John E. Barthmew Sr., and Floyd Townsend, all of Harrisonburg.

This trio is expected to be on hand when the judge drops his gavel but no one yet knows just what to do about approximately 300,000 honey bees that are out on $275 bond.

The bees, in 20 double-stand hives, are on the Barthmew's place from where Deputy Sheriff Carey McGuffee had to flee when he tried to mark the hives as evidence. Judge Reeves set the bond for the culprits as a technicality, just to be sure the honeybees didn't run off before court time.

All this started when Beech and Townsend were working with a crew cutting right-of-way near Monroe and the pair were given 30 beehives that were on their line of march by an indifferent owner. Each hive was estimated to contain 25,000 bees and a sizable amount of honey.

On a recent week-end, Beech and Townsend returned to Harrisonburg and told of their prizes. Barthmew is said to have agreed to loan them his truck to haul the hives home, and then decided to go with them himself and help. And, as the story drips out, the generous lads decided to cut Barthmew in on a third of the buzzers. Upon returning to Harrisonburg, Townsend is alleged to have given his share to Barthmew.

However, somewhere along the line there was a misunderstanding and Deputy McGuffee was ordered to seize all of the hives retained by Barthmew until things are ironed out in court. The technical bond resulted.

Although the case is "honeycombed" with loopholes, Judge Reeves will probably tackle it with knife and fork, with dreams of a lot of hot biscuits on the side.

The English "window tax" based on the number of windows in homes, was assessed in 1695 to make up a state deficiency caused by clipping and defacing of coins.

GREECE NOW BATTLEGROUND WITH NO PEACE PROSPECTS

ATHENS, July 19.—(AP)—Greece is a battleground, currently at least, with no immediate prospect of peace on her borders.

Greek officials once hoped that the United Nations security council would effectively dispose of what they consider flagrant border violations. Now, they feel the likelihood of a Soviet veto has dispelled hope of creating a permanent U. N. Commission to watch the frontier.

There is too much frontier—nearly 400 miles—there are too few soldiers with too little equipment for Greece herself to keep leftist guerrillas from spilling through the sieve-like frontiers to the north.

There is too much mountainous territory made to order for guerrilla warfare within Greece for the gendarmerie and military to maintain order as long as rebel reinforcements may filter back and forth across the borders.

One member of the Greek general staff put it this way: "The borders exist for us, but not for them. We can't chase them across the frontiers where they are re-equipped, retrained, reorganized and come back."

The general attitude of Greeks is that the $300,000,000 American program of aid—half of which is tentatively allocated to restoration of order—will not be enough if rebellion continues.

Some improvement is expected from the program, but the realistic observers recall that the British already have spent 100,000,000 pounds ($400,000,000) and that UNRRA spent $350,000,000 since the liberation in 1944 without appreciably improving the situation in any permanent or substantial form.

Rail, road, motor and telegraph still are working on a skeleton basis. What little reconstruction has been accomplished has been of a purely private nature and on a limited scale.

Nor does there appear to be much hope of internal peace in the latest Communist effort at so-called reconciliation with the government. This line is much the same as that in the weeks preceding the revolt of 1944. The Communist program appears to be designed to create chaotic conditions under which the government might be seized.

The latest proclamation of guerrilla chief, Gen. Markos Viliades, proposes organization of a new provisional government and offers to abstain from activity until "free elections" are held.

But the guerrillas would retain their arms, would not agree to surrender and would refuse to take advantage of the amnesty which the government has consented to the supervision of such an amnesty by a neutral international body.

Presumably, too, the guerrillas would retain the right to decide for themselves whether such elections were "free" since they heretofore

Barthmew is said to have agreed to loan them his truck to haul the hives home, and then decided to go with them himself and help. And, as the story drips out, the generous lads decided to cut Barthmew in on a third of the buzz. Upon returning to Harrisonburg, Townsend is alleged to have given his share to Barthmew.

However, somewhere along the line there was a misunderstanding and Deputy McGuffee was ordered to seize all of the hives retained by Barthmew until things are ironed out in court. The technical bond resulted. Although the case is "honeycombed" with loopholes, Judge Reeves will probably tackle it with knife and fork, with dreams of a lot of hot biscuits on the side.

The English "window tax" based on the number of windows in homes, was assessed in 1696 to make up a state deficiency caused by clipping and defacing of coins.

But the guerrillas would retain their arms, would not agree to surrender and would refuse to take advantage of the amnesty which the government has offered. The government has consented to the supervision of such an amnesty by a neutral international body.

GREECE NOW BATTLEGROUND WITH NO PEACE PROSPECTS

ATHENS, July 19.—(AP)—Greece is a battleground, currently at least, with no immediate prospect of peace on her borders.

Greek officials once hoped that the United Nations security council would effectively dispose of what they consider flagrant border violations. Now, they feel the likelihood of a Soviet veto has dispelled hope of creating a permanent U. N. Commission to watch the frontier.

There is too much frontier—nearly 400 miles—there are too few soldiers with too little equipment for Greece to keep leftist guerrillas from spilling through the sieve-like frontiers to the north.

There is too much mountainous territory made to order for guerrilla warfare within Greece for the gendarmerie and military to maintain order as long as rebel reinforcements may filter back and forth across the borders.

One member of the Greek general staff put it this way: "The borders exist for us, but not for them. We can't chase them across the frontiers where they are re-equipped, retrained, reorganized and come back."

The general attitude of Greeks is that the $300,000,000 American program of aid—half of which is tentatively allocated to restoration of order—will not be enough if rebellion continues.

Some improvement is expected from the program, but the realistic observers recall that the British already have spent 100,000,000 pounds ($400,000,000) and that UNRRA spent $350,000,000 since the liberation in 1944 without appreciably improving the situation in any permanent or substantial form.

Rail, road, motor and telegraph still are working on a skeleton basis. What little reconstruction has been accomplished has been of a purely private nature and on a limited scale.

Nor does there appear to be much hope of internal peace in the latest Communist effort at so-called reconciliation with the government. This line is much the same as that in the weeks preceding the revolt of 1944. The Communist program appears to be designed to create chaotic conditions under which the government might be seized.

The latest proclamation of guerrilla chief, Gen. Markos Vafiades, proposes organization of a new provisional government and offers to abstain from activity until "free elections" are held.

But the guerrillas would retain their arms, would not agree to surrender and would refuse to take advantage of the amnesty which the government has offered. The government has consented to the supervision of such an amnesty by a neutral international body.

Presumably, too, the guerrillas would retain the right to decide for themselves whether such elections were "free" since they heretofore have objected to any international observers settling such questions.

Communist newspapers take the view that the guerrilla warfare is a purely internal Greek affair and that the border countries of Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia are not responsible. The Communist newspapers refer to British and American aid as "intervention" and call Dwight D. Eisenhower, administrator of the U. S. aid program, a "gauleiter."

Communist voting strength in Greece is estimated by well-informed observers at about 15 per cent of the total voting population. With "fellow travelers" and sympathizers eliminated, the hard core which would go all the way with the party line is figured by the same observers at between five and 10 per cent.

Communists claim they represent 80 per cent of the people, but they abstained from the 1946 elections, possibly because they feared the leftist EAM (National Liberation Front) coalition could not garner a majority.

Consequently the Communists are not represented in Parliament.

Greeks are independent and individualistic by tradition and nature. They are opposed to any loss of territory and they still want northern Epirus, the southern part of Albania.

Communist hints that a "free" Communist state might be proclaimed in the north have strengthened the present coalition government which includes all parliamentary parties except the liberals, who are headed by 86-year-old Themistocles Sophoulis. The Communists have tried to steer Sophoulis into the position of mediator, but the veteran former premier has consistently taken the position that the guerrillas should lay down their arms as a first step to peace.

The idea of a Communist state in northern Greece has gone against the national pride of some leftists, too. Consequently the proposal has been toned down.

But diplomatic sources continue to speculate that "free" state will be proclaimed shortly for two reasons. One reason is that the Communists may believe American aid will secure an economic balance long enough to prevent the present government from making any concessions.

COTTON INSECT DAMAGE HEAVY

Treatment Against Boll Weevils, Boll Worms and Lice Advised

BATON ROUGE, La., July 19.—(Special)—Boll weevils are doing severe damage and extremely high boll worm egg counts indicate that boll worms may become serious in a few days, warns W. S. McGregor, entomologist, Louisiana State University agricultural extension division. Mr. McGregor made field inspections in Rapides, Avoyelles, Morehouse and Pointe Coupee parishes this week which showed a definite increase in cotton insects in fields throughout the northern part of the state.

Observations made in these parishes showed that in spite of the hot, dry weather the weevils were getting an average of over 30 per cent of the squares and many of the bolls, he said. Many young boll worms were found and dusting was recommended to be started at once in some of the fields. Farmers should check their fields, he advises.

Due to the heavy cotton lice infestation an application of nicotine sulphate or some other aphicide is recommended to start the dusting program, Mr. McGregor said. Applications for calcium arsenate at 8 to 10 pounds per acre at 5-day intervals is recommended for boll weevils and 10 per cent DDT is recommended for control of bollworms.

The making of wire is one of the most ancient metal-working crafts.
